Mayo Welcomes

'Students More Than IBM Numbers'

By DR. ROBERT M. MAYO
HJC President

Welcome to the Hinds campus.

We wish to commend the freshmen for your good judgement in selecting a quality junior college in which to begin your college career. You will find at Hinds a group of dedicated teachers who are interested in you as an individual and especially in your intellectual growth and development.

Don't be fooled by an IBM number. These numbers merely streamline some administrative procedures in which there is no educational value.

You will find the college many things, the most important of which is people — people who are working, learning, playing, growing, and with whom you will be living, learning, and growing. Find a time in your busy college schedule for the more important things and give them preference and by all means capitalize on the opportunity you have for making friendships among both faculty and students which will go with you through life.

As you move through your first and second year of college we hope you will develop a love for learning and an admiration and respect for knowledge and truth. If these attitudes are not acquired, you will miss the real meaning of a college education, but by acquiring them you will find learning an exciting and thrilling experience.

The offiec of the President and other administrative offices on this campus are never closed to students. We are never too busy to discuss your problems and to help you arrive at what we hope will be mature and well thought out decisions.

Appleton Stresses New Safety Rules

Bud Appleton, head of security, reminds students to adhere to new safety rules while driving on campus this year.

There will be no parking on the streets anywhere on campus. Students commuting will park in parking lots only.

Male students must park their cars at their prospective dorms while female students will use the porking space provided them at their dorms.

Sowell Nominated To Legislative Post

Ralph Sowell, Jr., Hinds' Public Relations Director and journalism teacher, was elected the Democratic nominee for Post 4 of the House of Representatives in this summer's elections.

Sowell led the first primary ballot by 7,731 votes over his nearest and second primary opponent, garnering 19,084 votes in his first bid for public office. In the second primary, Sowell amassed 26,754 votes to take the post from his opponent, Ken Johnson.

Commenting on this summer's elections, Sowell said, "I am deeply grateful for the personal support and active work of many Hinds Junior College faculty and students. The size of this county alone demands that any candidate have an abundance of 'campaign managers,' and I am thankful for the 'word of mouth' support."

After winning two primaries, Sow-

Hi-Steppers, Band Perform At New Orleans Saints' Game

Hinds Hi-Steppers and Eagle band performed the pre-game and halftime show for the New Orleans Saints' first home game in New Orleans Sunday, September 17 at the Sugar Bowl Stadium.

A sell-out crowd of over 80,000 and a CBS television audience viewed the new wonder club as they played before their first home crowd against the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams pulled away from the New Orleans Saints in the second half for a 27-13 victory over the Saints.

The Saints Halftime Entertainment Director, Tommy Walker of Annaheim, California, and formerly with Walt Disney productions, and who produced the Super Bowl halftime show last year, was in Raymond September 13 to make final plans for the show.

Televised Nationwide

Walker has been working with Hi-Stepper director, Mrs. Alon Bee, and Eagle Band director, Al Rowan for several weeks, making split-timing preparations for the show.

New routines and song numbers were planned for the special show. New Orleans tunes were featured, including "Way Down South in New Orleans," "South Rampart Street Parade March," "Dixie," and "The Saints Go Marching In." Walker requested that the Steppers do the "tub outline," a long-time favorite with football fans and an original routine of the Hi-Steppers.

Appeared With Hirt

The 108 Steppers and 58 band members left at 6:00 a.m. Sunday and arrived in time to test the field before the show. The only other entertainment was Trumpeteer Al Hirt.

The Hi-Steppers and band have performed many times before in New Orleans — at the Sugar Bowl, pro-exhibition games, and eight years at the Mardi Gras.

The game was of special interest to Hinds Junior College alumni and Mississippians since two players— Jimmy Taylor and Earl Leggett— are former HJC players and are main cogs on the Saints' team.

HJC Enrollment Up As 50th Session Opens

Registrar Reveals Higher Enrollment With 1734 Academic College Students

Hinds Junior College opened its doors for the 50th academic session as classes began on September 14 with an enrollment which has grown steadily larger since the college's founding in 1917.

Academic college students number 1734 which is exactly 101 students more than the college had at the close of registration for the 1966-67 session, according to Registrar include registration for all of the college program. The fall semester last year recorded a total of 3083 students, including participants in the vocational, manpower development and training, evening classes and health occupations. This figure should increase by several hundred once the final count is tabualted after final registrations this week.

"This is really more people than we expected which made our class sizes bigger," stated Miss Herrin. "Registration went smoothly and practically everyone got a satisfactory schedule. We do appreciate the cooperation of students and faculty alike through this trying period."

Vocational - Technical Director Walter Gibbes has placed enrollment figures for his department at 221 day students and 83 night students.

"We have almost doubled enrollment over last year's figure at the end of the first week," stated Gibbes. "We seem to have enthusiastic students that are participating freely in job experiences as well as their classroom work."

Gibbes added that classes are filling rapidly and that some are now overflowing. When ten or more register after classes are filled, new classes will be developed. In the event that new sections are developed, instructors will be employed to carry the load.

Figures reported thus far do not

Help Preserve Facilities

Tentative enrollment figures indicate that Hinds will see another record breaking number of students on campus. With the cooperation of each student in observing certain rules, the present facilities will help in the education of another generation.

While in the grill, students are urged to use ash trays, instead of throwing cigarette butts on the floor. These actions result in permanent burns on the floor surface. Students are not allowed to take food, drink or to smoke in any of the carpeted areas in the Student Union Building.

Students should dress as they would when attending class when eating in the cafeteria. Penalties are enforced on those who insist in breaking in line and students must not leave trays on tables.

Observe all safety rules on campus driving including speed limits and parking restrictions. Cooperate with the security officers. They are here to help your stay at Hinds be safer.

If all students will observe these few simple rules, the facilities, new today, will serve thousands like you tomorrow.

'Everyone Is Friendly'

Freshmen Express Opinions On HJC

By GAYLE BECK

Many new faces have been seen around campus this week, most of them experiencing college life for the first time. Several of them were asked why they chose Hinds as their school or what was their impression of the people and the campus.

These are some of the answers we received:

DELORES MORGAN—I wasn't sure which senior college I wanted to attend so I decided to come to Hinds, then after two years I can be more sure of a university.

JO ANNE PRISOCK— I like the Hinds campus because it isn't too big. Most of the people are very friendly and I like friendly schools.

BRIAN FIELD—It was the only place I could get in, but I really like it here. The campus is small and the girls are very friendly.

RANDY GANT—It is close to home and the teachers act like true Mississippians. I really like Hinds.

TOLBY IZARD—I had been told it was a good college, and it is close to my home. I also felt I could get a good foundation in engineering here.

DEBBIE CARRAWAY — People here are really friendly. Everyone is nicer than I expected to a freshman.

TAYLOR GALLMAN—I wanted to go to a junior college first and my brother suggested Hinds. I also came because it is close to home.

MICKY LITTLE—I came to Hinds because of the good rating of the art department. I like it because everyone is friendly.

BILL NANCE—People are very friendly at Hinds and many of my classmates from Pearl are here. I was impressed with the general appearance of the campus. Registration is also very efficient here, better than any other college.

FRANK KEEN—Hinds is a great school. I like the drafting department and the girls.

LYNN GRAHAM—Hinds offered the secretary training I needed and I work in Jackson so it is close to home.

BARBARA HUDSPETH—I love Hinds and the way it is set up. Everyone is friendly and it isn't hard to get to know people. At Hinds I expect to establish a good background in choreography and some lasting friendships.

DWIGHT CRANFORD—I wanted to major in music and this is supposed to be one of the best schools for that. I also wanted to take air-conditioning and refrigeration later at Hinds if music doesn't work out.

TONY WILKS—This is a better school than any other junior college and I intend to go two years here.

MARGARET PONDER — It is close to home. I was from a small school and I wanted to attend a small college to see if I liked it.

"This election," Sowell said, "has been a great victory for education. On all levels of leadership thus far, the men who have been elected, in general, are going to be generous to the needs of education. I have talked with many of those elected, and they are as serious now that they're elected as they were on the campaign trail when they say education needs a helping hand."

Sowell concluded, "I ask for the continued support of the Hinds Junior College community on November 7 in the general election, and thank you for your confidence. In return, I will make a conscientious and sincere effort to cast every vote as I represent you, in your best interest."

Win Some, Lose . . .

BY D. D. MCKENZIE

Well, sports fans, junior colleges all over the state are opening and that means the junior college football season is also beginning to turn into full swing.

The Hinds Eagles were defeated in their opener with Scooba but that is not necessarily indicative of a poor season. After all, the Green Bay Packers lost two games last year. As I go back in time, all the way to last year, I recall that the Eagles got off to a slow start the first half of the season but came back stronger than any team in the conference to wind up with a 6-4 record. I have a feeling that the Eagles could wind up with a 8-2 record this year.

So that the most avid of you pigskin fans will have a better knowledge of the game I will proceed to give you some interesting tidbits of information on this great game of ours.

The first touchdown ever scored in a football game was in 1823 at Rugby school in England. Until then, football was a kicking game and carrying the ball was strictly taboo.

In 1876, representatives from Harvard, Yale Princeton, and Columbia formally adopted a set of rules similiar to those governing the English Rugby Union. In the 1890's, the Army-Navy rivalry had been established and other schools around the country began challenging the supremacy of the Eastern schools.

In the earliest days, football was the day of the flying wedge and other mass plays. The game was attacked nationally for its brutality. Several journalists claimed the schools were producing a generation of young ruffians.

Among the defenders of the game were Theodore Roosevelt and Walter Camp, the Father of American football. Under Camp's leadership, football became a safer, more exciting game. He introduced the forward pass in 1906 and the 10-yards-in-four-downs rule.

Chicago Bear's halfback, Gale Sayers, wasn't looking forward to his first meeting with the Green Bay Packers during his rookie season, he admits in an article in the current issue of "Sport" magazine.

Early in the game Sayers swept around end toward a violent meeting with All-Pro defensive end Willie Davis and All-Pro linebacker Ray Nitschke.

In the pile up that followed, Davis and Nitschke each wound up with one of Sayer's legs. Sayers swears he heard Davis say, "Okay, Ray, baby, make a wish."

"How will the New Orleans Saints come out this year?" seems to be the question that all professional football fans are asking. I will make one of my rare predictions and say that the Saints will win at least four ball games if not more. The reason I say this is because they do not have to play the Green Bay Packers. The Packers have a way of demoralizing their opponents.

Renfroe Begins 21st Year As Eagle Football Mentor

By DANNY McKENZIE

Head Football Coach Joe Renfroe begins his 21st year with the Eagles this season, as he directs the 1967 HJC team, along with assistants Ivan Rosamond and Glenn Russell.

Renfroe, who served as president of the Junior College Coaches Association for six years, is highly regraded in coaching circles around the state.

Tulane Star

Born in Fort Myers, Fla., Renfroe entered Tulane University with ambitions of becoming a doctor. He was an All-American on almost everybody's gridiron team in the fall of 1943. During the war days, the names of Renfroe and Tulane went hand-in-hand.

Renfroe graduated in the spring of 1944 and went to Gulf Coast Military Academy in Gulfport where he was head coach for two years. He then worked for the government with the Corrective Rehabilitation Physical Education program for one year before coming to Hinds, where he is now the dean of the junior college coaches.

One of the most respected football bosses in the state, Renfroe points with pride to the 120 victories compared to 67 losses and 6 ties he has managed as an Eagle coach, a record unequalled in the state. He was named athletic director and head coach in 1954 after serving seven years as Hinds' assistant coach. Since taking over the top job he has compiled a 62-50 record.

Rose Bowl Win

Renfroe's initial year as Hinds' head coach gave him sure footing in the Mississippi circuit. His Eagles easily took the state crown and then shocked the 62,000 Californians at the Junior Rose Bowl with a 13-7 winning performance over El Camino of California. To top off the winning season, Renfroe was named "Coach of the Year" in the rugged junior college circuit. Another season of no losses added another state crown to his honors in 1957.

Ivan Rosamond, a former Hinds Junior College and Canton High football star, serves as head line coach and Track coach at Hinds.

Glen Russell begins his second season with the Eagles as an assistant coach. Russell played his college football at Hinds and at Memphis State.

HJC Kicks Off Season With Only 10 Returnees

BY BILL SUMMERLIN

Hinds Eagles, under the direction of Head Coach Joe Renfroe, go into the 1967 football season with their smallest squad in recent years.

Coach Renfroe and his assistants, Ivan Rosamond and Glen Russell, lead the Eagles into the current season with only ten returnees from last year's 6-4 team and only 16 new squad members.

Kenneth Acton heads the list of returning lettermen. Acton is a 6'2'' 180-pound sophomore from Jackson Provine. He lettered for Hinds last year as a defensive end but this year has been moved to tackle.

Ezell Back

Mike Ezell, sophomore quarterback from Vicksburg, is back to win his second letter for the Eagles. Ezell is 5'10'' and weighs 175 pounds.

Randy Parker from Florence is back to give Ezell stiff competition for the quarterback post. Parker is a 6' 180 pound returning letterman.

Robert Baker, a 6'1'', 195-pound letterman from Vicksburg is back to nail down one of the tackle positions.

Mike Corbin is back to hold down both a defensive end position, where he made All-State last year, and a Guard post. Corbin is a 6'1'', 205-pound sophomore from Vicksburg.

Underwood At Half

Derle Underwood is returning to hold down one of the defensive halfback positions and split end. Underwood is a 5'10'', 165-pound HJC letterman from Jackson.

Johnny Bruntlett is a 5'11'', 175-pound guard from Jackson who is returning to take over one of the guard posts that he lettered at last year for the Eagles.

Wiley Alderidge is returning to take over the slot back position after lettering at the split end position for Hinds in 1966. Alderidge is a 6', 170-pound former All Little Dixie player from Brandon.

Robert ''Bruiser'' Hoseman is a 6' 218-pound letterman from Vicksburg. Hosemann is back to hold down both the offensive and defensive tackle.

Walsh Switches

Doug Walsh, HJC letterman from Jackson, has made the switch from center to guard this year. Walsh is a 6', 208-pound 1966 Honorable Mention All Stater.

Richard Hawthorne is a 5'8'', 165-pound returning letterman from Jackson Central. Hawthorne is back this season to repeat as an All State linebacker.

Heading the list of new players is Tommy Abernathy a 6'3'', 167-pound sophomore from Raymond.

Leonard Bouler transfers to Hinds from Murray State University in Murray, Kentucky. Bouler is a 6'2'', 195-pounder from Vicksburg.

James McBrayer is a 6'5'' 190-pound end from Brandon. McBrayer is a former All Little Dixie player.

Louis Sierra comes to Hinds from Jackson St. Joseph where he made All State in 1966 as a 5'8'', 169-pound halfback.

Johnny Campbell is a 5'9'', 164-pound fullback who lettered as a guard at Brandon.

Wedgeworth Kicking

Barlon Wedgeworth will be doing the kicking for the Eagles this year and will also see action as a linebacker. Wedgeworth is a 5'11'', 170-pound, three year letter winner, from Florence, where he was named to the All Little Dixie first team in 1966.

Ronald Torrance is a 6' 169-pound halfback from Central High in Jackson where he lettered for three years.

Curtis Kilpatrick, is a 5' 11'', 180-pound center from Jackson Provine where he was named to the 1966 All Big Eight first team and the All State third team.

Jerry Calloway is a 6', 150-pound wingback and defensive back from Jackson Provine where he was a two year letterman.

Eagle Footballers Beaten By Perkinston 'Dogs 33-0

Hinds Eagles were turned away from their first victory of the season in their home opener Saturday night by the Perkinston Bulldogs by the score of 33-0.

The Eagle defense, led by Richard Hawthorne, held the Bulldogs scoreless through most of the first quarter until the Perkinston depth proved too much for the smaller Hinds team.

Perkinston, rated as number one in the tough junior college circuit, proved true to their rating as they completely wore out the Eagles with their limitless subsitutions. The Bulldog strength was shown clearly in the second quarter when they shoved across for three touchdowns after managing only one in the first quarter.

The one bright spot in the first half came when Ken Acton intercepted a Perkinston pass and returned it to the Bulldog 40-yard line. Richard Hawthorne and Raul Sierria broke loose on succeeding off tackle plays and the Eagles moved to the Bulldog twenty. Again, the depth of the Perkinston squad became evident as they stopped Hinds on their only serious drive of the night.

This Thursday night, the Eagles travel to Decatur to take on the East Central Warriors in what promises to be another tough game for Coach Joe Renfroe and his Eagles.

EAGLE TACKLE — Ken Acton, sophomore from Jackson, provided one of the bright spots of the Hinds defense when he intercepted a Perk pass in the Eagles recent loss to the Bulldogs.

Hinds Takes On East Central Thursday

Hinds Eagles take to the road Thursday night, September 21 as they meet the East Central Warriors in Decatur in search of their first victory of the season.

The Eagles dropped their first two games of the year to the East Mississippi Lions, 29-3 and to the Perkinston Bulldogs, 33-0. East Central sports a 1-1 record in the circuit by losing to Perkinston also, by the score of 54-17 and defeating the East Mississippi club 14-12.

The Eagles, already suffering from a lack of depth, were hurt even more Saturday night when flankerback Don Theobold received a badly injured knee. Theobold is a 150-pound freshman and was counted on heavily to strengthen the pass-catching corps of Coach Joe Renfroe's Eagles.

Experience-wise, Hinds should have the edge on the Warriors as the club from East Central have only six returning lettermen from last year's squad. The Eagles have ten returning lettermen.

The remainder of the Hinds schedule is as follows:

SEPTEMBER:
- 21 East Central at Decatur
- 30 Jones at Ellisville

OCTOBER:
- 7 Holmes at Raymond
- 12 Pearl River at Raymond
- 21 Northwest at Senatobia
- 28 Open

NOVEMBER:
- 2 Itawamba at Raymond
- 11 Co-Lin at Raymond
- 16 Southwest at Summit

Returnees . . .

Jim Vincent is a 6', 193-pound Guard and linebacker also from Jackson Provine.

Reggie McNamee from Forest Hill is a 6', 180-pound center for the Eagles.

Rowan At End

Brian Rowan, 6', 185-pound end, comes to Hinds from Raymond where he made the All-Magnolia Conference first team in 1966.

Don Theobald is a 5'8", 150-pound slot back from Cooper High School in Vicksburg where he was a two-year letterwinner.

John Birdsong, a two year letterman from Raymond, will hold down one of the tackle slots for the Eagles this year at 6'2" and 235 pounds.

Frank Jones, 5'11", 168 pounds, is an All Little Dixie end from Brandon where he won two letters.

Mickey Hibbett a, 5'10", 160-pound halfback from Jackson, is a four year letter winner from his former hometown of Blanchester, Ohio.

Bill Hall comes to Hinds from Brandon as a 6' 186-pound tackle.

Giles At Center

Gerald Giles is a 6', 175-pound center from Brandon where he was a two-year letter winner.

Ivan Lambert is a 5'10", 220-pound defensive tackle who comes to the Eagles from Jackson St. Joseph.

Perkinston, Northwest Rated Top Two In Voting By Junior College Coaches

Hinds Eagles were picked in a preseason poll of the junior college coaches to finish 10th of 12 teams with the number one spot going to the Perkinston Bulldogs.

In the recent poll, Perkinston was picked ahead of Northwest to take the junior college crown by 13 votes. However, to date, the Perkinston club is undefeated, while the Rangers from Northwest have yet to place a win on the board.

Third ranked Jones remains unbeaten after two games while fourth ranked East Mississippi sports a 1-1 record. Holmes, picked sixth, also has an undefeated record but it will be put on the line against Jones as the two meet this week.

This is the way the coaches' poll went at their preseason meeting:

1. Perkinston 116
2. Northwest 103
3. Jones 84
4. East Mississippi 82
5. Miss. Delta 77
6. Holmes 72
7. Copiah - Lincoln 55
8. East Central 49
9. Itawamba 45
10. HINDS 41
11. Pearl River 37

Perkinston and Northwest won the Mississippi Junior College Conference in 1966 and 1965 respectively. Pearl River, a one-time power house in the junior college circuit was rated number one in the conference last year by the coaches but finished the season in dead last with a 0-10 record. Itawamba was rated twelfth in last year's pre-season poll but wound up the season by finishing secon, once again proving the unpredictability of the tough JC conference.

HJC Drops Opener To East Mississippi

Hinds Eagles were turned away from an opening season victory by the East Mississippi Lions on September 9 in Meridian to the score of 23-9.

The Eagles only score came with 8:01 left in the first quarter when Berlon Wedgeworth booted a twelve yard field goal. The Lions scratched first, however, as they scored a safety by recovering a stray snap in the end zone.

Lions Lead

A screen pass from Randle Bradberry to Wayne Watson early in the second quarter took the Lions down to the Hind's three yard line. Three plays later, Bradberry plunged over the middle to wind up the first half scoring with Hinds trailing to the tune of 8-3.

A Bradwell to Newell pass from 15 yards out midway in the fourth quarter accounted for the Lions' final TD of the night. Howard again booted the conversion true and the East Mississippi Lions had taken the first game of the season over the Hinds Eagles 29-3.

Win Mention

Sophomore cheerleaders won honorable mention in competition with camp August 20-25 at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, Hinds was the smallest in number of the groups that competed in this division.

The judging was based on how well the team did, how the squad looked as a whole, spirit that the squad showed, individual personality traits, and the ability to get others to participate in the yells.

The approximately 300 students representing 25 states attended camp lectures on "How to Get a Crowd to Yell," "When to Yell," "Sports," "Techniques of Cheerleading," and "How to Arouse the Enthusiasm of Students for Pep Rallies." The cheerleaders also learned pom-pom routines and stunts to be used at pep rallies.

"We feel as if we have benefitted greatly from this camp. This will aid us to help our school to have more school spirit," commented Jean Buffington, Head Football Cheerleader.

Reeves Holds Camp For Choir Students On Hinds Campus

Approximately 50 Hinds music students met for Choir Camp during the week of September 4-8 on the Hinds campus under the direction of Choir Director Leslie Reeves.

"We are very pleased with the outcome of this camp," stated Reeves. "We feel that this has given us a head start for a better working group this year."

The majority of the camp work was spent on five numbers which will be used in concerts during the year. The week ended on Thursday night with a concert in the Hinds auditorium.

Eastside Dorm Undergoes Renovation

BY GLENN GARNER

Renovations started last fall on Eastside dormitory, and although not now complete, have progressed far enough to comfortably house 142 male students this fall semester.

Reconstruction has been completely finished on all areas of the dormitory except for the original slabs and outside walls.

Nine Suites

Eastside can successfully accomodate 142 students in nine suites, eight of which contain 16 residents and one containing 14. New furniture was supplied by Educators acting through Central School Supply of Jackson.

Each room contains a desk, two chairs, a chest of drawers, bunk beds, and two closets with the privacy of a lock.

All contracting for the project was centered here at Hinds using outside sub-contractors for mechanical work on the air-conditioning and heating phases.

Remarkable Job

"The Hinds Vo-Tech electrical department did a remarkable job on completing the wiring," says Dean of Men, Rosser Wall.

Plans are in the making now to construct a parking lot on the area east of the dormitory. Coach Joe Renfroe will remain as dorm manager while proctor chores go to Tommy Roan, Jackson, and Paul Bradshaw, Forest.

Mrs. Wall, Brooks Attend UM Meeting

Mrs. Rosser Wall, wife of Dean of Men, and Fred Brooks, speech instructor, represented Hinds at a twelve week seminar this summer held at the University of Mississippi concerning Educational Media.

As a result of this seminar Hinds has been planning for funds to be granted for complete installation of all education media now available for junior colleges.

Floyd Elkins, Academic Dean, and Rosser Wall, attended a session of this seminar in which Dr. Bernarr Cooper, in charge of the educational media for the state of New York, spoke. Educational television was one of the main topics of this meeting.

Hinds has made application for federal grants inaugurated by the educational media system. Duncan Whiteside, University of Mississippi consultant, is presently helping Hinds to plan for its educational media program.

Misses Patterson, McNair To Co-edit Campus Yearbook

Sophomores Linda Patterson of Jackson and Ginger McNair of Learned have been selected Co-Editors of the 1968 Eagle, campus yearbook and have announced openings for staff positions.

The two were named by Eagle sponsor, Ralph Sowell, Jr. They are returnees from the 1967 staff, having served as co-editors of the Freshman Class section last year.

File Application

Students wishing to help produce and publish the yearbook should contact Sponsor Sowell or either of the Co-Editors and fill out an application.

Applications are in the Public Relations Department of the Student Union Building. They should be picked up there, filled out, and returned as soon as possible. Sowell emphasized that no previous experience is necessary if a student is interested and dependable.

Positions are available for editors in the fields of clubs, sophomore, freshman, art, features, sports, copy, cover, photography, activities, and introductory sections. Also staffs for each department are needed according to Sowell.

Special Plans

Sponsor Sowell, commenting on plans for the 1968 Eagle said, "We're looking forward to producing a special 50th Anniversary edition of the annual this year. Extra efforts will be exerted to make this the best yearbook in the college's history, and we are planning now to make several changes in the format of the previous year's books. I am pleased at the enthusiasm and teamwork shown by our new co-editors. I believe that the two of them, working together to produce the book, will publish a yearbook to remember."

Co-editors McNair and Patterson extended a special invitation to both freshmen and sophomores to join the staff and "be a part of the 50th Anniversary special edition."

Choir To Sponsor Film On October 3

Choir Director Leslie Reeves has announced that the choir will sponsor the film "Pillow Talk" which will be held in the Hinds auditorium at 7:00 p.m. on October 3.

"Pillow Talk", a comedy starring Doris Day and Rock Hudson, will be the second choir sponsored feature presented this school year. The first motion picture presented was "Shenandoah."

"If there is as good a response as we had to the showing of 'Shenandoah' ", stated Reeves, "the choir will try to bring at least one film per three weeks to the campus."

Students are asked to leave suggested film titles, or type films in the Music Department Office with the secretary, added Reeves.

Dr. Mayo To Attend Washington Meeting

President, Dean Of Men To Discuss Use Of Funds With HEW Officials

Hinds president Robert M. Mayo, and Dean of Men Rosser Wall, will travel to Washington, D. C., on October 2, to discuss Loans and Student Aid with Health, Education and Welfare officials.

Representatives from colleges who receive loans and student aid will be present at the seminar. Dr. Mayo is expected to discuss with HEW officials plans for funds from the Developing Institutions Act from which Hinds will be able to send teachers to study next year.

Finance Teachers

Also to be discussed will be the possibility of financing teachers who want to attend summer school. An increase in Federal Teaching Fellowships, over the four now present at Hinds, will be sought.

The October 2 meeting is the first part of a two phase seminar sponsored by the Developing Institutions Branch of the Division of College Support of the U.S. Office of Education.

Plan Grants

The first of these seminars is primarily for institutions which received planning grants from the Developing Institutions Branch for the fiscal year 1967.

On October 11, the second seminar will be held, the day before the American Council on Education meeting in Washington. The agenda for both meetings will relate to the Title III—Developing Institutions Program and information from the other divisions of the Bureau of Higher Education; Division of Graduate Programs, Division of Student Financial Aid, and the Division of College Facilities.

Five Frosh Elected To Pepster Squad

Three freshmen football and two freshmen basketball cheerleaders were elected last Tuesday.

Vickie Downing of Raymond, Brenda Wilkinson of Pelahatchie, and Delores Morgan of Clinton were elected to complete the cheerleader staff for the football season.

These newly elected cheerleaders will join sophomores Jean Buffington, head cheerleader from Jackson; Gloria Riley, Clinton; Vivian Jarvis, Brandon; and Nancy Chappa, Jackson in leading the cheers for the Eagles.

Campus Seen As Dirt Pit If Sidewalks Go Unused

It was once suggested by a student that a college be built without sidewalks. The students would then be turned loose on the grounds for a period of time. When it was evident what paths the students used most, the sidewalks would be built over them.

Alas, it is too late to put into effect such a plan at Hinds. The sidewalks are here, apparently to stay.

Indeed, construction was recently completed widening the sidewalk running from east of the Student Union Building to west of the library.

The addition was made to handle the heavy amount of traffic that flows along this section of the walkway. The question is whether or not it will be utilized by the students.

Much time and money is spent on keeping the Hinds campus grounds looking fit as an institute of education for human beings. Students lacking the energy to take the few extra steps needed to stay on the sidewalk could make the campus end up looking like a jungle pathway or worse, a deserted gravel pit.

The sidewalk additions were made, hopefully, to keep the ground keepers from having to put up "Do Not Walk On The Grass" signs. If members of the Hinds student body do not take the effort — the simple, prideful decency — to use the sidewalks, the signs may have to read, "Do Not Walk On The Dirt."

'Steppers Publicize HJC

Hinds Junior College is privileged to have two organizations whose activities have made this college a household word throughout the nation. These two groups are the Hi-Steppers, and the Eagle band.

The Hi-Steppers and Eagle band are widely known for their performances at football games and participation in parades. They are featured entertainment at festivals and fairs showing off the brand of first rate showmanship that has come to be associated with them.

Just last week, the Hi-Steppers and Eagle band traveled to New Orleans to perform the pre-game and half-time show for the Saints first home game in the Sugar Bowl stadium. The game was televised nationwide and brought the following response from a teacher in Long Beach, California:

"Congratulations on your wonderful Hinds JC women's show on the Rams-Saints game in New Orleans last Sunday. It came thru wonderfully well on color TV here in Long Beach, California. Your show was imaginative and entertaining and a welcome relief from the typical college marching band — pom-pom girls act. Keep up the good work."

This response indicates the type of work and the superior entertainment the Hi-Steppers and Band present. Their appearances project the type of image and hard-working determination of college students in the south and in Mississippi.

The publicity received for Hinds from the Hi-Stepper and Band performances is priceless and their efforts deserve a big vote of thanks from the Hinds student body. — JC.

Girl Learns Barber Trade At Hinds

By GAYLE BECK

No longer will boys on the Hinds campus moan and groan every time they must take that short trip to the barber shop. Something new has been added—a girl barber.

Miss Pamela McCurley, a freshman from Gloster, has entered the Hinds Barber School as one of its first women barbering students.

Two Semester Course

During her two semester course she will learn the art of face shaving, facials, shampooing, and applying tonics along with bacteriology, sterilization, and sanitation.

"One of the most important things that I have learned is that each customer presents a new problem and I cannot be careless with the haircutting and the arrangement of their hair," commented Miss McCurley about her training. "I have also learned that mistakes should be prevented rather than covered or changed."

After graduating from high school she attended the University of Southern Mississippi until she decided definitely to enter a barbering school. Hinds was recommended to her by her hometown barbers along with other schools, but, she felt that Hinds was the best for her.

"Really Enjoy Work"

"I really enjoy my work in the department," stated Miss McCurley. "Everyone is very helpful and considerate. When I graduate, I hope to have had very good training in barbering."

She will return to Gloster and work as a barber for a while after she completes her course of study at Hinds.

Miss McCurley feels she has learned the art of shaving fairly well, but admits the hair cuts she gives still look "a bit funny."

Payne—Today we are talking with Art B. Fuddled, a freshman here at Hinds. Art, what is your reason for wanting to be interviewed?

Fuddled—I am hoping it will aid me in meeting some girls.

Payne—Pardon?

Fuddled—I've led a very sheltered life, you see. My mother left our family shortly before I was born. Fact is, I was born in a crude, two room shack which I helped my father build.

Payne—Do say? Tell us more about your personality, Art.

Fuddled—I'm very witty.

Payne—You mean you have a sharp sense of humor, you're a good joke teller?

Fuddled—No, I make funny faces. Wait a minute, let me show you one.

Payne—Say, that's pretty funny.

Fuddled—I haven't done it yet.

Payne—Uh, I'm sure our readers are interested in knowing more about Art B. Fuddled. Could you tell us how you spend your leisure time?

Fuddled—Well, I enjoy shaking up bottles of Italian dressing and watching it settle. It's a good way to spend a couple of hours.

Payne—Do you have any hobbies, I mean besides the salad dressing?

Fuddled—I train clams.

Payne—Pardon?

Fuddled—Actually they are quite easy to housebreak, and very loyal. You hardly ever hear of a clam turning on its master.

Payne—You have a point there.

Fuddled—And they learn tricks. Let me show you. He's right here in my pocket. Here he is. This is Hector, my most intelligent clam.

Payne—I could tell just by looking at him.

Fudled—Now watch this. Hector, play dead!

Payne—He doesn't seem to be doing anything . . .

We are now getting down to the business at hand. Before you know it nine weeks test will be upon us. For the freshmen it is an entirely new experience, something to look forward to. For the sophomores the year is one we can look forward to with renewed hope and determination. Let us start this school year with a new and greater outlook.

This is the 50th session of Hinds Junior College and over those fifty years we have achieved an impressive record. Hinds has received recognition throughout the state and nation in various fields. This is a job we could not have done if the students had not been interested enough to participate and work together. Students working together for a common goal can reach new heights. All students are encouraged to take an active part in campus affairs. There are numerous opportunities afforded Hinds students through various clubs. Help strive for a greater and more impressive record by your participation in campus activities.

Your student government intends to work together with all clubs in achieving goals in our common interest.

This year the Senate is being organized much earlier than in years past to give the student body a forum for its views. Your support and interest are needed if the Senate is to truly be the voice of the students. We must be united in our goals or we cannot attain them.

We must put our heads together and come up with reasonable and responsible solutions to our problems.

Hinds has indeed made a name for itself through its record accomplishments both to our state and community over the past fify years; let us continue.

Miss Jarvis Voted As Girl Of Month

Miss Vivian Jarvis, a Brandon sophomore, was recently chosen as the Hinds "Girl of the Month" for September.

The "Girl of the Month" award is a new feature sponsored by the Hinds Social Affairs Commission. The girl is chosen on the basis of popularity, citizenship, and academic work.

One girl will be chosen for each month of the school year. After the selection of Miss May 1968, there will be a reception for all "Girl of the Month" honorees. The girls will be selected by two members of the administration, staff, faculty and students.

Miss Jarvis is an art major and has participated in the Brandon band, Future Homemakers of America, Beta Club, and was a beauty in the Brandon's Who's Who in high school.

At Hinds she is a member of Westminster, a football cheerleader, and a charter member of the ASTRA club, a woman's service organization. She is presently serving as ASTRA's president.

Herrin Announces New Requirements For Classification

New Selective Service requirements for student classifications have been released by Miss Mildred Herrin, registrar.

Under the new requirements all young men who seek a student classification must file with their local Selective Service Board a printed form, SS Form 104—Request for Undergraduate Student Deferment, or in its place a letter to their Selective Service requesting a student classification.

Miss Herrin added that the printed forms 104 may be obtained from any Selective Service Office, including the local office in Raymond. "The request for a student classification is furnished by a young man directly to his local board—not to his college," commented Miss Herrin.

Forms 104 should be filed with Selective Service Boards no later than October 10. A limited supply of forms 104 are available in the Office of the Registrar for those who would be inconvenienced in getting forms elsewhere.

Vaught Drops First

Well, folks, the world is almost at end. Ole Miss lost their first ball game of the year, and in doing so lost their first opening season game in the past 21 years. Michigan State got shot out of the saddle by some ball club named Houston. Coach Duffy Daugherty doesn't seemed too shook up about it, though.

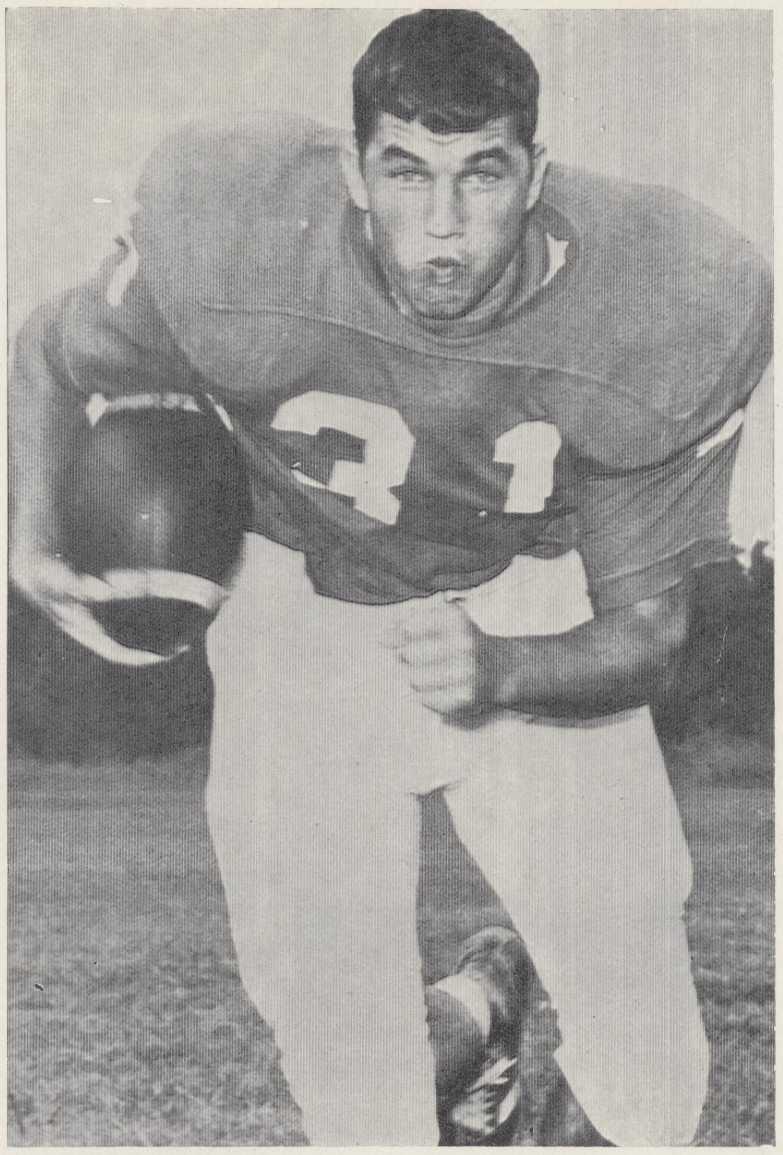
But the fine folks down in Birmingham received the worst shock of the week, year, or century as far as they are concerned. Florida State (who are they?) tied the Crimson Tide from Alabama, 37-37. The worst of it, though, is that what used to be a defensive ball club actually allowed 37 pasteurized, homogenized, crystallized points to go up on the visitor's side of the score board.

Bear Bryant's team allowed an average of only four points a game last season. Have no fear, the Bear will find a way of coming up with another undefeated season. Don't be surprised if you look in the papers at the end of the season and find that Alabama allowed a total of 37 points all year. "The man" has a way of doing things.

Now to get down to the professional scene, there is also a mystery that seems to be puzzling the experts. The mystery is the Green Bay Packers. They had to play catch-up football in the second half of their season opener to tie the Detroit Lions. Then last week they managed to struggle out only a three point victory over the Chicago Bears.

Let it be known that Mr. Vince Lombardi is not worried, because he too, has a way of dealing with such misfortunes as those that have taken place within the last two weeks. I am just thankful that I am not in the Alabama, Ole Miss, Michigan, or Green Bay training site this week. Something tells me I would rather be in the salt mines of Siberia.

Our own Eagles are preparing this week to meet the Jones Bobcats who have proven themselves to be a worthy opponent so far this year. If I remember correctly, the first game the Hinds team won last year was against the Bobcats. I wonder if old lady luck is with us this year.



EAGLE STALWART — Richard Hawthorne, sophomore from Jackson Central, was the leading rusher in last week's loss to the East Central Warriors in Decatur. Hawthorne, an honorable-mention all stater last season, scored two touchdowns for Hinds.

Look For Victory

Hinds Footballers Meet Jones Bobcats Saturday

Coach Joe Renfroe and his Hinds Eagles take to the road this Saturday night in search of their first victory of the season against the Jones Bobcats in Ellisville.

The Bobcats sport a 2-1 record for the season while Hinds is struggling with a 0-3 mark. Jones' only loss of this season came at the hands of Holmes, who is currently in first place in the junior college conference. The two Bobcat wins were over Northwest and Copiah-Lincoln. Hinds has gone down in defeat to East Mississippi, Perkinston and East Central.

Jones started the season out with a 13-8 win over the Rangers of Northwest and then went on to defeat the Co-Lin Wolves 35-0. Their only loss was to Holmes Bulldogs, 13-10, who are tied for first place in the JC circuit.

The three teams that have turned away the Eagles this season are all tied for second place with a 2-1 records each.

Probable starting lineup for the Eagles in Saturday night's game: Randy Parker, quarterback; Richard Hawthorne, fullback; Louis Sierria, running back; Wiley Aldridge, flanker back; Derle Underwood, split end; Jim McBrayer, tight end; Robert Baker and Robert Hoseman, tackles; Mike Corbin and Doug Walsh, Guards; and Gerald Giles, center.

Oakes Announces Beginning Of New Intramural Season

Hinds intramural football season will once again appear on the campus after a year's lay-off according to William Oakes and Ron Evans, supervisors of the intramural program.

The teams that will be organized are as follows: Central, Choir, Greaves, Day Students, Eastside, Southside, Stadium (Vocational-Technical) and Shangri-La.

Students Eligible

Students belonging to any of these groups will be eligible to play as long as they are not a varsity letter winner from another university or on the Hinds Junior College team, at the time of the first game.

All boys playing in the intramural sports must play with the group that they are a member of and must play with the first team that they sign up with.

Meeting Set

There will be a meeting of the Co-captains or a representative of each team at the mens' gym, Thursday, September the 28 at three o'clock.

Games will be played at the north end of the practice field, starting at 3:30 p.m.

The first game of the season is expected to be played as soon as the teams are organized and a team roster is turned in to either supervisor.

Eagles Lose Third To Warriors, 41-25

Hinds' Eagles lost their third straight game of the season Thursday, September 21, succumbing to the East Central Junior College Warriors to the tune of 41-25.

Richard Hawthorne, 174-pound fullback, led the Eagle offensive attack scoring two TD's along with a 12-yard field goal by Berlon Wedgeworth and another touchdown by Wiley Aldridge.

East Central was quick to draw first blood, scoring with only two minutes gone in the first quarter. The TD came on a blocked Hinds punt as Billy Henderson blocked a Wedgeworth kick, scooped it up and took it the 18 yards to pay dirt. The PAT by Vernon Crotwell was good as the score stood 7-0.

Following the Warrior tally came a flash flood of Eagle power. First Hinds scored on a 46-yard pass play from Mike Ezell to Aldridge and then came right back minutes later with Richard Hawthorne scoring on an 11-yard run. Both PATS by Wedgeworth were good and Hinds had the lead for the first time in the ball game, 14-7.

Besides the 12-yard field goal in the second quarter, Hinds only scored one more touchdown. Hawthorne took it over from the five-yard line and Ezell ran the conversion for the score.

Library Receives $20,000 In Grants

By JUDY JOHNSON

Grants totaling over $20,000 have been received by the G. M. McLendon Library for use by the library during the year from June 1967-June 1968, according to Mrs. Virginia Riggs, Head Librarian.

The Library was notified of a $5,000 Basic Grant under authorization of the Higher Education Act. The library was asked to match $5,000 with this grant.

Books Ordered

A Supplimental Grant of $10,186 was also presented to the school. The money has been used for the selection and ordering of books. This selection has been primarily in the fields of Social Science, Literature, and Technology.

This list is composed of standard titles, classics, completing sets, and series. The 1967 list of "Books for College Libraries" was used by the Library staff in making the book buying list.

Cards Filed

Mrs. Virginia Riggs, Head Librarian, explained that a temporary card has been placed in the card catalogue according to the author's name. "These temporary cards are being placed in the card catalogue in order that the students will know that we have the books," stated Mrs. Riggs.

"If students have an urgent need for a book," she added, "we will be happy to process it for immediate use."

Four Faculty Members Attend Six Week Study Workshop

Four faculty members attended a six week Faculty Study workshop at Mississippi State University this summer, announced Academic Dean Floyd Elkins.

Miss Nell Pickett, English instructor; James Johnston, Math instructor; William Griffin, Chemistry instructor; and Bob Laster, Technical instructor studied the possibility of revision in Hinds technical curriculum. This study showed a more practical course of study that would be of benefit to the technical program.

The college technical program helps students interested in business to complete their study in a two year period. Modification in the general education courses such as English, Math, Science, and Social Science are being made in relation to the college transfer type courses.

These modifications do not make the courses less difficult than college transfer courses. However, practical emphasis is given to the professional interest.

Douglas Colston, a representative of the Ford Foundation, is correlating this project on the Hinds campus. Both the project and workshop are being sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

Phi Beta Lambda Initiates Members

All students, along with physical education teachers will see films on protection against fallout, occupying a fallout shelter and basic rules for survival during a nuclear attack.

The basic goal of civil defense is to save as many lives as possible in the event of nuclear attack on the United States. The purpose of this course is to inform the public on what procedures to follow in the event of an attack.

Several of the objectives of the course will be to provide technical background and an understanding of the effects of Nuclear War, and to describe protective measures an individual might take.

Hindsonian Cops National Recognition

Hinds' campus newspaper, "The Hindsonian," has received an 'A' rating from the National Newspaper Service and was rated second in the nation for its typography.

The National Newspaper Service rated the papers published during the second semester of the 1966-67 session. The Hindsonian received the Typography award in the junior college division from an appraisals conducted by the Graphic Arts Education Association.

'Good Paper'

Commenting on the paper, a judge said that, "I thought The Hindsonian was a good paper. I especially thought your editorial page and editorial columns were very well written. I find the make-up appealing and the headlines are well written."

The Hindsonian was graded on general apearance, editorial content, artwork, make up and typography and advertising. Divisions under editorial content included news pages, feature pages, editorials, sports coverage, and announcements and official business. The judges gave this section a score of 'A'.

General Excellence

In grading the papers published for the first semester of last year, the National Newspaper Service rated the Hindsonian with a score of A-plus and added the comment that, "this is a kind of paper that delights a judge because of its general excellence. All in all, a superb paper."

The Hindsonian is also rated by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association of New York and the Associated College Press of Minneapolis who rate the paper in relation to other junior college newspapers in the nation.

CSPA grades the newspaper on content, writing and editing, make up and general considerations. ACP grades on coverage, content and physical properties.

Excessive Absences Result In Failures

Academic Dean Floyd Elkins announced recently that there is a direct relationship between the amount of absences a student has and the amount of failures compiled for any particular course.

As pointed out by Elkins a great majority of the students placed on academic suspension have failed courses as a result of excessive absences.

"Students, on any particular day," stated Elkins, "will disregard the importance of class attendance. When this happens a number of times, the student finds himself in a position of being behind in course work to the extent that he cannot catch up."

Another factor pointed out was that absences are now recorded on the permanent record, and will follow the student the rest of his life. Students whose load drops below twelve hours because they are dropped from a course from excessive absences automatically terminates the enrollment of the student at Hinds.

"A requirement of each freshman sometimes overlooked," stated Elkins, "is the required enrollment in English and Physical Etucation." If a freshman student is dropped from either of these courses because of excessive absences, he is dropped from school. Students are requested to keep these requirements in mind," urged Elkins.

Valley Gas Donates $2000 In Equipment For Vo-Tech Air-Conditioning Students

BY GAYLE BECK

Mississippi Valley Gas has donated equipment valued at over $2,000 to the Hinds Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Department of the Vocational-Technical Division.

One complete summertime air-cool unit and one complete year round water-cool unit plus manuals and other printed material on this equipment have been given for student use.

"Great Achievement"

F. W. Williams, instructor in this department, commented on the new equipment, "This is a great achievement for our department to acquire this equipment. Now the students can get experience on actual operating equipment."

The students in this department were instructed by John Taylor, Head of Maintenance and Installation of Mississippi Valley Gas, September 21 and 22 on the installation and operation and maintenance of these air-conditioners.

Specialist Holds School

Charles Eskew, air-conditioning specialist from Bryant Air-Conditioning in New Orleans, also held a school for the students.

After the students have had time to assemble the air conditioners; Taylor will return and assist them in other procedures needed to operate and maintain the equipment.

Williams also stated the enrollment for this curriculum was up over fifty per cent from last year, and that all of the students possess a new interest in this equipment and all air-conditioning procedures and equipment.

Traffic Violations Reveal Disregard For Freedom

College campuses plagued with the problems of students parking illegally, speeding, or other traffic violations are pretty common these days.

These problems take on added dimension at institutions such as Hinds where a large segment of the student body commutes.

If parking places do not exist in sufficient numbers to handle all of Hinds' commuting students, it would not be evident until all students park in the areas designated to them.

Problems arise when dorm students use areas not open to them in order to keep from having to walk a few hundred feet to classes, the cafeteria, or the grill. Likewise, some commuting students would rather park illegally than have to trek from areas more distant, but legally open to them.

Speeding is another common, but uncalled for problem at Hinds. No student is in such a hurry that he cannot spare the extra few minutes it would take to drive off the campus at the posted speed.

Both commuting and dorm students with cars at Hinds enjoy almost complete freedom of movement. This is in direct contrast with the situation students face at other institutions. The university of Mississippi recently inaugurated regulations prohibiting the movement of student cars between the hours of 7:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

In an editorial in the Ole Miss student paper, the "Mississippian" it was noted that "this traffic ban is not a unique thing around college campuses. In fact, Ole Miss is one of the last universities around the nation to adopt the vehicle prohibition."

Admittedly such regulations would be impractible at an institution with such a large number of commuting students as Hinds, but it does serve to point out the freedom which students having cars on campus enjoy — a freedom which should be respected, and not abused. — EP.

Intramural Support Urged

Varsity football at Hinds has been going on for a month and is about to be joined by another type of football — that of the intramural classification.

Many teams have been formed for this league and just because the players wear flags instead of pads, does not mean that this is a game for soft-hearts.

A few games have already been played and the spirit for this program is unusually high, especially among the players. An endless cycle is in the making as this sport continues to bring more people to each game as spectators.

The enthusiasm of the crowd is contaminating the players and causing the games to become more and more interesting. With the interest of the students on the rise, still more fans are participating in the action.

Come out and see this type football, you will not be disappointed. This program needs the backing of the student body in order for it to succeed and it should get it. Journey on down to the practice field and see some football that you will not forget.

Progressive Senate Involves Students

Student government is rapidly getting its various branches functioning for effective action on behalf of Hinds students. Dormitory and club senator elections were held early this year to enable the senate to meet during the third week of school.

Approximately 40 senators, representatives, and other government officers attended the organizational meeting of the Senate on Tuesday, September 26, at 6:15 p.m. Senate President Bruce McArthur welcomed returning and new members and challenged the group to make the Senate a worthwhile link between students and the administration through mutual cooperation in the Senate.

Four commissioners were introduced by Bill Cole for Senate approval. All were accepted unanimously. The appointments are: Election Commissioner — Wally Byrd; Grounds and Buildings Commissioner — Woody Crapps; Rules and Procedures, Steve Graham; and Social Affairs Commissioner, Bob McLeod.

A comprehensive report on the Social Affairs activities given by Commissioner Bob McLeod. This commission, which began functioning during summer school, has already successfully coordinated numerous activities including a dance, a reception, and a film. A new project of the commission—Girl of the Month—was reviewed for the Senate.

Following the selection of Louis Walsh as faculty sponsor and advisor, each person present introduced himself by name and title, and a tentative roll was compiled before the meeting was adjourned.

The permanent meeting dates for the Senate will be announced. Visitors are always welcome and are encouraged to come to Senate meetings.

HJC Seen In 2000

Walk into a glass, go to the cafeteria, visit the grill — what do you find? People, gobs and gobs of people. Let's face it folks, this campus is crowded. If our school is feeling the first shock waves of the population explosion now, what will life at HJC be like in the year 2000?

Here is the typical day in the life of student No. 395046, members of the class of '02 (2002).

I awoke this morning, got up my nine roommates, dressed, and headed for breakfast. I found the end of the line behind the Vo-Tech building.

"Say, this is a pretty short breakfast line, we must have beaten the crowd," I remarked to the fellow in front of me.

"Breakfast you say! We're still waiting to be served supper."

Four hours later I finally got served. We had the usual: a choice of a do-nut flavored pill or a fried egg pill, along with grits, synthetic bacon, and toast. My luck — they were out of scrambled egg pills. I sat down with the guy who had been in front of me in the line.

"Don't believe I ever got your number."

"407739, but you can call me '4', everyone else does."

We finished our pills and headed out the door.

"I've got to go to class, '4'. Where are you headed?"

"To get in line for lunch."

Class was a bore. Computer A-4987b is one of the dullest teachers I've ever had.

Head Residents Supervise Large 'Families' In Dorms

By JOANN NEAL

"God could not be everywhere and therefore he made mothers," so states an old Jewish proverb. However, He did not stop there for today we have grandmothers, den mothers, and — dorm mothers.

Hinds has three dorm mothers: Mrs. Anne Liddell at Northside, Mrs. Wilma Freeman at Westside, and Mrs. Carolyn Kimball at Main.

Attended LSU

Mrs. Liddell attended Louisiana State University and then taught high school Latin for four years. She has two children — a son who is an insurance consultant in Jackson and a daughter who lives in New Mexico.

In her spare time, Mrs. Liddell enjoys sewing, reading and needlepoint. Of her position she states, "It's nice for mothers who have reared their children. I love the girls and I love being with them. My work is most rewarding."

Antique Collection

"I never get enough to read," comments Westside's Mrs. Freeman, who is also an avid antique collector. She attended high school and business college in Alabama, and has one son. Prior to taking a position as a dorm mother, she was a medical secretary.

"My grandmother used to say idleness is the devil's workshop," quotes Mrs. Freeman. By no means idle in her spare moments, Mrs. Freeman does needlework and floral arrangements.

Port Gibson is the home of Main's Mrs. Kimball. There, she attended public school and Port Gibson Female College. She has two children, a son who is an executive with Mississippi Valley Gas Company of Jackson, and a daughter who teaches at Davis Elementary School in Jackson.

Arranged Flowers

Floral arranging is also Mrs. Kimball's favorite pasttime, and previously she was the manager of a florist's shop. Living at one time near Chamberlain Hunt Academy and having a teen-age daughter gives her reason to describe her home as being like "open house."

These three head residents, Mrs. Liddell, Mrs. Freeman, and Mrs. Kimball are assisted by Monitors, who are selected by the Dean of Women for the purpose of assisting the Head Resident in dorm meetings and all operations of the dormitory.

These, then, are the capable hands in which mothers entrust the care of their daughters, knowing from experience that "when there is a mother in the house, matters speed well."

Communist Seeds Planted At Colleges

The series of comments that begin in this issue of the Hindsonian are based on my own philosophy that patriotic American ideals must be perpetuated if our great United States of America is to survive as a free nation. Honesty will not permit me to do otherwise.

Every word written will be intended to reflect honor and credit, not only to this institution, but to everyone whom would be associated with the content of this paper.

Although certain philosophies, factions, and individuals will be the target of criticism, these attacks will be based on true facts.

For the past several years FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has warned in books, articles, speeches, and testimony about three primary projects of the Communists in the United States: (1) Twisting the minds of campus youngsters with communist dogma; (2) Exploitation and infiltration of Civil rights movements; and (3) the silencing of anti-communist voices.

In recent years, the fruits of communist seed planted across America has been blossoming forth on campuses and streets. Evidence of the communists' subversion can be seen among hippie and pacifist groups. The communists primary target is America's youth. Their goal is to lower the morals and ambitions of America's youth by causing them to lose faith in God and country.

However; anti-communist individuals and organizations are becoming more and more aware of the tactics used by the communists. The people of America must inform themselves and teach their children to love God and our American way of life. They must be taught the fundamental meaning of "Americanism," which will make them patriotic individuals concerned about their future and the cause of freedom.

Freedom is taken for granted by many Americans. Little do Americans realize the dangers of the Communist threat. When these dangers are recognized more, better off is Freedom's Cause.

Americans must not be ashamed to speak out for what is morally right and against what is morally wrong. America must stand on the firm ground of Constitutional Government. If our nation is to survive free and independent from mob rule. Law and order must be preserved and individual convictions must be heard.

Grill vs. Library

Occasionally the Hindsonian runs a column or series of interviews with students concerning some aspect of student life as they see it on the campus. When I receive my copy of the paper I look for these interviews and have found them interesting, informative, and useful in that the candid and frank opinions of students, even though some of the answers are flippant and numerous, many of them indicate a great deal of insight into campus life.

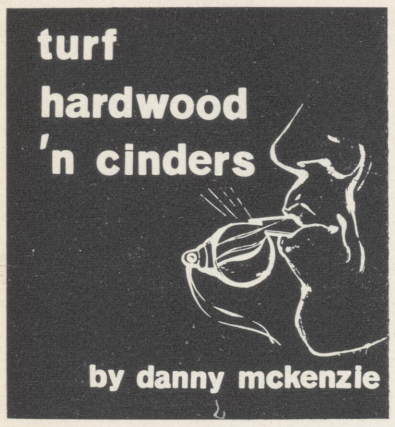
Last year when our new Student Union was opened a series of interviews was conducted and published in the student opinion column of the Hindsonian. As I recall, the students were asked to state what they liked and what they did not like about the Student Union Building. Most of the answers were complimentary and indicated a strong feeling of pride on the part of the students for this facility, but running through many of the answers, especially those made by freshmen, was the comment that the grill was too small.

As casual glance by anyone visiting the grill, especially during the morning hours, would cause one to think that this criticism was justified. I noted that most of these comments relative to the lack of space in the grill came from freshmen who had only a few weeks before arrived on the college campus and were thoroughly enjoying the social life and the meeting facilities the grill afforded.

We noticed last week that even during the evening hours, from seven until nine, more students were enjoying the social facilities of the grill than were using the study opportunities the library affords.

A college grill is designed to accommodate only a small part of the student body for a short length of time and is not to be used as a social gathering place for groups to meet and carry on long, extended periods of visitation. Many freshmen will be shocked to find at the end of the grading period that the many hours they have spent enjoying the companionship of their friends over a Coca-Cola in the grill could be much better spent preparing work that has been assigned. One of the major adjustments a college student must make is in the proper utilization of time. For some this adjustment is more painful and occasionally expensive both in time and money.

We want your years at Hinds to be both profitable for you and enjoyable, but in order for this desire to be realized, you, the student, must exercise the proper self-discipline that will insure some degree of academic success. Anything less will result in disappointment, failure, and frustration.



Pie Eaten By Bear

Now didn't I tell you folks that the Bear would be back? Ask good old Pie Vann down at the University of Southern Mississippi if you have any doubts about his return. Vann's club had the unfortunate task of trying to whip the Crimson Tide from Alabama.

The reason this is so unfortunate a task, is because the Tide had just come off a 37-37 tie to somebody named Florida State. Now Bear doesn't take to kindly to anyone tying his little bitty country boys and he laid it to the Southerners, 25-3. Playing Alabama after they were tied the week before is like asking LBJ if you can borrow his phone after he has just finished talking to Mao Tse Tung.

Johnny Vaught and his Ole Miss Rebels held off a second half rally to defeat the Kentucky Wildcats, 26-13. Hats should be taken off to the Ole Miss quarterback, Bruce Newell. Newell proved himself a true champion in that game by just playing, much less tossing two touchdown passes. The Rebels quarterback received quite a shock after the Memphis State game the preceeding week, when he learned that his father passed away in the first half of the game with the Tigers. One who can play under this extreme adverse conditions is without a doubt a true champion.

Purdue University Boilermakers provided quite a shock for the football fans across the nation Saturday when they upset the "greatest college football team ever" by the score of 28-21. I guess the Notre Dame football coach, Ara what's his name, has some fun and games planned for this week's practices.

The Hinds Eagles are returning home this weekend to meet the Holmes Bulldogs and I don't imagine that they would be too awful disturbed if there was a crowd on hand Saturday night. Have no fear, I doubt seriously if anyone would label the student body as a bunch of sissies if we came out and yelled for them.

V'ball Tournament To Open October 9

Hinds Women's Recreational Association will present their annual intramural volleyball championship games starting Monday, October 9.

Each girl's dorm is scheduled to play the other two girl's dorms twice. Practices have been set up for each dorm for the first week in October.

Later in the year the organization plans to stage the annual powder puff football game. This game consists of competition between the freshmen and sophomore girls.

WRA is open to all interested women students for an annual fee of one dollar. Anyone who would like to join this organization should sign the list on the bulletin board in her dormitory.

Intramural Grid Season Opens With Two Closely Fought Battles

By BILL SUMMERLIN

Southside beat Eastside 7-6 Monday and Charlie Brown's Allstars dropped Shangri-La 13-0 Tuesday, to start off the new intramural football season.

Southside's touchdown came on a pass from Jimmy Powers to Jimmy Bryant. The PAT which proved to be the edge of the game was a pass from Powers to Johnny Ragsdale, a quickie in the end-zone. Eastside's tally came on a run by Bear.

Charlie Brown's Allstars scored one TD in the first quarter and one more in the third to beat Shangri-La 13-0. The first score came on a run by Roger Craft. The PAT was a pass from Donny Freeth to John Skinner.

Charlie Brown's second TD was a long pass from Freeth to end Randy McHan. The PAT was no good on an attempted quickie over the line.

Eagles Face Bulldogs Seeking First Victory

Coach Joe Renfroe and his Hinds Eagles return to their home grounds this Saturday night at 7:30 p. m. to face the Holmes Bulldogs, who are currently tied for second place in the JC circuit.

The Eagles, coming off a 33-10 loss to the Jones Bobcats, will face their opponent for the first time this season with a healthy squad. Holmes is in a five-way tie for second place with Perkinston, Jones, East Central, and East Mississippi, this season and are favored in this game.

Holmes, 3-1, for the season, has turned away Copiah-Lincoln, Northwest, and Jones while losing only to the East Central ballclub. Hinds' four losses on the year have been to East Mississippi, Perkinston, East Central, and Jones.

Jones Downs HJC By Score Of 33-0

Hinds Eagles were defeated for the fourth time this season as the Jones Bobcats turned them away by the score of 33-0 in Ellisville.

One touchdown in the first quarter, three in the second, and a final tally in the third, provided the Bobcats with their third win of the season with only one loss to their record.

Hinds offense could not muster an attack as Mike Ezell's and Randy Parker's passes failed to give the Eagles any punch.

Richard Hawthorne, Mike Corbin and Doug Walsh led the Eagles defense which held the Bobcats to only one score in the second half. Walsh recovered a fumble on the 10-yard line but the Eagles were unable to scratch as Berlon Wedgeworth's field goal was off the mark.

Computer Service Lists Scholarships

Students seeking aid in obtaining information about scholarships and other financial aids can now take advantage of a system offered by North American Educational Computer Services of Princeton, New Jersey.

The service will employ a computer to match an individual student's qualifications to the requirements of over 700,000 items of national scholarships, grants, loans and other forms of assistance totaling $500 million which are contained in the computer's memory bank.

A student wishing to use the ECS service will complete a highly detailed questionnaire about his background and aims. This information is fed into the computer which compares the student's qualifications with the requirements for various financial aids.

All names and addresses of donors offering financial aid for which the student is eligible, as well as the number amounts and pertinent data about the scholarships, are typed out by the computer in a personalized letter to the student.

Cost for the ECS service is $15. Stuents seeking further information may contact: North American Educational Computer Services, Inc., Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

had the nerve to give us over five minutes of computer homework. It acts as though it's class is the only one we have. Whoever programmed it must have been a real son of a 3362.

On my way to the grille I stopped at the library to look at the Scan-a-paper. The headline read,

"President Lynda Byrd Johnson announce possible peace talks with Viet Nam and Detroit."

At the grille I saw a hundred people I knew so I sat down at the table with them. . . I bit into a cheeseburger pill.

"Bro-ther!" said campus playboy 300799, "Will you look at that girl over there. What a 4200!"

"I hate to puncture your dreams, 300, but have you heard that the administration is going to ban all skirts that are over 24 inches above the knee?"

"You're kidding me. What do they think this is, the twentieth century?"

It was time for my next class so I left the grille. "Advanced Button Pushing" was one of my smaller classes. There were only 1304 in the class. On clear days I could see the teacher.

From class I went to get in line for supper. I found the end of the line on the fifty yard line of Eagle stadium. Six hours later I was diving into some synthetic roast beef. Unfortunately I sat at a table right next to the line and some of the poor hungry soles who had been in line for some time kept grabbing at my food. A few jabs with the fork and they usually retreated.

Finished with supper, I headed for the dorm. "Hi, 39," said my nine roommates.

Time to get up my homework. I plugged in my computer and inserted the assignment. All those buttons to push. A student's work is never done.

Dr. Elkins Requests Students To Check All Transfer Needs

By JUDY JOHNSON

All students transferring to a senior college after leaving Hinds should be especially concerned about course work required by the institution to which they are transferring, according to Floyd Elkins, Academic Dean.

Each student has a program advisor that will remain with him as long as the student is enrolled at Hinds. If a student has a question regarding required courses for a specific program of study, he should contact his program advisor.

Study Catalogues

"It is also recommended," stated Elkins, "that a student check a current catalogue from the four institutions to which he plans to transfer." All senior colleges in Mississippi have traditionally accepted courses from Hinds transfer students. However, a problem arises when the student is faced with whether or not all of his hours will be applied toward the degree that he is pursuing.

It is more advantageous to the student if a decision can be made early, on his major area of study and the senior college to which he wishes to transfer. When this decision is made, Hinds can offer him the same courses that he would take at a four year institution if he had attended that institution from the beginning.

Under Title III

HJC Eligible For Federal Aid Loan As Part Of Ten-College Consortium

By JACK COPPENBARGER

Hinds Junior College was named as one of several colleges which are eligible to receive federal aid under a Title III briefing held in Washington, D. C. on October 2.

President Robert M. Mayo and Dean of Men, Rosser Wall attended the Washington meeting where the details of federal loans and aids were discussed.

Members include Oakland Community College, Michigan; Miami-Dade, Florida; Essex County Community College, Newark, New Jersey; Wm. Rainey Harper College, Chicago area; Chicago Heights Jr. College; Catonsville Community College, Catonsville, Maryland; Hinds, plus two others soon to be named.

National Newspaper Week Praises Power Of Press

"No nation ancient or modern ever lost the liberty of freely speaking, writing or publishing their sentiments ,but forthright lost their liberty in general and became slaves," wrote Peter Zenger in 1733, who was one of the foremost fighters for freedom of the press.

Zenger's comments should be well taken this week as the nation celebrates National Newspaper Week. The theme of this week is "Newspapers get things done," and it is based not only on the action role played by newspapers throughout American history, but also on the accomplishments of today's newspapers in getting things done for their communities.

For instance newspapers help education, public health and safety, religion, the arts, sports, recreation, youth programs, voter registration and get-out-the vote and every worthwhile cause.

Twenty-five years after Zenger's statement, Thomas Jefferson wrote in the Marquis de LaFayette, that the "only security of all is a free press. The force of public opinion cannot be resisted when necessary to keep the water pure." Freedom of speech and freedom of the press to publish the truth, therefore, received high priority in the framing of the Constitution when 20 years later the Colonists fought for and won their freedom from Britian.

A newspaper is an instrument, a very powerful instrument which can be used for or against political candidates, union leaders, or peoples reputations. Since it is the most wide-spread medium of communication today, its influence is felt far and wide.

It is not a private attack force to be used by a publisher simply for the purpose of furthering his own personal interests. This would be cheating the public out of the truth, and would be against one of the most important principles in our society.

Despite the widely publicized deaths of a few metropolitan newspapers, the newspaper business has never been in better health. There are more newspapers being read today than ever before. Readers spent more than two billion dollars last year to buy and read daily newspapers and about $85 billion for weekly newspapers. Newspapers have continued their growth despite the entry of two major competitors in the advertising field in the past 35 years: radio and television.

While newspapers are in the throes of an accelerating technological revolution they are also facing an information revolution. Editors of most daily newspapers are responding with more news more attractively presented, cutting through 20th century complexities to orient readers to their world and help them understand the bewildering array of events that pour upon them as a result of todays "information explosion."

But between the news of far-away events of this world and outer space and that of the suburbs and rural communities where millions of people live there is an "information gap" which weekly and small daily newspapers try to bridge.

Newspapers, dailies and weeklies, are more important today than ever in people's lives and better newspapers are making a better world. Support your newspapers, whether they be the "Hindsonian", the "Jackson Daily News" or "The New York Times." Your support for the full facts presented truthfully and accurately will keep newspapers alive and the world free.

Drive With Care

Last year four Hinds students were victims of tragic, untimely and needless traffic deaths.

Their tragedies caused unmeasurable grief and loss to their families and happened at the time in their young lives just when they were blossoming into young manhood and young womanhood with a life of promise and usefulness before them — so we thought. But a slight error on some driver's part in judging speed and distance, or a lapse in attention for just a moment, or a slight miscalculation of the road condition or traffic situation over the next little hill or around the next curve was the difference between life and death for these fine young people who were our students and friends.

Those of you who commute from Jackson are driving twice daily over one of the most dangerous and antiquated stretches of road in this state. With the growing volume of traffic Highway 18 is required to serve this drive is becoming more hazardous and extreme care and continual alertness is the price you must pay to stay alive and healthy. Every year students are involved in serious accidents on this highway. Too many of them result in fatalities.

The modern automobile has far outstripped the capacity of our antiquated roads to handle safely the growing numbers of these sleek, shiny, powerful machines that can in a split second become a tangled mass of ugly, twisted metal and shattered glass.

Better driving habits must be observed on the drivers of the college campus, because it is here we have a mixture of pedestrian and vehicle traffic that can snuff out a life or cause a long, expensive and painful injury. The two most hazardous traffic spots on our campus are the street in front of Greaves Hall where pedestrians must cross a heavily traveled college street, and the other danger spot is on the other end of this same street as it passes through the faculty apartment area just before leaving the campus.

Many small tots play in the too small yards of these apartments and are prone to dash out in the street in pursuit of a ball or toy or just simply to cross the street to a neighbor's yard. Caution signs have been ordered placed in this spot and Campus Security has been instructed to issue traffic tickets to violators. We don't want your money, but we don want you to drive carefully and safely on the campus and on the highways.

Machine Destroys

Administration offices recently received a "Destroy It" machine which will be used for disposal of old papers and outdated items, according to Business Manager, Grady Sheffield.

Miss Rosemary Clooney, Mitch Ryder Featured At Annual Mississippi Fair

BY GAYLE BECK

Thrills! Cotton Candy! Mitch Ryder!

All of these plus hearbeating rides, exciting singer Rosemary Clooney, traditional food, old and new exhibits, and energetic people contribute to the annual Mississippi State Fair October 10-17.

The "Fair" has become a institution with most Hinds students as a once a year "let yourself go" week.

During the first eight-day fair the midway will be open each day and night to supply side shows, rides, and a chance to try and win a few prizes.

New Rides

For the brave a new "Rotor", in which the floor drops out, leaving the person suspended will be featured on the midway along with a "Zyklon", which is a combination of the "Wild Mouse" and the "Roller Coaster" and a new boat ride in Kiddyland.

This 108th year of the fair is seeing a few changes, a new 12 acre parking lot, a widened midway, a new fire-unit building, and of course two great coliseum shows.

Rosemary Clooney will star in a show each night October 11-14 along with magicians, acrobats, puppets, trained dogs, soft-shoe dancers, and others.

Mitch Ryder along with his ten piece band and the Illusion and the Chicago Loop will highlight another show in the Coliseum October 16-17.

Livestock Exhibits

In addition to these attractions there will be livestock showing in the barn exhibits. Judging will take place every day, with prizes totaling over $50,000.

Of the 250,000 people expected to pass through the fair gates, 10,000 are hoped to be members of the 4-H Clubs of Mississippi, expecting to make it their biggest and best year at the fair.

Senate Plans Homecoming Festivities

Our second Senate meeting was held October 3. Senate President Bruce McArthur called the meeting to order and proceeded with the orders of the day; the election of officers.

The new officers for the Senate of 1967-68 are: Barry McCracken, Vice President; Judy Webb, Clerk; Bruce Gates, Treasurer.

Also the Public Relations Commissioner, Ed Payne, was appointed after some discussion along with four Judicial Council members. Clark Colvin, Judy Beall, Mary Ella Watkins and James Norton.

It now seems that the student government is fully operable and ready for business.

The most important item on the agenda for the next several meetings will be that of Homecoming. This year's Homecoming is just in the planning stages but already it promises to be one of the best ever. A number of committees have been formed both among alumni and students.

We certainly hope we will have a great many student activities to offer including a winning game.

We can have a great Homecoming if all students will take an active part in the activities. We are asking all clubs and organizations on campus to decorate an assigned area. This shall be discussed in more detail at the next senate meeting.

Anyone having any idea pertaining to student activties are urged to contact any member of the student government.

Once again, we ask that all students do their part to make this Homecoming the best yet of the past fifty years.

Indigestion At Fair

For those of you who were too cheap, or too smart, to go to the State Fair this year, your intrepid reporter took on the task. If the following reports sound a bit unfair, it should be remembered that the reporter was suffering from indigestion at the time.

The first thing I noticed about the fair was that several million people were already there. Finding a parking place was a problem.

A parking place was secured in the scenic backwater area of the Pearl River from a friendly gent who only charged five dollars and told me to avoid the areas marked "Quicksand."

My first stop at the fair was a gambling joint. It wasn't that I wanted to spend $20.00 trying to win a $2.00 stuffed bear, but the friendly man behind the stand would not stop twisting my arm.

I might add here that I did win a bear, though I don't know why. All I told the man was, "My Uncle, the Chief of Police, is really going to be disappointed if I don't get anything."

Next I stopped to try a new ride, the "Stomach Twister." I gave a $5.00 bill to the friendly ticket lady who was smoking a cigar. I asked the friendly ticket lady how come all the change I got back was a slug, three pennys and a Roger Maris bubble gum card. Next I asked the friendly ticket lady to please stop cursing so loud.

A rather weird looking Gypsy with a ring through his nose and a portrait of the Lawrence Welk Band on his arm strapped me in. I asked the friendly Gypsy if he could loosen the strap a little so I could breathe. Next I told the Gypsy to forget I ever mentioned it and to please put away his knife.

Later that night I rode the bump cars. The object in bump cars is to bash into the other fellow before he can get at you. Just like in real life.

Being a real hot-blooded lad I took in the girlie show where I watched the girls gyrate to shouts of "Put it back on, baby."

Like I said, if I sound a bit hard on the fair, it's because whatever I ate gave me a stomach ache. Maybe it was the three hot dogs, or that fried chicken, or that taffey, or the candy apples, or those two hamburgers, or . . .

The new club members were chosen according to their good citizenship records, willingness to work, and readiness to participate in programs that will improve Hinds.

Plan Projects

Several projects are in the planning stages by the club of which one major activity will be the sponsorship of the homecoming dance held after the ball game.

"We are very pleased with each of these new members and feel that they have a lot to offer the club," commented club president Jack Coppenbarger. "In planning our projects this year, we will strive to help the community by upholding the International theme of "Leadership Through Responsibility," and to serve the campus in making it's 50th year the best possible."

Tide Drowns Rebels

Has anybody here seen sweet thang? Sweet thang, in this case is Johnny Vaught, head coach at Ole Miss. I think that the Bear ran him out of the country this past weekend in front of no telling how many millions of viewers.

That game Saturday, in which the Crimson Tide defeated the Rebels, was more like a Grantland Rice version of "Animal Farm." The Crimson Tide was coached by Bear Bryant, with Snake Stabler and Cat Homan doing the damage to the Rebels on the field. After it was over, the group of football players from Oxfordtown had gone to the dogs.

I see Notre Dame is trying to get back their number one rating. Yep, they laid it on Iowa 56-6. Ara what's his face dearly loves to run up those scores so he will be certain of a shot at the big goal. Of course, the score does not necessarily mean that he ran up the score on purpose but after his annihilation of Southern California last year following the farce with Michigan State, and after an earlier season loss to Purdue this season. All the facts point toward that poor display of sportsmanship.

The Hot Dogs from the University of Houston, got shot out of their saddle, this past weekend, also. Some small, hick team named North Carolina State, socked it to them 16-6. Houston blew their cool in that fine stadium,the Astrodome, they played in. It's getting where you can't trust anybody these days.

Charlie Shira's Mississippi State Bulldogs, finally won a game. They turned away the previously number 10 ranked team in the nation, Texas Tech, by a score of 7-3. Maybe those Bulldogs will come out of their pens now and win some ball games. That man, Shira has some pressure on him and if he produces a winning ball team he ought to be named coach of the year.

The way Southern Mississippi is playing this year, Ole Miss and State had better watch their step. The Southerners from Hattiesburg crushed the Tampa eleven 48-0 and they gave the Tide from Alabama a rough time the week before. It sure would be different if both Ole Miss and State lost their homecoming games this year. USM has respective homecoming dates with them this season, and some surprises could be in store.

Speaking of surprises, don't count Hinds all the way out of this junior college thing yet. They racked up two TD's in the final period last week against Holmes and in doing so proved the old adage, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going" to be true in every respect.

This past weekend some folks even stayed on campus and added a little pep to the ball game. It was only a few but it was a definite improvement over the past home games.

Holmes Bulldogs Bring Hinds Eagles Fifth Consecutive Defeat Of Season

By BILL SUMMERLIN

Hinds Eagles were turned away from their first victory of the season, Saturday night, falling at the hands of the Holmes Bulldogs 31-14.

Richard Hawthorne scored both of the Eagles' touchdowns in the final period on a one-yard plunge and 40-yard pass from Mike Ezell. Raul Sierra scored the first PAT on an off-tackle play but Ezell was dropped before he could score the second extra point.

Ezell moved the ball into scoring range with passes to ends Wiley Aldridge and Brian Rowan. Sierra carried from the 20-yard line to the 8 and then Hawthorne moved it to the one before scoring his first TD.

Minutes later, Ezell found Hawthorne in the open and hit him for the longest score of the night. Ezell was stopped short on his try for the point after and the score stood 31-14.

Eagles Seek Upset

Pearl River Cats Visit Hinds Campus Thursday

By DANNY McKENZIE

Hinds Eagles continue their search for their first victory of the season, Thursday night on the Hinds campus, as they meet the Pearl River Wildcats at 7:30 p. m.

Hinds, with five losses to their side of the board, are still eyeing their first victory of the season. The losses have come at the hands of East Mississippi, East Central, Jones, Holmes, and Perkinston.

Pearl River won their season opener against the Itawamba Indians, but have not managed to win since then. Their record stands at 1-3, with their three defeats coming at the hands of Southwest, Mississippi Delta, and East Central.

Hinds' Head Coach Joe Renfroe commented, "We are ready to start playing ball now. The two touchdowns in the final period proved to the boys that they are capable of playing the brand of football necessary to win."

"We can win our next five games if we play ball and eliminate the same mistakes that we have been making since the first game," Renfroe continued.

The head mentor added that, "The team was definitely tired that late in the game but they shook it off and got after them."

In the Hinds-Pearl River series dating back to 1941, the record is all even with both teams winning eleven contests while one game was decided in a tie. Hinds defeated the Wildcats last season, 27-7.

Probable starting lineup for Thursday night's game is: Mike Ezell, quarterback; Raul Sierra, running back; Richard Hawthorne, fullback; Derle Underwood, flankerback; Wiley Aldridge, split end; Jim McBrayer, tight end; Robert Baker and Robert Hoseman, tackles; Mike Corbin and Doug Walsh, guards; and Gerald Giles, center.

"Since scoring those two touchdowns, the team has shown definite improvement in their spirit and their elimination of the mistakes that have been plaguing us for some time now. Pearl River has a good team, but I believe that we are ready for them," Renfroe summed up.

Foulks Hits For Three TD's As Central Scores 32-0 Win

By DANNY McKENZIE

Hinds intramural program closed out its first full week of competition Thursday afternoon, October 5, with Jay Foulks leading the Central Rebels over the Greaves Bombers by the score of 32-0.

Foulks, quarterback for the Rebels, connected on three touchdown passes and ran for one more. He hit Gary Simmons, Mike Kister, and Gary Childs for his touchdowns all in the first half before relinquishing the signal calling duties to Kister who passed to Jim Nastasi for the final score of the day.

Early in the first period, Foulks hit Simmons from 25 yards out and then ran the extra point himself to make the score 7-0. After Greaves failed to mount a drive, Foulks again took to the air and hit Childs from 60 yards out. Foulks found Simmons open in the end zone and hit him with the PAT pass to make the score 14-0.

The Bombers again failed to move the ball and this time Kister was on the receiving end of a 35 yard pass. The PAT to Simmons went incomplete and the Rebels held a 20-0 lead at halftime.

Early in the third period, after moving the ball deep into Bomber territory with passes to Simmons and Natasi, Foulks rolled around end from 12 yards out. The conversion attempt failed and the score was 26-0.

The Greaves team began to move the ball on the Rebels late in the third quarter but were short of the goal by he Central defense.

Early in the fourth period, Kister took the helm and tossed his TD pass of the day to Natasi from 10 yards out. Kister was stopped short on his conversion attempt and the final score was Central 32-Greaves, 0.

Perkinston Bulldogs Drop Miss. Delta To Leave No Unbeaten Team In Circuit

Mississippi Delta dropped its first game of the season to the Perkinston Bulldogs, 22-14 last week, to leave no one in the Mississippi Junior College Conference with an unblemished record.

Currently in the circuit race for the flag, there is a five-way tie for first place with East Mississippi, Perkinston, East Central, Holmes, and Jones sharing the honors. Only a half game back are Delta and Southwest with 3-1 records.

In the pre-season poll, Northwest and Perkinston were favored to take the honors with Itawamba picked to give them a close run for their money. Perkinston has maintained the coaches' choice, but Northwest is floundering with a 1-4 record while Itawamba has yet to win a game in their four outings.

Rowan Announces Band Members

By ED PAYNE

Approximately 60 students compose this year's Eagle band, a group which, under the leadership of Director of Bands Albert Rowan, provides the musical tempo for Hinds.

This year the band has already begun adding mileage to what is probably a record for traveling college bands with trips to New Orleans and various Eagle football games over the state.

Ole Miss Grad

Director of the Eagle band since 1955, Rowan was an instrumental music graduate of the University of Mississippi and worked for three years at the University of Minnesota.

Drum major for the Eagle band is sophomore Barbara Gay Shaw, a graduate of Crystal Springs High School.

But there is more to the Eagle band than its field unit. A special division of the Eagle band, the stage band, is active in performing for conventions and parties.

Administrative Members Attend College Conference

By JACK COPPENBARGER

Members of the Hinds administration attended a Junior-Senior College Conference held on the campus of Mississippi State University, October 9 and 10.

Attending from Hinds were President and Mrs. Robert M. Mayo, Dr. Floyd Elkins, Academic Dean; Miss Mildred Herrin, Registrar; A. L. Denton, Dean of Students and Miss Fay Marshall, Dean of Women.

Transfer Problems

"This is the one time in the year junior college and senior college personnel have an opportunity to discuss the problems of the transfer student," stated Dr. Mayo. "Registrars, Deans and Presidents meet in separate groups and together for the purpose of finding solutions to common problems.

The session ran from 9:00 a.m. on Monday when educators registered to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday when the General Session was adjourned.

Special Addresses

Special addresses at the meeting were given by Dr. T. D. Young, chairman of the Department of English at Vanderbilt University who spoke on "A University Looks at Core Curriculum." Also speaking was Dr. Carl L. McQuagge, dean of the School of Education and Psychology at the University of Southern Mississippi who spoke on "Status Report on Junior College-Senior College Core Curriculum in Mississippi."

Group meetings for discussion of core curriculum were held for Presidents, Academic Deans, Registrars and Adminissions Officers and on Student Personnel Officers. Registrar Mildred Herrin, co-chaired the program on Registrars along with Dr. W. Alton Bryant, vice-chancellor of the University of Mississippi.

This meeting was a continuation of a similar one held on the campus of the University of Southern Mississippi on June 28 and 29.

Compact Requirements

One of the key issues discussed at the Southern Meeting and the State meeting was the setting up of a General Education Compact which listed the requirements for transfer students from the junior college level to the senior college level.

The 36 hours of credit included in the requirements for junior college transfers include six semester hours of English composition; six semester hours of literature; 12 hours of social science of which 6 must be in history; 6 semester hours of science; and 6 semester hours which include from 3 to 6 semester hours in mathematics or from zero to 3 semester hours in fine arts.

Details Stated

The details of the requirements compact state in part: "If a student transfers before he has completed the general education requirements of the junior college, he will be required to meet the general education rquirements of the University.

"Certain professional curricula such as teacher education have certain particular general education requirements which are not listed to meet these professional requirements.

"It is not necessary for a student to graduate from a junior college to be within the compact. If he has completed the general education requirements but has not graduated, his transcript will be marked, "General Requirements, Met."

or; however, he will not be able to use all the courses that he has taken, in his new major area. This condition would exist if he would enroll in a senior college as a freshman and change his major also.

A 36-hour course is listed on page 53 of the current Hinds catalogue which most of the senior institutions in Mississippi will accept. The "undecided" student should pursue this core curriculum during his first year at Hinds.

Elkins Announces Grant Applications To Upgrade Faculty

By JUDY JOHNSON

Hinds has applied for grants to meet new standards of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools which include up-grading of the faculty and curriculum, according to Academic Dean, Floyd Elkins.

Forty per cent of the faculty would be requested to attain one year beyond their Masters Degree. In each departmnt with four or more members, at least one member should have at least two years beyond the Master's Degree.

According to Elkins, few junior or senior colleges have met this requirement at the present time. In regard to the up-grading of the curriculum, each department is considering the curriculum now offered, with the need for modification. Emphasis is being placed on all types of audio-visual educational media.

Hinds hopes to have a learning resources center to include self-tutoral carrels with both audio-visual and recording devices in each. In addition, the college is planning for closed circuit television.

At the present time each department is working for the future by making plans in regard to the use of the different types of educational media available.

DROP PROCESS

Registrar, Mildred Herrin announced October 20 as the last day for dropping courses with a grade other than WF appearing on their record.

"If students plan to drop a course," Miss Herrin stated, "it would be to their advantage to do so before this date."

Freedom Of College Life Tests Freshman's Maturity

Six weeks of the first semester in the 1967-68 session at Hinds have now passed. According to registration figures approximately two-thirds of the students enrolled at our college this year are freshmen. During this period of time they have been introduced to the college routine.

By and large college is an entirely new experience for these students. It may at first glance appear to be a wonderful new world.

No longer are there the "watchdogs" such as fathers, mothers, and others to oversee the students actions as was the case in previous educational experiences.

It is all too easy for the freshman taking his first bite of real academic freedom to over indulge himself.

A freshman finds that he can easily get away with not preparing himself for lectures in large classes. Indeed, he can even take the choice of going or not going to class. If he does not take advantage of his chance for a higher education, he will not be immediately responsible to anyone except himself.

The freshman year at college will determine to a large degree the course that the rest of his college years and life will take: Whether he will reach mental maturity and realize that he must develop enough self-reliance to carry his own load, or whether he will remain immature, shirking all real responsibility.

Six weeks of the first semester have passed. It is a good time to re-evaluate what tendency you have begun to develop. Has it been to take on the burdens that your new freedom has given you, or merely to take advantage of them?—E.P.

Students Abuse Dayrooms

Designers of the Student Union Building courteously considered the needs of day students when they began plans for the building's construction. These students have at their use two rooms furnished with lockers, tables, chairs, soft drink machines and restroom facilities.

The use of these rooms, is not a right extended to the students — rather it is a privilege. This privilege may shortly be revoked if the students do not realize this fact and begin to take better care of these facilities.

It is a common sight to walk in the day room and find paper strewn on the floor. Bottles are piled high on the tables instead of in the drink boxes provided. And worse yet, food and drink cups, some still containing food, are thrown on the floor, where they are ground into the surface and degrade the appearance and purpose of the rooms.

Many visitors tour the Student Union Building periodically throughout the year. Hinds officials are particularly proud of the Union building and are always happy to show it off.

Do not let these visitors be disappointed when seeing the facilities at Hinds; be proud of these privileges at your disposal and take care of them. Remember, the example set by you, the student,is the image that visitors take home with them.—JC.

Topics Told For 'Letters To Editor'

BY GAYLE BECK

"Letters to the Editor" has become an important part of many newspapers as a way for everyone to express his own viewpoint.

If you were required right now to write a "letter to the editor" expressing an opinion, complaint, or praise on some topic concerning Hinds Junior College, politics, Vietnam, or any state or national current question, what comment would you like to write? This is the question asked to several of the students.

RONNIE NOBLE — No smoking and drinking in the lounge would be my major complaint. We have enough common sense not to tear up what is ours. I would like to see the pool hall hours changed.

GLENDA CLIBURN — In my letter I would complain about our policy in Vietnam. Too many boys are being killed and no one knows why. No one seems to care. If we don't care as citizens of the United States, who will? It is our responsibility.

GEORGE EARLES III — It is ridiculous for girls to have the rules here that have been set up for them. Girls in college are old enough to make their own decisions. If she doesn't, she has to learn and college is a good place. College is where boys learn to get along on their own. Hinds, girls are held back: they are restricted to such a degree they aren't able to participate in college life. It is more to college education than books.

BRUCE McARTHUR — We need to be in Vietnam to stop communism, but the present administration is going about it in the wrong way. We aren't bringing enough force to bear on the situation. We need to go ahead and end the war. Let's get in or get out!

SHERRY RAYBURN — I enjoy the student lounge here. It is a very good place for the students to get together and talk or study. A lounge is need in every school for relaxation. I would compliment the Hinds administration on this.

DAVE SMITH — Campus policies on the boys having to be in at 12 at night are enough to complain about. Also not everyone knows the parking rules. But I enjoy school here and I have no serious complaints.

PAUL VANDERBERRY — This is a great school so I have no complaints to make about it. But I feel the war in Vietnam is just a political war and should be ended, but a solution I don't know.

GWENDY DONNELL — I would commend the students on their good religious backgrounds. This makes for a wholesome religious college atmosphere. BSU and others are well attended and this is something for all of us to be proud of.

BOLE SMITH — General personal appearances of the guys here is what I would complain about. They should wear decent clothes and have a decent hair cut. They seem to represent a nonchalant attitude of what our country stands for. They give the apearance of being dirty, and of little character, not just indecent.

JOAN ELMERICK — Girl's clothing rules are too strict. Wearing a coat over slacks everywhere we go is inconvenient and impractical.

GLORIA RILEY — Lack of school spirit here is my complaint. As hard as the cheerleaders try they need the cooperation of everyone to give the boys confidence. It doesn't matter if we win or lose, but the attitude of the student does matter.

LYNNIE BONNEY — There is nothing to complain about here. Everyone is considerate and I believe this is a good school. My letter would be only praise.

FAA Approves Aircraft Maintenance Department

BY GAYLE BECK

Hinds students may pursue a career this year in Aircraft Maintenance for the first time under authority from the Federal Aviation Agency.

Under the direction of Kennis Bryant, the Aircraft Technology Department of the Vocational - Technical Division has been working for approval from the Federal Aviation Agency for several years. The two-year course is also approved by the Veterans Administration and the State Department of Education.

Train For Career

Commenting on the affiliation, Bryant stated, "This is the only course in Mississippi where students can receive the direct instructon and training for a career in aircraft mechanics. There is a great demand in this field for graduates of this school program."

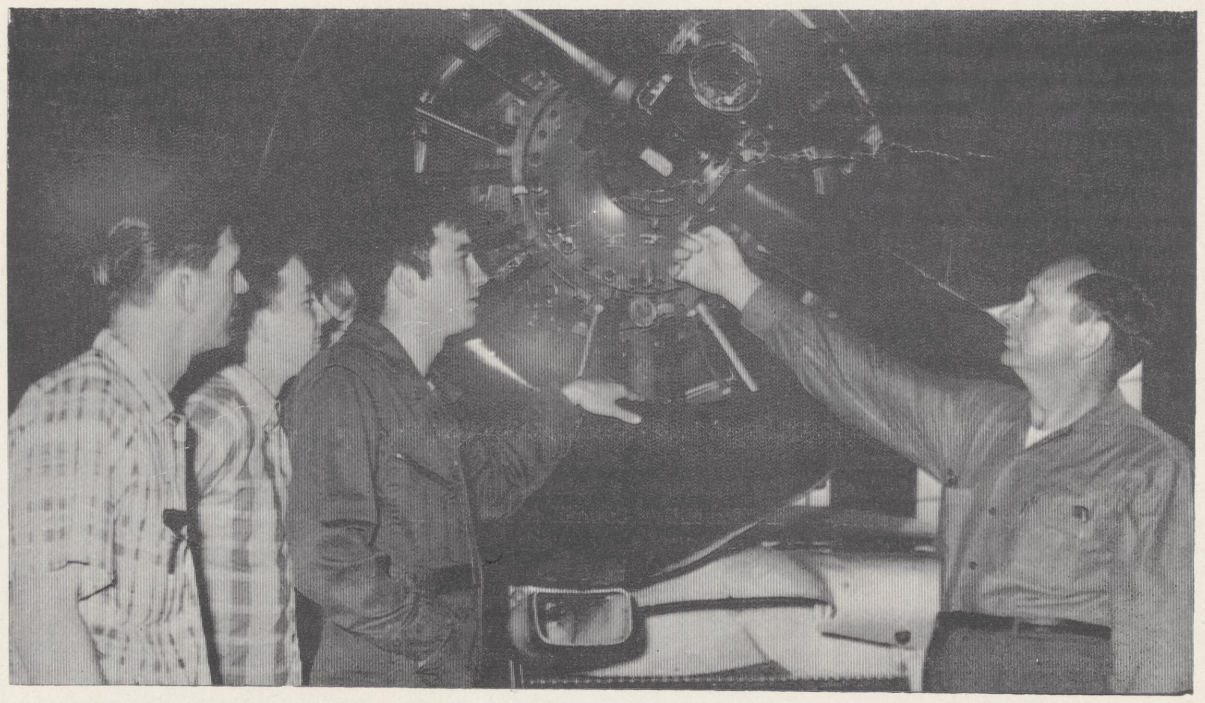
The 21 students in this course are required to have 1170 hours per year in classroom instruction and actual mechanic experience. The first phase of the course includes power plant maintenance covering theoretical, technical, and practical training in the operation, maintainence and repair of engines. The air frame phase includes training in the technical theory and practice pertaining to aircraft structures.

Bryant Instructor

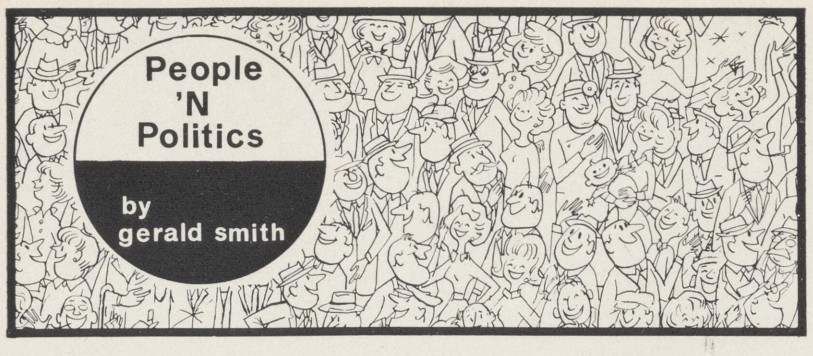
Bryant, a native of Smith County, is the only instructor for the course. He is a graduate of Park Air College, a branch of St. Louis University, and he received his B.S. and Masters Degree in Industrial Education from Mississippi State University.

Bryant was previously a flying instructor and has been with the Hinds faculty for the past 18 years.

About the future of the Aircraft Department he said, "With the cooperation, equipment, and determination we have, a course of this type cannot help but expand."



AIRCRAFT MAINTENANCE — For the first time this year courses in Aircraft Maintenance are available for interested Hinds students. Students enrolled in the course are featured with instructor, Kennis Bryant.



Trade With Communists Self-Defeating

Foreign aid and U.S. trade with other countries has its proper place with nations of good will. U.S. Aid to foreign nations should be limited only to those nations that are striving to further the cause of freedom. Our aid to these countries should be limited to reasonable amounts, preferably through loans. This is the only justified plan for an economic relationship with other countries.

This plan absolutely opposes trade with communist countries. Trade with communist countries offers widespread advantage to the communist cause. U.S. policy of accomodating communist countries, with emphasis on Europe, has done no good. These same European countries our government has tried to help are the same countries whose aggression our boys now face in Vietnam. This is a fact that more Americans are becoming aware.

In addition to this failure of policy, the fact remains that trade with Communist countries fail to offer significant short-term economic progress. These countries of Europe have no substantial Foreign exchange. In other words, they lack in capability of producing the types and qualities of goods to accomodate western and U.S. markets.

To boost those same Red economics with United States trade is to ignore the painful and penetrating lessons of history.

Remember, American servicemen faced Japanese weapons made from U. S. scrap iron in World War II. Today, American servicemen face the fire of forces supported by the industrial capacity of all the Communist countries.

If United States foreign policy continues its present course, further disaster will occur.

Legal Secretaries Tour Law Library

Members of the Hinds Legal Secretary Class toured the new capitol building to study the legal research library and to view a case before the Supreme Court, according to a Business Instructor Mrs. Maybelle Furness.

In the legal research library Miss Myrana Hennington, of the State Law Library, showed the class members the correct way to research a subject and how to classify material. The class then observed a session of the State Supreme Court.

Mrs. Furness commented, "The trip was stimulating and beneficial to the students. It showed the students how the legal professions use the research tools in preparing their cases. It also showed the girls how to assist lawyers in looking up materials for their cases."

Students making the trip were: Carolyn Divine, Jackson; Brenda George, Florence; Daphne Hammack, Jackson; Mamie Heard, Hazlehurst; Linda Jones, Jackson; Sandra Proctor, Raymond; and Barbara Puckett, Jackson.

New Clubs, Activities Benefit Students

Now that we are into the second month of school, our routines are basically established. Hopefully, the major adjustments are behind us and we are in midstream meeting the day to day challenges and problems of school life. In general, the prospects appear highly favorable for this 50th session to be the most successful for Hinds.

The clubs and organizations on campus are to be commended for their enthusiastic beginnings. Membership is up this year for most clubs, meaning that more individuals are reaping the benefits of participation. As well as helping individuals grow through programs and by developing responsibility, clubs render service to the student body as a whole. An example is the dance sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda before the Holmes game. We are also very proud of the new organization on campus — the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

In the line of Student Government we find another encouraging aspect of campus activities. For the first time, an assembly was held to organize the women commuting students for the purpose of electing their Senators. Six commuting women chose to run for the four available Senate seats. Campaigns will continue until the election in the WASB on Thursday October 19.

We commend the women day students for their interest and enthusiasm. The election of these commuter Senators will add a vital line to the chain of student government.

On behalf of the ASB and WASB, we take this opportunity to endorse School Spirit. Stand behind our football team with pep and support. Attend pep rallies. Cheer! Could our lack of spirit be the missing ingredient for victory?

THIRTEEN YEARS — Miss Laura Bell Lindsey is now entering her thirteenth year at Hinds as an English instructor. Miss Lindsey states her goal as "Trying to interest the students enough to continue work outside the classroom."

MISS LINDSEY

Veteran English Instructor Tells Problems Of Students

By JOANN NEAL

"As the Bible says, it is difficult to serve two masters," quotes Miss Laura Bell Lindsey, Hinds English instructor, who feels the major problem facing students is that of both trying to work and attend school.

As she put it, "This is the major difference I have found in my college years and now. Today everybody is trying to do two or three jobs. School is a full-time job in itself. You cannot have your cake and eat it too."

13 Years at Hinds

Previously a teacher at Copiah-Lincoln Junior College she has been at Hinds for thirteen years. Miss Lindsey loves to cook and runs a home of her own.

Of her reading she says, "I read everything, but I especially enjoy biography."

A graduate of Millsaps College, she states, "My parents instilled in me the idea that it is an honor to be a teacher and that it is the ideal profession for a woman. At Millsaps I discovered not only were my teachers knowledgeable and scholarly, but they stood for something."

Teaching Fun

Miss Lindsey feels she has grown up with the junior college movement. She has also aided in that growth for as she said, "I spare anything to teach. It isn't easy, but it is a lot of fun. I have found that the more you put into your work, the more you get out of it. There is continuously an exchange of learning between the student and the teacher."

"My goal," Miss Lindsey continued, "is to interest the students enough to continue his work outside the classroom. My aim is to make the student aware of the importance of language in expression of thought and enjoyment of life."

English Teaches

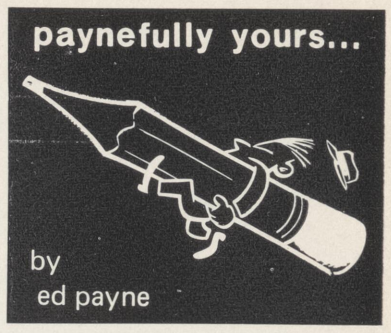
"All learning is related," says Miss Lindsey, "and particularly in English Composition. Here we teach the student clear expression and the correct working. In writing you cannot separate imagination and logic. Consequence is the important thing, not sequence."

She expects a student to have curiosity and to work. "A willingness to work," she says, "is the key to his understanding and his development and growth."

Room, Board Fees Due October 20, 23

Room and board, in the amount of $65, will be due to the business office Friday, October 20. and Monday, October 23, for the second six weeks' period.

Identification cards will be needed by the student at the time of payment for identification if the student plans to pay by check.



Calling Dear Abby

The following is a letter which was received by this columnist in the morning mail. Whether it was mistakenly sent to me instead of "Dear Abby" I don't know, or care. Herein the letter is reproduced:

I am finished with television forever. Commercials have completely ruined my poor life, made a shambles of it.

At one time I was just another dumb, happy-go-lucky kid with my eyes glued to the boob tube. Perhaps I was more gullible about commercial messages than most, I do not know. Here is my story, judge for yourself.

My problems started as a small child. When that friendly man, I believe it was Captain Kanagaroo, told me that I would be a social outcast if I didn't rush out and buy a Barbie doll, how did I know he was talking to the girls in the audience? When the other kids saw this nine year old boy carrying a doll they gave me a bloody nose, called me 'weird Harold,' and wouldn't come near me for years.

But this little incident was nothing compared to the troubles I encountered as I reached maturity and began to seek the admiration of girls. Not knowing which of several thousand hair creams to use, I decided on liberal quantities of all of them.

Now, I thought, the girls will run their fingers through my hair. When one girl finally did run her fingers through my hair, they remained stuck there in the gook until the fire department could free her.

Then came the straw that broke the camel's back. For years I had been trying to get a date with beautiful Gloria Bod. Everything the commercial said I needed to win her I bought, from shaving lotion to cars.

All of these things that were supposed to make me irresistible she managed to resist until the day after my rich uncle died leaving me his fortune.

There we were parked on this dark country road. I had my arm about her. The moon was full and the stars twinkled in their sky I looked longingly into her jeweled eyes, her full rosy lips. She smiled. Then, I don't know what came over me . . .

"Gee Gloria, I hate to tell you, but you have bad breath, BAD BREATH!"

Needless to say, she left me. Now my life will never be the same. But I've learned my lesson I'll never again believe another commercial. Maybe I can get a fresh start in Marlboro country.

For Fourth Year

Livestock Judging Team Wins Fair Competition

By ED PAYNE

Members of the Hinds Junior College Livestock Judging Team swept competition for the fourth consecutive year at the Mississippi State Fair, capturing first place overall prize along with individual wins.

The Hinds team, made up of five freshman agriculture students who had never competed in college judging, included: Gerald Duran, Scott Colson, Raymond Gower, and Harold Brown, all from Jackson, and Timmy Carr of Centerville.

First Place

Along with the first place trophy came first place prize money of $250 to be used to send the Hinds team to Fort Worth regional competition in February.

Overall first place was won in cattle and sheep judging along with a fourth place in swine judging by the Hinds team.

High Team

Other team wins included High Team in Hampshire sheep judging, first place in all Breed sheep judging, first place in Angus cattle judging, and High Team overall in cattle judging.

In individual competition Raymond Gower won first place in Hampshire sheep judging, Gerald Duran and Scott Colson won, respectively, first and second place in short-horn cattle judging, with Duran also capturing second place overall in individual competition.

Judging All Breeds — Angus, Shorthorned, and Hereford — Duran placed second, Brown third, and Colson fifth. Rounding out individual competition, Duran won a second place in All Breed swine and Gower a fourth place in All Breed sheep.

Fourth Win

This year's win was the fourth successive overall division win for a Hinds team, and the sixth win in seven years of competition.

Billie L. Banes, agriculture instructor, summed up the team's chances at the Fort Worth contest. "We will make a representative showing. There will be a lot stronger competition from eight or ten states. But," he added, "we'll give it a good try."

The Air Force doesn't want to waste your Bachelor of Science Degree any more than you do.

B. Sc. Those letters have an impressive sound.

But they won't be so impressive if you get shunted off into some obscure corner of industry after you leave college. A forgotten man.

You want activity. You want to get in there and show your stuff.

All right. How do you propose to do it?

If you join the United States Air Force you'll become an expert fast. The Air Force is like that. They hand you a lot of responsibility fast. Through Officer Training School you get a chance to specialize where you want... in the forefront of modern science and technology.

Suppose, for example, you wanted to become a pilot and serve as aircraft commander on airplane crews. You'd plan missions and insure that the aircraft is pre-flighted, inspected, loaded and equipped for the assigned mission. You'll be trained to fly exciting aircraft.

Just examples. There are so many more.

Wouldn't it be pretty nice to enjoy officers' pay and privileges? And serve your country, as well? Also, you get retirement benefits, 30 days' paid vacation, medical and dental care.

B. Sc. Very impressive letters.

Now, do something with them.

Rebels Get Rowdy

Surprise! Surprise! How about them boys from Southern? They put the hurt on the Bulldogs from Silo Tech. I told you folks last week, that you had better watch that team.

Somebody forget to tell them that they are not supposed to go around beating teams from the Southeastern Conference. Johnny Vaught and his Ole Miss Rebels had better open their eyes before Saturday.

Speaking of the Johnny Rebs, they shook up the Georgia Bulldogs pretty bad didn't they? I guess getting beaten by the Bear and his Cubs got them on the stick because they sure did sock it to the boys from the peach state. Now here Georgia was, number three in the nation, and what does Ole Miss do? Humiliate them.

Ara - with - the - unspellable - last - name got embarrased a wee bit himself last week. The Southern California Trojans laid it on them boys from Notre Dame and didn't show any mercy in doing so. I guess they just could not forget that humiliating 51-0 defeat at the hands of the Fighting Irish last year. That's what you get when you play dirty politics.

Before I put my foot in my mouth again, I want to extend my most humble apologies to the Greaves Hall intramural football team. In last week's edition I bestowed upon this fearless, and I might add winless, group of wariors the nick name of "Bombers," when in all truthfulness, they should be referred to as the "Grave Diggers."

When one takes into consideration the game that they were mentioned in, the 32-0 defeat to th Central Rebels, I guess the name "Grave Diggers," would be more appropriate. One question still looms in my mind. "Whose graves are they digging?"

FIND SCHOLARSHIPS BY COMPUTER

Last year $30 million in college scholarships went unclaimed — because no qualified persons applied . . . because no qualified persons knew of them.
• Now ECS engineers and educators have programmed a high-speed computer with 700,000 items of scholastic aid, worth over $500 million, to permit students to easily and quickly locate scholarships for which they qualify.
• The student fills out a detailed, confidential questionnaire and returns it to ECS, with a one-time computer-processing fee of $15. In seconds the computer compares his qualifications against requirements of grants set up by foundations, business, civic, fraternal, religious, and government organizations, and prints a personalized report to the student telling him where and when to apply for grants for which he qualifies. Thousands of these do not depend on scholastic standing or financial need.

In the game between the All Stars and the Greaves Hall Grave Diggers, Donnie Frith hit for two touchdown passes as he led the Charlie Brown to a 19-7 win.

Larry Carpenter led the Southside gridders to a 22-0 victory over the Shangri-La Rats, as he ran for one TD and passed for another.

All-Stars Move

In Wednesday's action, Frith hit Roger Craft for Charlie Brown's first score of the day. The conversion attempt failed and the All-Stars held a 6-0 lead after the first quarter of play.

In the second quarter, Frith spotted Randy McHan over the middle and hit him for the All Stars' second tally. Frith then hit Craft for the PAT and it was 13-0.

Gerald Barrington accounted for the only Greaves score as he connected with Sidney Smith for a TD. Barrington and Smith teamed up for the point after and the score was 13-7 with Charlie Brown still leading.

In the Southside Tide versus the Shangri La Rats game Thursday, Jimmy Powers hit end, Johnny Ragsdale for the opening tally in the second quarter. Powers then connected with Ricky Ammons for the conversion and the Tide held the lead, 7-0.

In the third quarter, Larry Carpenter skirted around his right end for the second Southside touchdown. After failing to score the extra point, the score stood 13-0.

Powers Romps

Carpenter led the Tide downfield into scoring position in the fourth quarter and then hit Powers for the touchdown. Carpenter and Powers then switched positions and Powers hit Carpenter for the PAT.

Dwight Morrison put up the final score of the day as he caught the Rat's ball carrier in the end zone for a safety to make the final score, Southside, 22; Shangri-La, 0.

Hinds Battles Northwest In Senatobia Saturday

By DANNY McKENZIE

Hinds' Eagles will still be looking for their first victory of the season Saturday night as they meet the Northwest Rangers in Senatobia.

The Eagles go into this week's game without the services of their leading pass receiver, Wiley Aldridge. Aldridge suffered a ruptured blood vessel in his leg last week, but still managed to participate in the contest with Pearl River.

Northwest has only one win on the season against five defeats. Their five losses came at the hands of Jones, Holmes, East Mississippi, Southwest, and Itawamba, while their only victory was over Copiah-Lincoln.

Teams Romp

Perkinston, East Mississippi, Jones, Holmes, East Central, and Pearl River, have all claimed victories over the Eagles this season.

In the Hinds-Northwest series dating back to 1929, Hinds holds a 18-3 lead over the Rangers. The Eagles turned away Northwest last year for a homecoming victory, 21-7.

Head Coach Joe Renfroe, stated "The Eagles should be ready for this week's game. We suffered a bad second half in last week's game, but I believe the boys have learned that they can win with that little extra effort."

"We will definitely be hurting without Aldridge at the split end post," Renfroe continued.

Can Move Ball

The head mentor summed it up by saying, "Ezell (Hinds' quarterback) proved to himself and everyone else that he can move the ball if he wants to. Now all he has to do is do it."

Probable starting lineup for this week's game will be Mike Ezell, quarterback; Raul Sierra, running back; Richard Hawthorne, fullback; Derle Underwood, flanker-back; Jerry Calloway, split end; Jim McBrayer, tight end; Robert Baker and Bruiser Hoseman, tackles; Mike Corbin and Doug Walsh, guards; and Gerald Giles, center.

Pearl River 'Cats Come From Behind To Claim 18-7 Win

Hinds Eagles scored a first quarter touchdown and held the lead over the Pearl River Wildcats until a fourth quarter rally denied them of their first victory of the season, 18-7.

Richard Hawthorne bulled in from the two early in the first period for the Eagles first TD. Berlon Wedgeworth's PAT was good and Hinds had their 7-0 lead. Quarterback, Ricky Cross sprinted over from the six-yard line but Hinds stopped the extra point attempt to hold a one-point lead over the Wildcats.

Fourth period scores on passes from Danny Pierce to Charlie Cross accounted for the two touchdowns that gave Pearl River the victory.

In the first period, runs by Hawthorne and quarterback Mike Ezell moved the Eagles into scoring position, where Hawthorne scored on his two-yard plunge.

Midway in the second quarter Pierce set up the Wildcats score with passes to Cross and then Lee took it over from the six.

Hinds defense held the Wildcats from anymore scores until late in the fourth period when Pierce hit Cross for two touchdowns and the victory.

Cole is the only returning member of last year's state champion team. McCracken was the team alternate last season and debated at several touranments when he was needed. Clark and Cuendet are making their first attempt at Junior College debating.

Hinds will be one of 31 colleges and universities assembled at Auburn to debate this year's proposition: "Resolved: That the federal government should guarantee a minimum annual cash income to all citizens."

In Junior Division

Debaters compete in all the junior division at all tournaments. This division consists of all junior colleges and students enrolled in senior colleges who have debated two years or less.

In preparation for the Auburn tournament the team has been holding inter-squad debates. The affirmative team of Cole and Clark have won all contests.

State Champions

For the past three years, the Hinds Debate team has been the state junior college champions. Last season's debaters tied the University of Alabama for first place at the Mississippi State Invitational Debate Tournament and finished second at the Millsaps Tournament.

'Our Town' Staging To Begin Run Tonight

'Players' Give Pulitzer Prize Winner In College Auditorium October 26-27

By JUDY JOHNSON

Tonight and Friday night, October 26-27, "Our Town", the 1938 Pulitzer Prize winning play by Thornton Wilder will be presented by the Lendon Players at 7:30 p. m. in the College Auditorium.

"Our Town" is presented without scenery of any kind, utilizing a narrator and a loose episodic form both adventurous and imaginative in style.

Simple Aspects

The play deals with the simplest and most touching aspects of life in a small town. Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, is sketched during the years 1901-1913.

The stage manager, played by Richard King, Jackson, casually introduces the characters. His narration bridges the gap between the audience and the play's action. At times he also enters the scene and becomes part of the play. The author calls the use of the stage manager a 'hang-over from a novelist technique.'

Social Background

Professor Willard, played by Clarence Hamilton, Jackson and Editor Webb, played by Claude Boyd, Florence, describe the scientific and social backgrounds of the play. Other incidental figures are: Joe Crowell, the newsboy, played by Ralph Fryant, Jackson; Howie Newsome, the milkman, played by William Carmichael, Utica; Simon Stimson, a frustrated creative artist, the town organist and drunkard, played by Jeff Harsch, Jackson; Constable Warren, played by Mitch Childre, Jackson; Mrs. Soames, the gossip, played by Fran Yarbourgh, Jackson; and Joe Stoddard, the undertaker, played by Jimmy Smith, Star.

Interest is centered in the families of Editor Webb, and Dr. Gibbes, played by Tom Williams, Bolton. The first act, "Daily Life," shows the common occupations of cooking, gardening, school, baseball, the church choir, and domes-

For 50th Anniversary

Homecoming Activities Set By Senate

Activities for Hinds 50th Anniversary Homecoming have been announced by Bruce McArthur, president of the Senate.

Highlighting the festivities will be a Freshman auction, Freshman Day, Torchlight March, Bonfire, Pep Rally, culminating in the Homecoming football game with Copiah-Lincoln and a post-game dance.

Freshman Auction

Activities begin on Thursday, November 9 with a Freshman Auction to be held in the auditorium. All freshmen will be sold at a minimum price of 25c with sophomores buying as many as they want.

On Friday, Freshman Day, will be held with the auctioned freshmen serving as slaves. All freshmen must wear a sweatshirt and a sign reading "I am a lowly Freshman." They are requested to wear a beanie, and upon meeting a sophomore bow down three times and recite, "Beat Co-Lin."

Sophomores cannot interfere with any of the freshmen's classes and cannot write obscenities on the sweatshirt or cause their freshmen any physical harm.

Kangaroo Court

A Kangaroo Court will be held during the day for Freshmen violators of rules, run by the Judicial Council. Also sophomore slave owners who violate rules during the day will trade places with the slaves and the freshmen will then be their masters.

At 3:00 p.m. sophomores take over the campus and all freshmen who are not owned by sophomores then become common property of all sophomores.

Torchlight Parade

At 6:00 p.m. on Friday night, all freshmen will participate in a torchlight parade to run through Raymond and out to Raymond Lake for a bonfire and a pep rally. After the pep rally, students will return to the campus for a dance sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda.

On Saturday, an open house of the campus will be held with students representing campus organizations serving as guides for alumni. Following the game with Copiah-Lincoln that night a dance will be held in the girl's gym sponsored by the Circle K Club.

Hinds Heads Administrative Activities For Consortium Of Junior Colleges

Hinds Junior College will coordinate administrative activities for the newly formed Consortium of Mississippi Junior Colleges, according to Dean of Men Rosser Wall.

Representatives from 12 of the state's junior colleges met on the Hinds campus last Thursday, to finalize plans for the consortium's formation. All junior colleges were invited to join the organization.

12 Attend

Junior Colleges attending the meeting included: Coahoma, Mississippi Gulf Coast District, Utica, Pearl River, Holmes, Jones, Copiah-Lincoln, East Central, Meridian, South West, East Mississippi and Hinds.

The purpose of the consortium is to collect and explain data concerning all federal programs. It will assist in aiding junior colleges and junior college commissions with federal aid projects.

$75,000 Budget

Total budget for the organization will run approximately $75,000 and tentative plans indicate that they will meet twice a year. Personnel for the consortium include a director, assistant director and clerical help.

George Moody, business manager of Pearl River Junior College, served as chairman for the organization's meeting.

This is the second consortium for Hinds to take part in. The first is called GT-70's which represents resources in counseling and guidance, media systems, curriculum development, financial and physical facilities planning, and other features which would be available to other colleges wishing to strengthen their own institutions.

Sticker Buyers Get Free Hinds Decals

All students who purchased a parking sticker for their cars for this semester are reminded to pick up a free Hinds decal from A. L. Denton's secretary in the guidance office.

The free decal is in two designs. One has Hinds with the school emblem, while the other included Hinds Junior College with an eagle.

The only request is that these decals be placed on the back window of the vehicle registered.

Vo-Tech Program Praised As Outstanding In State

Growing enrollments in Vocational-Technical programs throughout the state have greatly emphasized the popularity and demand for trained personnel in the areas of technical and mechanical skills.

Hinds has made extensive efforts in an attempt to keep up with the demanding appeals of industry for trained personnel in Vocational and Technical fields. Recent surveys conducted by the American Association of Junior Colleges and re-evaluated by a high placed executive show that Mississippi's two-year college system has been outstanding in these fields.

In a recent editorial in the Sunday Clarion Ledger and the Jackson Daily News, it was stated that "Occupation-vocation education is playing an increasing significant role in America's fast-growing junior college system, according to the findings of the study. Mississippi has been showing the way in this field, with Hinds Junior College at Raymond as one of the finest examples of the proven worth."

The editorial went on to explain that programs in liberal arts and general education program which lead to a transfer to a four year institution are still vitally important to students in junior college. But, it was pointed out, many colleges are now emphasizing programs which prepare students for careers in social service, government and industry. All of these areas are essential to the development of the country.

The strides made in Vocational-Technical study on the junior college level and especially at Hinds show the continuing of excellence and growth in education at the local and statewide level. — J.C.

Help Support Homecoming

Overall indications point to the fact that this year's homecoming will be the best ever. With festivities being planned for a whole weekend, participation by students will be counted on heavily.

Student government officials have released tentative plans for the 50th celebration which, unless abided by all students, will not be successful. Included in the festivities will be a Freshman Day, torchlight march, bonfire and dance.

ASB officials are also striving to attain a closed weekend. This may be a necessary step to keep a large portion of the students on campus if participation is not high enough to show a good representation of students.

This homecoming represents 50 years of education, activities and growth for Hinds Junior College. Students should be eager to participate in all activities of a growing institution. This homecoming will be one that will be looked on for years and with adequate student cooperation, could be the most outstanding event in the history of the college.

Help make this homecoming one to be remembered for years; remain on campus and participate in the activities scheduled for the weekend; with the help of all students, the 50th anniversary of Hinds Junior College will be a hallmark event in the school's history. — J.C.

CAMPUS PROPER — Hinds Junior College encompasses an area of 1168 acres which are available to the student's use. The land includes the area on which the campus proper is located, which is made up of dormitories, administrative offcies, class-room buildings and the Vocational-Technical center. Also at the students use is 428 acres which include the golf course, pictured below, lake and pasture land. The major portion of the recreational area is open to Hinds students throughout the year. Also available to the students is 640 acres which compose the John Bell Williams Airport.

Accumulated Since 1917

1168 Acres Of Land Used By HJC

By GAYLE BECK

"If the entire land area of Hinds Junior College could be rearranged so that all of it surrounded the campus proper, we would have enough land to accommodate any expansions planned for the forseeable future," stated Grady Sheffield," business manager.

Since 1917, 1168 acres have been accumulated for the daily use of Hinds students. Eighty-five of these acres compose the immediate campus area.

Form High School

The first 45 acres were purchased from A. H. Sivley to form Hinds County Agricultural High School and begin the foundation of Hinds Junior College.

Several lots were purchased in 1959 to serve as a housing unit for the staff and faculty located adjacent to the present Vocational-Technical area. In 1961 the present faculty housing land was purchased from W. D. Smith.

Campus Completed

To complete the campus proper, 40 acres were added north of the football field in 1965. This land was sold to the college by Erwin H. Peyton.

The last addition of property was made in 1967. Thirty acres adjacent to Hawkins Field in Jackson were purchased for a Jackson Center. This center will be used for a Vocational-Technical Educational Unit.

988 Acres

Jack Treloar, superintendent of Farm Management, stated, "We have operated 988 acres for the past several decades with the permission of Hinds County. The area surrounding the golf course and lake and the John Bell Williams Airport were given to the college in 1947 for its use."

The college operates 428 acres composing the golf course, lake, and pasture land in that area. The major portion of this recreational area is open to Hinds students throughout the year. Raymond Lake is also open to the public. The Agriculture Department uses the other acreage for experiments in farming.

Train Pilots

During World War II the John Bell Williams Airport was built to train Dutch pilots. Composing the airport and surrounding area is 640 acres.

The airport is used by the Hinds Vicational-Technical Division for its Aircraft Maintenance Department. The remainder of the land is used by the Agriculture Department as a farming area.

National DECA Week Proclaimed At Hinds

By DAVID HILKERT

National DECA Week, honoring the Distributive Education Clubs of America, the only organization operating to attract young people to careers in marketing and distribution will be observed at Hinds November 5-11.

A proclamation designating the school's observance was issued by Dr. Robert Mayo, president. Chairman of the week-long program is Steve Graham, president of the 20-member Hinds chapter of DECA.

Hinds Officers

Other officers from the Hinds chapter include Steven Kyle, Jackson, vice-president; Jan Gilmore, Jackson, secretary; and Cary Lee, Jackson, treasurer.

"The primary goal of DECA is to develop leadership among students planning to make careers in retailing and distribution," commented Graham.

The local chapter, formed in 1966, draws its members from the students enrolled in the Distribution and Marekting technology program at Hinds.

Terminal Program

DMT is a new program at Hinds. It is primarily a two-year terminal course designed to fill the needs of students who plan business careers in such areas as: advertising, banking, communications, credit, finance, insurance, retailing, wholesaling and transportation.

DECA is supported by leading American business firms. The national organization conducts a program including scholarships, awards to outstanding students, and an annual student leadership conference.

Set Study Habits

Within a few weeks mid-semester examinations will begin. If the normal pattern of college life is followed, a great deal of cramming will start about November 1 in preparation for exams that begin on the 6th. Many students will be rushing around in the newly discovered library frantically trying to bring outside reading assignments up to date, while others will be looking for a quiet place to study hastily written lecture notes. This last minute desperation effort will cause many to sit up into the early hours of the morning, miss regular meals, and do other foolish things that leave them mentally and physically exhausted for exams.

Don't misunderstand us. We're not opposed to cramming for exams and certainly not when done in moderation, but we believe, based on personal experience and observation of the study habits of college students, that one can find easier and more profitable ways of preparing for college examinations. The preferred alternative is to meet each day's assignment head-on with an orderly arrangement of your schedule that will not let extraneous attractions, i.e., boys, sessions and loafing interfere with day to day study assignments.

If you have been putting off hitting the books and in the back of your mind rationalizing that "A few days before exams I'll start cramming and get by," you just might find that you've waited too long and the grade reports will be all bad news.

Why not start now?

Halloween Traditions Develop From Old Religious Festivals

By GAYLE BECK

Black cats, mysterious witches and goblins, and eerie ghost stories come forth on Halloween night to welcome people of all ages and all lands.

Through the years Halloween has developed from the deeply rooted religious festival, Allhallows. It was known as the night when ghosts walk, fairies and goblins are all out, and witches and black cats are seen in every alley. All of these were a symbol of evil and death to these people.

In Many Nations

Halloween has progressed with many nations under the names of Guy Fawlkes Day, Snap Apple Night, All Saints Day, and Nutcrack Night to become a night filled with mischievous pranks and sounds of "Trick or Treat."

The once-a-year celebration did not find a place on the American calendar until Gaelic people settled here. They began the custom of holding gatherings at the farmhouses on the night of October 31. Since this was the time apples and nuts were ripe, they became an important feature of the parties.

Trick or Treat

Traditions as ducking for apples, nuts on the hearth, ghost tales, and Trick or Treat developed from the parties. Soon it was discovered pumpkins made great jack-o-lanterns representing a lost soul with no place to go.

Although you might not believe in ghosts, would you dare walk through a grave yard on Halloween night?

Senate Promotes Homecoming Spirit

An excellent opportunity for everyone to show their true school spirit is approaching! Homecoming weekend is two weeks away. Whether or not we make the activities being planned for the weekend an unparalleled success in Hinds history is our choice.

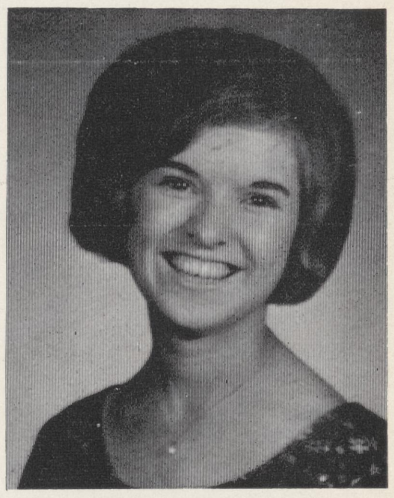
Committees and clubs are hard at work planning a full slate of interesting activities beginning Thursday night and continuing through the game Saturday. For example, an old favorite custom has been revived and remodeled into an event both fun and exciting for the student body.

The Senate, and we in the ASB offices, are confident that you will be as enthusiastic about these plans as we are when the final details are revealed. This will be an opportunity for freshmen to get to know sophomores better and to really feel a part of our school. If carried out with good will and school spirit, Freshman Day will be an occasion for all of us to recall with a smile for the rest of our lives.

The Freshman Day committee has spent hours preparing plans for this event. Everything from the schedule of activities to a list of rules to protect Freshmen from abuse has been detailed. Let us look forward to Freshman Day and take part in its activities enthusiastically.

Because this is Hinds' 50th Anniversary, many alumni and friends of Hinds will be on campus Saturday for the Alumni Association's coffee and banquet. Guides sponsored by campus organizations and clubs will be on hand to take groups around the campus. This is our chance to show our pride in this modern campus to those who were here before many of the facilities we enjoy were built.

In the past, the term "dead weekend" has been applied, perhaps not unjustly, to weekends spent on campus. However, we are approaching a potentially lively, entertaining weekend. Whether or not we realize this potential with a successful Homecoming depends upon our individual attitudes and corresponding efforts. Let us think positive and enjoy the occasion.



JEAN BUFFINGTON

Commission Names Miss Buffington As Oct. Girl Of Month

Jean Buffington, Jackson sophomore, has been chosen as the Hinds "Girl of the Month" for October.

The "Girl of the Month" award is sponsored by the Hinds Social Affairs Commission. The girl is chosen on the basis of popularity, citizenship, and academic work.

One girl will be chosen for each month of the school year. After the selection of Miss May 1938, there will be a reception for all "Girl of the Month" honorees. The girls are selected by two members of the administration, staff, faculty and students.

Buffington, an elementary education major, graduated from Central High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society, Student Council, a Student Teacher, and an outstanding P.E. student.

She was presented with a DAR Good Citizenship Award and a National Honor Society Scholarship while in high school.

Last year at Hinds, she was Young Women's Association's program chairman, secretary of BSU Executive Council, and chairman of dormitory devotions in Main.

Buffington is presently Hinds head football cheerleader, devotional chairman and senator of BSU, and student library assistant for the second year.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Buffington of Jackson, Mississippi. Miss Buffington expects to graduate from Hinds in the spring of 1968 and will continue her education at Mississippi College.

Miss Buffington was formally named as "Girl of the Month" at the ASB Senate meeting Tuesday, October 24. The honor was announced by Bob McLeod, head of the Social Affairs Commission.

Way Back When.....

A. A. P. C. S. E. R. P. C. R. B. Protests

By CECIL HALFORD

Back in October of 1937, the Debate team was preparing for four triangle debates on the subject "Resolved: That the United States should give permanent aid to schools.

The teachers were being given a course in instruction to better their teaching methods. The Glee Club, the forerunner of the chorus, was practicing for selections which they would sing at the state fair.

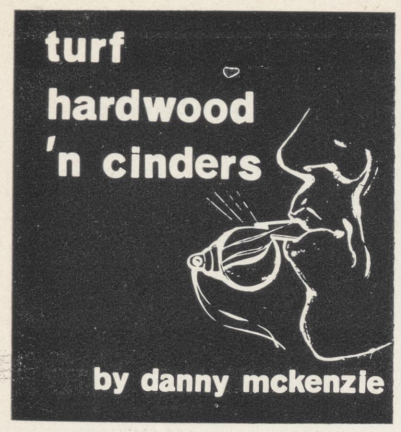
This was also a time for early reform groups. The A.A.P.C.S.E.R.P.C.R.B. (Amalgamated Association for the Protection of and Crusade for Suffrage and Equal Rights for and Prevention of Cruelty to Patient Bovines) was protesting the inhumane act of waking the college's cows at the un-Godly hour of five each morning.

On the sports scene Hinds won over the Mississippi College Freshman to the tune of 25 to 6. They were preparing for their next game, at Holmes which would be their first night game of the season.

TEN YEARS AGO Hinds students were preparing for homecoming and the sophomores were enjoying Freshman Day. Sophomore maids were Nancy Carter, Margarita Morris, and Doris Toles. Representing the lowly freshman were Flora May and Donna Musil.

Hinds' Drama group, The Lendon Players, were rehearsing for the November 15 playing of their production of "Lavender and Old Lace."

Football was in full swing of a later to come unbeaten season as Hinds rolled to an easy victory over the East Central Mississippi Warriors 45 to 0. Leading the Eagle attack were Raymond Abruzze and Glynn Russell.



Rebels vs. Texas?

Wouldn't it be something if Johnny Vaught and his Ole Miss Rebels end the season with an 8-2 record and then get an invitation to the Bluebonnet Bowl against Texas?

The way the Rebels are rolling now, it wouldn't be too surprising if they did end up with an 8-2 record, but I doubt if they will get to meet Texas in the Bluebonnet Bowl, since the Longhorns look like a cinch to win the Southwest Conference and then they would play in the Cotton Bowl. Oh well, one for two isn't bad.

All the group from Oxford has to do now is get by Houston and Tennessee and they are on their way. Houston will be tough but the big game is the one against the Vols from Knoxville. There is no doubt that the Vols have the superior of the teams, but Ole Miss has a jinx on them and Tennessee cannot seem to shake it. They haven't beaten the Rebels since 1957, and in these ten years, the Vols have had some pretty tough teams.

The Bear is sinking deeper and deeper. Tennessee just decided that they were not going to let anything like last year happen again. The Vols were turned away last year 11-10 when they missed a last minute field goal.

Doug Dickey and his boys just naturally socked it to the Crimson Tide this year, 27-14. Snake Stabler and his bandits were just out-classed. It is just a bit ironical since there was a television special on Bear Bryant two days after Tennessee beat Alabama last week.

Ara something - or - other is at it again. He and his boys from Notre Dame ran wild against Illinois last week, 47-7. That was not a very nice thing to do since the Big Ten took away half of the Illinois team for taking some extra "laundry" money last year.

Before we go any further into the football season. I think that everyone should know what a football is. "A football is an oblate spheroid which measures 11 to 11¼ inches in length, aproximately 6 3/4 inches in width, 28 to 28½ inches in length and 21¼ to 21½ inches around the middle." Did you notice two lengths in that definition? Well, that's what it says in the rule book.

Hinds Eagles have an open date this week so you won't have to listen to me gripe about nobody coming out and yelling for them.

VOLLEYBALL CHAMPS — Women's Recreation Association closed out its volleyball tournament with the Westside Dormitory girls gaining first place. In Monday's action, Northside defeated Main, 15-7 in the final two games of the best - of - three series, after losing the first one, 15-11. These two wins gave the Northside squad sole possession of second place in the tourney.

Mrs. Susan Dean and Miss Sandra Dabbs, Hinds women physical education instructors, have chosen the All-Star team to compete in the William Carey Women's Invitational Volleyball Tournament in November. All Stars, Grave Diggers Capture Intramural Tilts

By DANNY McKENZIE

Charlie Brown's All-Stars moved into an undisputed first place in the intramural football action as they downed the Central Rebels 14-6 and the Greaves Hall Grave Diggers upset the Southside Tide, 14-6.

The Grave Diggers, gained their first victory of the season as Gerald Burren passed to Sidney Smith for the first Greaves tally. Burren then ran the PAT and the Grave Diggers held a 7-0 lead in the first quarter.

Second quarter action saw the Grave Diggers score another touchdown as Burren again passed to Smith. The extra point was no good and Greaves had the Tide, 13-0 at halftime.

Diggers Win

After a scoreless third period, Southside mounted their only drive of the day, as Larry Carpenter rolled around right end for the score. The conversion attempt was no good and the Grave Diggers had their first victory.

Charley Brown and his group of All Stars, held on to first place in the league as Donnie Frith passed for one TD and ran for another. In the first quarter, Frith hit Randy McHan for the first quarter to give the All Stars a 6-0 lead. Frith ran the point after to make it 7-0.

Natasi Scores

Jay Foulks quickly got the Rebels from Central moving and he hit split end Jim Natasi from 35 yards out for the score. The conversion attempt was no good and the Charley Brown team held a slim 7-6 lead.

After scoreless second and third periods, Frith again went to work and led the All Stars downfield into scoring position with passes to McHan and Randy Klienman. With only seconds remaining in the final period, Frith skirted around his left end to chalk up the final TD of the day. Frith found Klienman in the end zone for the PAT and Charley Brown had a 14-6 victory.

HJC Turned Away By Rangers, 21-0

Hinds Eagles were turned away from their first victory of the season as fumbles and the Northwest Rangers defeated them 21-0 in Senatobia.

The Eagles, who fumbled five times in the game, were denied a touchdown in the second quarter, when they mounted a drive deep into Ranger territory after going behind 7-0. With the ball inside the ten yard line, quarterback Mike Ezell was trapped behind the line of scrimmage and fumbled the ball with the Rangers recovering.

The Hinds defense held the Rangers to nothing as the rest of the second and the third quarters were scoreless. Hinds mounted the only serious drive in these periods as they got down inside the twenty yard line and again gave up the football on a fumble.

Northwest quarterback, Harold Henderson, went to work in the fourth quarter as he hit for two touchdown passes and gave the Rangers their second victory of the season.

Second Act

The second act, "Love and Marriage," deals with the courtship and wedding of George Gibbes, played by Billy Gowan, Jackson and Emily Webb, played by Linda Rushing, Shalimar.

"Death," the third act, presents the funeral of Emily, who has died in childbirth. The buried dead become articulate, expressing the quiet and patience resulting from a view of the world outside of time, and their knowledge of 'something way down deep that's eternal about every human being.'

Finally aware of the mysterious beauty and terror of life, they embody the author's aim, 'to present illustrations of harmony and of law . . . affirmations about mankind and his ends.'

Admitted By ID's

Hinds students will be admitted by showing their ID cards. The public will be admitted by 50c for students and $1.00 for adults.

"The cast has only had approximately three and a half weeks in which to work on the play. We hope that the students will understand that it will be extremely hard for the students to perform on the bare stage. This undertaking has been a challenge for all of us."

Former Hinds Presidents Take Part In Celebration Of 50th Anniversary

Two former Hinds presidents, G. J. Cain (1928-38) and G. M. McLendon (1938-65), will take a part in the homecoming celebration of the college's 50th Anniversary on Saturday.

Cain, the third president of the college, is now Director of Finance and Administration with the State Department of Education, where he has been since he resigned as Hinds president in 1938.

Hand In Hand

McLendon, who currently lives in Raymond, served for 27 years at the Hinds helm, where both his name and Hinds Junior College went hand in hand as a bright light in Mississippi junior college education pioneering.

Both Cain and McLendon, representing 37 of the 50 years of the leadership of Hinds, will welcome former alumni during the open house on Saturday's program and be special guests at the Alumni banquet.

Cain began his affiliation with Hinds only two years after Hinds was founded (then Hinds County Agricultural High School) in 1919. He was a teacher in the high school for many years, until the first year of college was added to the high school in 1922 and he became Dean of the School after that time.

Visiting Alumni Welcomed To Homecoming Activities

We of the Hindsonian staff extend a cordial welcome to all alumni attending Hinds Junior College's 50th anniversary Homecoming festivities this weekend. The activities planned by the college point to this celebration being the best ever.

Special activities have been planned expressly for visiting alumni which include guided tours, open house, meetings and coffee hours. We, as students, hope that you will view the campus as being outstanding in education and far-sighted in plans for growth.

We are proud to welcome the alumni back to our campus and are equally proud to boast of the facilities we have. We do not mind telling these past students that Hinds is growing by leaps and bounds and that enrollment figures will attest to these same remarks.

New buildings, new faces, and a larger faculty are common expansions in the growing scene of Hinds Junior College. Tracing the history of our college, we can see how it grew from a small agricultural high school to one of the most outstanding junior colleges in the state.

Alumni will doubtless notice the changes since their stay on the Hinds campus. The physical changes are not the only outstanding factor. The use of modern teaching aids have helped Hinds to follow the pace of the growing and demanding needs of our state.

Again, we welcome you, the alumni to Hinds. Take pride in your campus as you see the many physical and educational advancements. Hinds is proud to welcome back its students and proud to boast of its many accomplishments. — JC.

Tests Demand Precedence

Amid the excitement of planning for homecoming festivities, there looms the demanding presence of mid-term tests. Students should not let the festivities of the week completely blot out their academic requirements.

The averages sent out on students at mid-term will tell the progress recorded during their first nine weeks of work. This will give the student an indication of his application to work or lack of application.

Although the mid-term grades do not go down on the student's permanent record they are a valuable indication to the parents and the students of the progress made in the student's chosen course of study.

The academic courses that a student pursues are the most important part of college life. Many activities are offered to him, extra-curricular in nature, that could very possibly pull down his average.

It is up to the student to sift through these offers and decide which he can afford to be involved in, and which he can do the best job in, without jeopardizing his grades and his class attendance.

As activities increase and demands are put on the students' time during the homecoming festivities, remember to place the proper amount of emphasis on your grades. In this way, you, as the student, can enjoy homecoming and still stay on top of your academic requirements. — JC.

Teachers Relate Past Experiences

BEEMON

PATRICK

STEWART

RIGGS

BEEMON

By GAYLE BECK

As a college with a fifty year history many of the events and years have probably affected several lives. Members of the Hinds faculty were asked to tell what event at Hinds had meant the most to them, or what had affected their lives the most by being a teacher here?

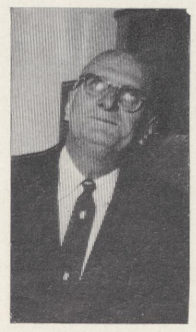
These are some of the answers:

LURLINE STEWART, Mathematics — Through the years I have noticed the tremendous increase in the size of the student body and physical plant, but more important in my opinion is the increase in services which the school renders today. The student as well as members of the surrounding community and others can benefit from courses taught at Hinds. I have watched Hinds grow from 300 students to its present size.

J. B. PATRICK, Social Science— Even the school officials here do not know that I am an alumnus of Hinds. My first real experience with Hinds was when there were only two people on the campus, G. J. Cain, the President, and myself. I attended this school for three weeks in 1933. I was the only student. There were no students, teachers, or administrators except the president. I earned six semester hours in biology. Since that time there has been a tremendous growth in the number and quality of buildings, faculty and students. The amount of equipment available has also steadily increased.

EMMA BEEMON, Mathematics— I met my husband here and that has affected my life more than anything else. Also I have made many good life-long friends as a result of teaching here.

JOE HARRIS, Social Science—I secured my life mate by being at Hinds. Today this college is more liberal. I can remember the freedom and the liberty of students and faculty being much more restricted than it is now. Spiritual emphasis was also much greater in the smaller student body. Now that there are more little lovable characters on campus, the behavior and training are different.



HARRIS

HARRIS

T. T. BEEMON, Biology — The year that stands out most with me is 1954, right after Mr. Denton came. One of the original buildings burned and all I wanted was a picture of it burning, but my camera was in the building. Since I have been here I remember all the wonderfully nice people I met here. I have been tremendously impressed, and I get pleasure from meeting old students in their new perspectives. Helping the growth of Hinds through the years has been its low rates and location. Also a good progressive president and Board. Hinds will continue on this road under its present administration.

JIM EL HARRIS, English — I have enjoyed most of the friendly students and my close association with them. I found my husband here and to me that is most important. All of the years have been filled with events. Teaching the veterans has really stood out as a memorable experience.

MARVIN RIGGS, Social Science —In my teaching experience I have noticed the increased opportunity for students who really want to work to study at college level.

Hinds Needs More Speaker Programs

On behalf of the student government, we would like to welcome all alumni to our campus. We certainly hope your visit to our campus will be an enjoyable one.

This year, homecoming is going to be the best ever. The Senate, along with different organizations, is providing activities which we hope will provide an incentive for students to remain on campus.

We know many of you have heard various "threats" to make you remain on campus during the Homecoming weekend. The reaction on the part of some students to this was one of hostility. Some stated that they would leave just to show us that they could. This is certainly a bad attitude for a college student to take, yet a good number did. After much discussion we decided not to even try to use any of these so-called threats. However, it is indeed a black mark against our students to even have to suggest such moves.

It is our opinion that if a student subscribes to this attitude, then he certainly will not add anything to the Homecoming atmosphere. It is with deep regret that we find such an attitude on the campus of Hinds Junior College, supposedly a progressive school. Maybe we have progressed in some areas, but not yet in others. However, this is not the school's fault. The blame can only be placed where the problem is, with the students. Hopefully our returning alumni will forgive us for this attitude of the "younger generation."

We must rely on the open minded progressive students of Hinds Jr. College to make Homecoming a success. These are the students we must prevail upon for they are, hopefully, in the majority.

This discussion of student attitudes brings to mind last week's appearance of Mr. William Winter at our assembly. Considering the apathetic atmosphere on our campus there was a good turnout.

Both before and after Mr. Winter's speech we received some comments around campus concerning his appearance. Most of it was favorable, not always because they agreed with what was said but because they enjoyed listening. The comments ranged from "it was great" to "He had no business coming down here."

The decision to have Mr. Winter, as well as others in the future, came out of a need we felt existed, to have assembly programs. We wanted the programs to be of interest to students and by providing well-known speakers we felt it would. The basic purpose of such Speaker's Programs is to expand the educational process, something that a number of other schools use quite successfully.

College should provide education in the classroom as well as outside of it. This is where such programs fill the gap. Really, this is the crux of the differences between a high school education and a college education. We hope that the students as well as faculty will look at these programs with an open mind. For only with an open mind can one profit from an education.

The student government once again asks that all students remain on campus this weekend. The alumni care enough about the school to return, let's show them that we too care by being here in large numbers.

Vacation In Tibet?

This year, for those of you who have been vacationing in the remoter parts of Tibet and don't know, Hinds is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Here at the Public Relations office there is an old picture of what the campus looked like in its earlier days. Sometimes if your imagination is strong enough, you can dream about what school life was like in those days . . .

Dear Cousin Fred:

How are you? I am fine. I just thought I would drop you a line and let you know how things are here at college.

Well, to begin with, this college life is for me. You should see the great dorm I am staying in. The place has indoor plumbing, real glass windows, and a big fan that circulates the cool air in the winter and the warm air in the summer. Its like living in a palace in this place. We call it Shangri-La. You should see the dump the other fellows have to live in!

The food here is pretty good too. Of course, we don't have a cafeteria so if you want something to eat you have to hunt it down. There is some talk about building a cafeteria, but I like it the way it is—just shoot at whatever moves. Half the time you don't really know what you shot and are eating. That would be different with a cafeteria.

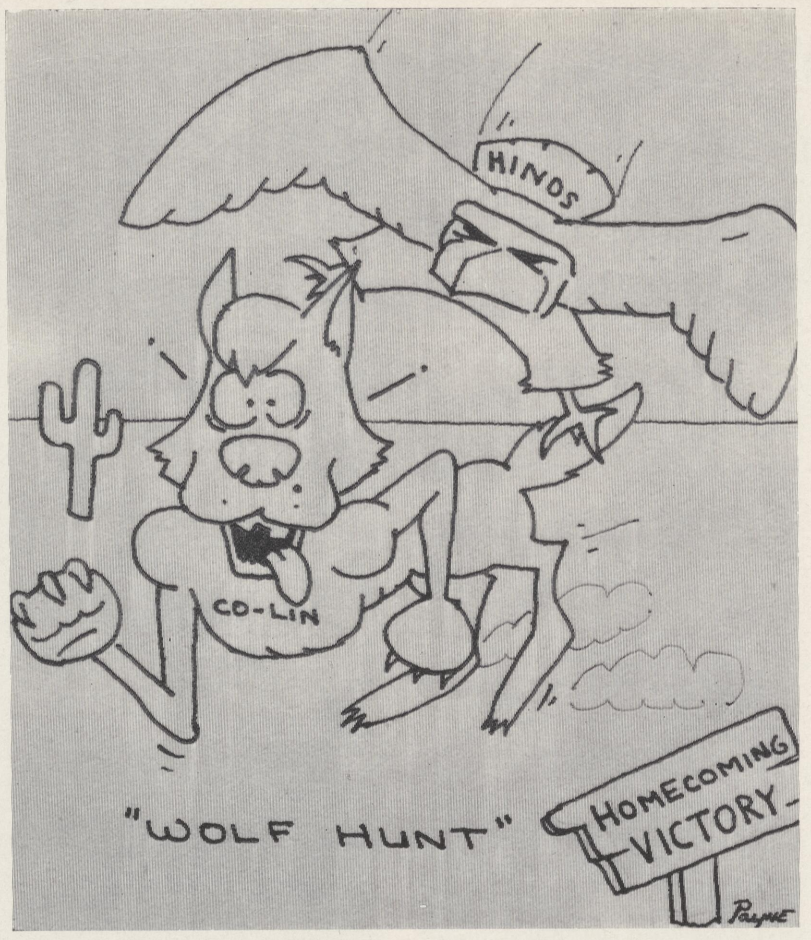
You asked me in your last letter about the courses I am taking. Well, besides reading, writing, and 'rithmetic they have this new course I am taking here called P.E. Right now we are taking a course about what to do if we were ever surprise attacked by the Eskimos. They show us some of them new fangle moving pictures about fellows bleeding and its real funny because all these people watching the film start turning sort of green and running out the door.

And let me tell you this, the girls out here dress like something else. Just the other day I actually saw a girl's ankle. I tell you, it leaves nothing to the imagination.

About that five dollars you sent me, I used it to pay my tuition and textbooks. Money sure doesn't go far today.

Have to go now, we are busy decorating for the Hinds First Anniversary Homecoming.

Your Cousin,
Elizer Freadbox



Way Back When.....

Girls Play Intramural Soccer

By CECIL HALFORD

THIRTY YEARS AGO an editorial was written by Fred Wright on the viewpoint of the Japanese and their aggressiveness toward China.

The Hinds drama group had just presented the play, "The First Dress Suit" which was well received by a large audience. The seriousness of the times was the threat of war in both Europe and in the Orient.

In sports, Hinds lost a hard fought battle to the Jones Bobcats in a close 6-0 game. The boys and girls basketball teams were opening practice sessions. The girls played an intramural soccer game in which the Cardinals defeated the Blues 1-0.

NINETEEN YEARS AGO the students on campus were readying for homecoming the classes of 1917, 1927, 1937, and 1947. A one-act comedy, "A Cup of Tea," was presented by the sophomore class.

A new machine, called a tachistoscope, was received by Dean M. F. Herring. It was used to increase reading skills by flashing words on a screen at speeds varying from one second to one-hundreth of a second.

The enrollment for the school was a record 600 students. There were 203 freshman and 68 sophomores. The high school had an enrollment of 147 students, and there were 123 vocational students.

The Eagles defeated Goodman by a score of 26-7. The game was highlighted by Bucky Elroy's 96-yard interception return. The boys and girls basketball teams won over independent teams. The boys winning by a score of 72-30 over non-varsity students.

TEN YEARS AGO, Mrs. Maybelle Furness and Mrs. Neva Sprayberry attended the fall meeting of the Mississippi Business Education Association at the University of Mississippi. At the same time, six representatives of the Hindsonian were making plans to attend the fall conference of the Mississippi Junior College Press Association.

Two Hinds freshmen won trips to the National 4-H Club convention in Chicago. The big news on the national scene was the launching of Sputnik I by the Russians.

Increasing its unbeaten string to nine, Hinds beat the Sunflower Trojans 33-7.

Activities . . .

Kangaroo Court

One of the featured attractions of this year's homecoming and Freshmen day will be a Kangaroo Court, to be held during the day on Friday. All Freshmen and Sophomores who violate the rules of the day will be sentenced by members of the ASB Judicial Council who will serve as judges of the court. Offenders will be brought to justice by a squad of student police designated by the ASB.

Senate President Bruce McArthur of Jackson will be the target of an "egging" which is set for 4:30 p.m. McArthur will be dressed in a Copiah-Lincoln football uniform and eggs will sell for 10 cents.

Torchlight March

At 7:00 p.m. students will assemble in the parking lot adjacent to the Student Union Building for a torchlight march to Raymond lake for a bon-fire and pep rally. Following the rally, the students will return to the campus for a dance in the Girls Gym beginning at 8:00 p.m.

Saturday's kick-off time for the game between the Hinds Eagles and the Copiah-Lincoln Wolves is set at 7:30 p.m. with the presentation of the homecoming court and crowning of the queen to highlight the halftime festivities.

Following the game, a dance will be held in the Girls Gym from 10:00 p.m. until 12:00 p.m. sponsored by the Circle K Club.

Alumni Welcomed

The students, faculty and staff join me in welcoming the alumni back to the campus. For a few this is the first visit since graduation, while others who live in the area have watched the campus grow, the enrollment climb and Hinds extend its usefulness in the many areas of community life.

This year marks a half century of growth and service in the life of a vibrant community college that was established in 1917 as an agricultural high school by concerned and farsighted community leaders. These wise and farsighted men believed every youth, regardless of his family's financial status, should have an opportunity to pull himself a few rungs higher up the economic and social ladder. This basic philosophy of the early founders still undergirds the educational and administrative philosophy of the Board, faculty, and staff. No ambitious and sincere student is denied admission so far as we are able to determine, because of finances. Jobs have always been available for those who need them.

As stewards who have been entrusted with the integrity, the intellectual well being, the orderly expansion, and the public image of your alma mater, we, the faculty, staff and students hope we have been good stewards. We hope we merit your respect and we welcome your suggestions as we plan for the future in these changing and troubled times. We believe the best days and the time of greatest service lie ahead.

Your school is in the mainstream of economic, educational, and even the political life of this rapidly growing area. Our alumni are found in shops, on assembly lines, in offices, over drawing boards, in classrooms, on farms in county courthouses and in the state and national capitols, while others are proudly wearing the uniform of their country in the armed services. Our students are like you who went before them—too busy with the job at hand to join demonstrations and protest movements.

We hope you are as proud of this crop of young Americans as we are of you.

15 Years Of Former Hi-Steppers To Hold First Reunion

By JOANN NEAL

Many of the more than 900 former Hi-Steppers, ranging in age from 19 to 30, will revisit Hinds for their first reunion and add to the color of the HJC Golden Anniversary.

Founded 15 years ago by former band director Don Key, the "girls' precision drill team", which numbered approximately 20, was directed by Miss Grace Shurden, a student who helped organize the group.

First Appearance

The group made their first appearance on October 20, 1951, as they performed in the half-time show of the Decatur-Hinds game in Jackson. On New Year's Day of '52, the group followed the Eagles to the Oleander Bowl in Galveston, Texas.

In the fall of '52, Mrs. Alon Bee, a Jackson dance instructor, became director of the group and has remained with them. "Calvacade of Mississippi" was the first show performed under her direction.

At Mardi Gras

Mardi Gras welcomed the Hi-Steppers in February, '53, as they followed the king's float in the New Orleans Parade. All these travels added to the Hi-Stepper fame, but the "big one" was yet to come.

On December 7, 1954, the Hinds Hi-Steppers left with the Eagles to perform before a crowd of 61,000 in the Junior Rose Bowl game in Pasadena, California.

Rise To Fame

Thus began the rise to fame that spread the names of Hinds Junior College and Mississippi across the entire nation as the Hi-Steppers performed for bowl games, conventions, and nationwide television.

Throughout this rise, G. M. McLendon HJC president for 27 years, gave the girls his full support and encouragement. In his honor, the group made McLendon an "Honorary Hi-Stepper" the year he retired and presented him an official Hi-Stepper blazer.

On National TV

In the summer of '54 the group performed for the National Jr. Chamber of Commerce Convention at Colorado Springs, Colorado. On December 28, 1957 a TV audience of 50 million watched as the Hi-Steppers performed in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Florida.

The National Jr. Chamber of Commerce was once again entertained by the Steppers in '59 at their convention in Buffalo, New York. The group also performed in the National Jaycee Parade and convention.

In Atlantic City

In September of '62 the Hinds Hi-Steppers took the distinguished honor of being the first Southern dance and drill team to ever participate in the Miss America Pageant Parade in Atlantic City.

Almost as a tradition, the Hi-Steppers appeared at the Crew of Carrollton Ball, the first ball of Mardi Gras, in February of '65. The group is the only one to be asked back a second time.

Entertained Jaycees

As Mississippi's representative to the New York World's Fair, in June of '65 the group appeared in the "Tent of Tomorrow." In the same month they once again entertained the National Junior Chamber of Commerce in Buffalo.

Today the Hi-Steppers number more than 100 and have added new fame to the list. Recently they performed in Baltimore, Maryland, and on nationwide color TV in the opening game of the New Orleans Saints.

Of the reunion Mrs. Bee says, "Every girl that has been a Hi-Stepper has returned to Hinds at some time but not all at the same time. This will give them an opportunity to meet many of the other 900 girls who have come through Hinds as Hi-Steppers."

STEPPERS BOOST HINDS—The Hinds Hi-Steppers and Eagle Band who have toured the nation have become famous for their entertaining ability. Two big boosters of the Steppers, Mrs. Anna Bee, Hi-Stepper Director, and George McLendon, president of Hinds from 1938-1965, will be on hand for the Steppers reunion during Homecoming.

President . . .

Mississippi State College for Women, Cain took over the chief helm. He became president of a college of three buildings—the old Science Building, Shangri-La and Main. In 1937, two other structures, the gym and Central dormitory was added.

G. M. McLendon, superintendent of the Newton schools, became president of a college of five buildings and some 500 students in 1938, and opened a "McLendon Era" of 27 years which was to witness phenomenal growth and prestige for the institution.

McLendon quickly earned the respect of his fellow junior college officials, and in 1942 was elected president of the State Junior College Association. His tireless energy and progressive thinking ability pictured Hinds as a pioneer in education.

In 1949, Hinds was placed before the entire nation when "Pathfinder" a national news magazine, featured the institution, prefaced by "It is almost an axiom among American educators that Mississippi is at the bottom of the educational ladder. In most categories, it is But in one vital educational field, Mississippi leads the nation." The article was speaking of a statewide system of community colleges and recognized Hinds as a leader in the nation in the field.

New Buildings

From 1940-50, the college witnessed phenomenal growth. Physical additions included the new Science Building, Music Hall, band hall, Eastside dormitory, Westside dorm, the housing project with 38 apartments, recreational facilities at Raymond Lake, two vocational trades training buildings, the John Bell Williams airport, 165 acres of land to the school farm with barns and housing, a poultry production unit, the football stadium, athletic practice field, and four homes for faculty and staff.

In 1952, the Hinds dramatic club coined their name in honor of the president as they were named "The Lendon Players." The year 1956 marked the announcement of a gigantic expansion program. The plan, conceived by McLendon, called for a two-stage building program. Scheduled for the first were a new science building, a girl's physical education building, a men's dormitory, a women's dorm, and the expansion of the gymnasium. The second phase included a new library building, a fine arts building, a massive vocational-technical trades training center, and student union building.

Retired at 70

In 1962, President Mac was awarded the Hinds County Bureau's "Man of the Year" award. In 1960, McLendon reached age 65 and was Board of Trustees approved to reelect him one year at a time, until mandatory retirement age of 70 years.

In 1965, the new library was appropriately named "The G. M. McLendon Library" in honor of his service to the college.

A former Miss Raymond High School, Lea Moore has an intense interest in sports of all kinds and has demonstrated that interest in her two year membership in the Women's Recreation Association at Hinds.

Lea was selected as a beauty her last two years at Raymond, as well as being in the homecoming court there as a sophomore and selected as Queen her senior year. She was chosen for the Raymond Who's Who for three years.

Circle K sweetheart, Brenda Pickens, is serving as Hi-Stepper president this year. This is her second year to participate in this organization.

Brenda was chosen as most beautiful at Port Gibson high school, as well as being selected homecoming queen her senior year. A class officer for four years, she received the CAR good citizenship award her senior year.

Linda "Scotty" Scott in the court honor for the second time, was a class favorite at Hinds last year. Hi-Stepper membership as well as being president of the Women's Recreation Association on campus demonstrates her interest in sports and explains her decision to be a Physical Education major.

A holder of second place in state tennis doubles, "Scotty" was also elected to serve as basketball cheerleader for the Eagles this year.

Doris Fanning, a Clinton graduate, has chosen interior design as her major field of interest. She enjoys cooking and sewing and was selected for the outstanding home economics award presented by the Crisco Company.

Fanning joined in Hinds' activities this year by serving as senator of Main dormitory. Her work as a library assistant here at Hinds is backed by experience as both presi-

Record Enrollment Set By Gill Family For HJC Attendance

By GAYLE BECK

Can you imagine sending your children through 200 years of school? Well, maybe you can't, but Mr. and Mrs. John I. Gill of Johns, Mississippi did. They provided 13 children a total of 200 years of formal education.

Twelve of the 13 children of the Gills attended Hinds Junior College, making their family set a record for the number of members of one family to attend Hinds.

Tribute To Parents

"My tribute first of all is to the mother and father," Hinds Registrar Miss Mildred Herrin offered, "and then to these children for they were appreciative of the efforts made for them and today they are worthwhile and successful in their vocational areas."

Today the Gills still live on the same 160 acres they supported their children on during the school days. At the age of 72, Gill is still producing his regular crops of cotton and corn each season.

First Gill Grad

1944 saw the graduation of the first Gill from the college. She was Lucille Gill, and later she attended Belhaven College. Today she is Mrs. Charles Shotts of Jackson and the mother of two girls.

Ruth Gill graduated from Hinds in 1945 and two years later graduated from Mississippi Southern College with a degree in Elementary Education. A resident of Charlotte, North Carolina, today she is Mrs. Erik Smalhout.

Presently an Industrial arts teacher at Pearl-McLaurin High School, Earl Gill graduated from Hinds in 1948. He graduated from Mississippi Southern College and has one child.

Co-Lin Teacher

Also graduating in 1948 was Sarah Gill, a home economics major. An all-star basketball player, she graduated from Southern and today is a home economics teacher at Copiah-Lincoln Junior College. She is married to Donald Johnson and has two children.

A veteran of World War II, Frances Gill left Hinds in 1949 and attended Mississippi State University. Presently he works with the Mississippi Highway Patrol as a radio engineer and is the father of two boys.

Arts Instructor

A resident of Sweeney, Texas and an industrial arts teacher there, Fred Gill graduated from Hinds in 1951. He graduated from a Texas college and has one girl.

Grady Gill graduated from Hinds in 1953 and two years later from Mississippi College. Today he teaches English and physical education at South Pike High School in Magnolia.

Medical Secretary

Graduating in 1954 as a secretarial science major was Helen Gill. She now serves as a secretary in the Department of Psychiatry at the University Medical Center in Jackson, Mississippi.

Dorothy Gill graduated from Hinds in 1956. Since that time she has worked in the accounting department of Southern Bell and Telegraph Company.

MC Grad

Today Jean Gill, a graduate of 1958, is, Mrs. Lynwood Porter. Her husband is a Baptist Minister in Macon, Mississippi. Mrs. Porter graduated from Mssissippi College, has taught and is the mother of two children.

Graduating in 1931, Carolyn Gill graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi as an elementary education teacher. Today she works as a secretary and assistant to the State Supervisor of Reading.

At Chastain

Kenneth Gill presently serves as a teacher of industrial arts at Chastain Junior High School in Jackson. He is a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi and graduated from Hinds in 1963.

James Monroe Gill was a graduate of Holmes Junior College and was lost in Europe in World War II.

Miss Helen Gill commented that one of the first loves of any member of her family was past President George McLendon. She further stated that, "My whole family would like to express their appreciation to the school for helping them and also to Mr. McLendon for his help. If it had not been for Hinds Junior College we might not have made it."

Sociology Students Tour State Prison To View Camps, Educational Facilities

By NANCY ODELL

Students in the Social Problems class, under the instruction of Mrs. Mary Wardlaw, took an all-day field trip to Parchman Prison on October 25.

Tour Camp

The students first toured the women's camp, and then the recently dedicated Vocational Rehabilitation Center, which teaches such trades as automobile mechanics and masonry.

Another innovation at Parchman is the First Offender Camp. Many of the prisoners taking Vocational Rehabilitation Training live here. The majority of the prisoners, however, live in dormitory-like buildings.

See Gas Chamber

The gas chamber was also visited by the students. Maximum security prisoners are housed in the same building, along with several 'Tough' Camps.

"Many of the students were surprised to see a lack of fences and security measures," said Mrs. Wardlaw about the minimum security prison farm. "They were also delighted with the prison rock 'n roll band which entertained during the lunch hour."

Rules Told

Kangaroo Court, Auction Listed In Frosh Activities

By ED PAYNE

Auctions, sweatshirts, walking backwards up stairs, and a kangaroo court are just a few of the many aspects of the rules and regulations for Freshman Day.

As a prelude to freshman day activities, a giant freshman auction will take place tonight in the auditorium beginning at 6:30 p.m. here will be no set limit to the number of freshmen a sophomore can purchase. Bidding will begin at 25c per freshman.

Sophomore Property

At the auction signs will be issued to all freshmen sold identifying them as the sole property of one sophomore. Freshmen not sold will become the common property of all sophomores Friday at 3:00 p.m.

On Friday, Freshman Day, all freshmen are requirqed to wear a sweatshirt and are requested to wear a beanie. No obscene language or pictures will be allowed on the sweatshirts. In addition, freshmen must carry their books to classes in a pillow case.

"Beat Co-Lin"

When requested by any sophomore, a freshman must kneel and bow three times repeating the words, "Beat Co-Lin." At all times freshmen are to go up stairs and through doors backwards.

Sophomores are asked by the Freshman Day Committee to be on the lookout for any unmarked or disobedient freshman, take his name and report him to the nearest student policeman.

Rules extending to sophomores are that they cannot request any thing of a freshman that might cause him to be late for class, and can do a freshman no physical harm.

Like freshmen violators of the stated rules, sophomores are subject to appear before a kangaroo court headed by members of the Judicial Council where they can be sentenced to become property of their slaves for rule infractions.

All students are reminded by the Freshman Day Committee that no vehicle will be allowed to participate in the march to or from Raymond Lake Friday night.

W.E.C. To Sponsor Girls' Field Events

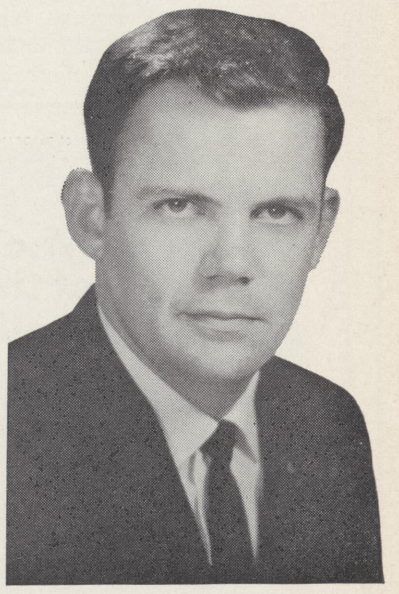
Field Day Events pitting commuting girl students against dormitory girls will take place Saturday, November 11, between the Academic Building and the Library under the sponsorship of the Women's Executive Council.

Commuters will be divided into teams to compete against squads from Main, Westside, and Northside dorms in such events as obstacle course, tug of war, and wrap the football player replay.

All commuters who are interested in competing may sign up on the Day Room bulletin board or contact one of the day women senators. Dorm students should see their senators to participate in the events.

Williams, Sowell Score Wins In Tuesday's General Election

JOHN BELL WILLIAMS
Next Governor



RALPH SOWELL
Won House Seat

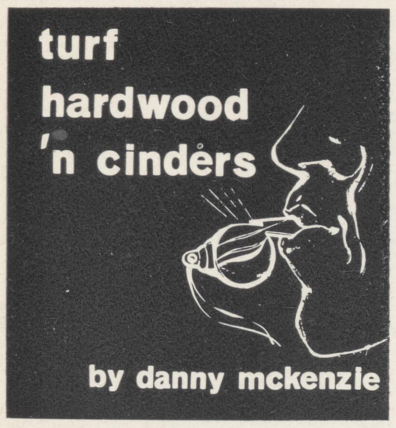
Hinds Junior College scored at least two landslide victories in Mississippi and Hinds County politics in Tuesday's general election as Hinds alumnus John Bell Williams and Hinds Public Relations Director Ralph Sowell, Jr., scored overwhelming victories.

Williams will be the state's next governor and Sowell was elected to Post 4 of the House of Representatives from Hinds County. With 1943 of the 2115 precincts reporting, Williams accumulated 293,188 votes to 126,753 for Rubel Phillips.

Sowell led all Hinds County races for the biggest victory in the count, leading Republican opponent Ed Lewis by a vote of 28,779 to 7,306. Sowell earned nomination by the Mississippi Democratic Party by defeating three opponents in the summer primaries.

Hinds Junior College scored early victories this summer when Tom Virden, president of the HJC Alumni Association was elected Chancery Clerk of Hinds County and Irl Dean Rhodes, vice president of the Association, was elected to the same position in neighboring Rankin county.

Joe Moss and Robert Ferguson both alumnus of Hinds, also won House seats, by taking posts eight and five respectively.



A. P. In Dark?

I don't care what you say, those fellows of the Associated Press that count the votes for the football rankings do their counting with the lights out. How in the world, anyone would put Notre Dame in the number ten spot and not put Ole Miss in the top ten, is beyond me.

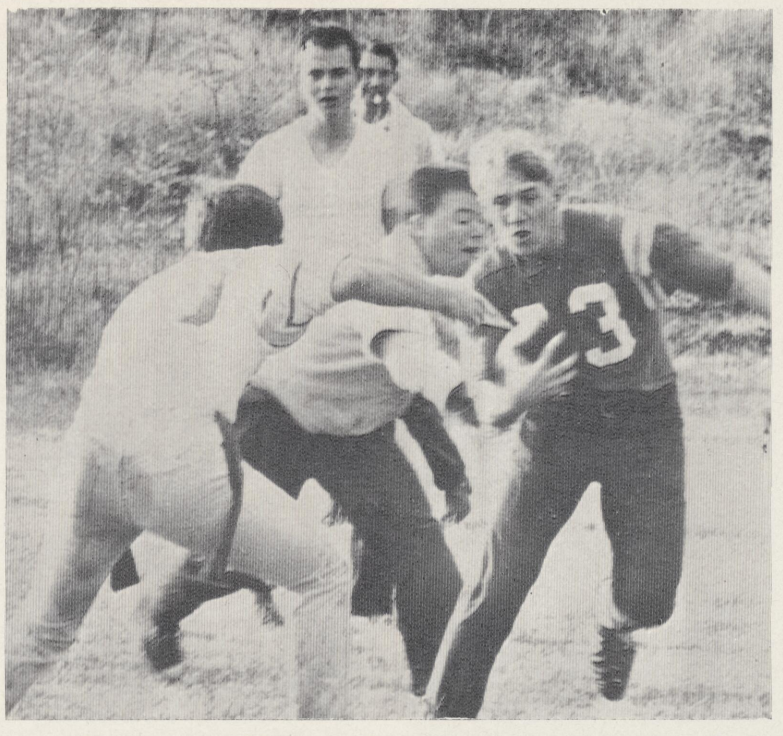
We won't say anything about the LSU game, though.

The next thing you know, they will have Bovine University from Starkville, number one. I tell you, these people are blind and their Braille system is messed up, or they are counting the votes with the lights out. Just like my Uncle Wilford used to say, "You can't trust them polls, especially the one that has the same initials of a major college football coach." I cannot recall a football coach with the initials UPI so it must be AP. That Uncle Wilford was something else.

I hope to Yogi Bear that some of the student body finds road maps to the stadium for the ball game this Saturday night. It sure would be bad if there was not too many students at the game with Co-Lin. I mean it is Homecoming and all that and it would look bad if there was no one on hand Saturady night to give the Eagles support.

As our illustrious Senate president said, "Let's face it people, the school spirit just isn't what it should be." Truer words were never spake. The spirit around Hinds is poor and many people are talking about it, but yet none seem to want to do anything about it. If the football players that represent us can go out day after day and crack their skulls and other parts of their anatomy, then we can surely come out one night a week to raise a little havoc.

Yes, I know, the Eagles are having a bad year, but like Uncle Wilford used to say, "Church ain't over till the singing's done." I just got to spend more time with Uncle Wilford. How right he is, especially in this junior college football. There is absolutely no telling who will win the game until the final horn goes off.



INTRAMURAL ACTION — Football action is depicted in the intramural game between Charely Brown's All-Stars and the Southside Tide which resulted in the upset victory with the Tide winning 26-13.

Perkinston Bulldogs Gain Lead In JC Conference

Perkinston Bulldogs gained undisputed first place in the Mississippi Junior College Conference with a victory over the Holmes Bulldogs.

East Missssippi, Mississippi Delta, and East Central are in a three-way tie for second place with Holmes and Jones, tied for the third position.

Perkinston defeated Holmes, 36-7, with All-America candidate, Sonny Fletcher catching two touchdown passes. Scooba had a breather in their 56-13 romp over Southwest, but Mississippi Delta upended Jones, 14-8 to stay in the tie for second ranking.

In other games last week, Northwest defeated Pearl River, 27-20. East Central dropped Copiah-Lincoln, 27-6, and Hinds turned away a last period rally by Itawamba to defeat them, 24-20.

26-13 Victory

Southside Tide Upsets Charley Brown's 'Stars

By DANNY McKENZIE

Led by the running and passing of Jimmy Powers, the Southside Tide rallied to an upset victory over the number one team in the intramural league, Charley Brown's All-Stars, 26-13.

In other action around the league, Greaves defeated the Shangri-La Rats, 37-2; Central put it to the Ramblers from Eastside, 20-12; the All-Stars also downed Eastside, 19-6; Southside turned away Central, 14-0; and Shangri-La won over Eastside, 25-12.

Powers Rolls

In the Southside upset over the All-Stars, the Tide ran up 13 quick points in the first period and managed to hold off a Charley Brown rally late in the game. Quarterback Powers hit end Johnny Ragsdale for the first score of the game. The conversion attempt was no good and on the first play following the kickoff, Ragsdale interecepted a Donnie Frith pass to put the Tide in scoring position. Powers rolled around his left end for the score and "Nub" Grogan added the conversion to give the Tide a 13-0 lead in the first quarter.

In the second period, Tommy Trussell recovered a Southside fumble in the end zone to give Charley Brown their first tally of the day. The conversion attempt was no good and Southside held a 13-6 lead.

Following the kick off, Powers marched the Tide down the field with passes to Grogan and Ragsdale to set up the final TD of the first half. Powers found Grogan alone in the end zone for the TD and then ran the extra point over himself to put the halftime score at 20-6.

After a scoreless third period, Donnie Frith moved the All-Stars down the field with passes to Roger Craft and Randy McHan to put them in scoring position. Frith spotted Craft over the middle and hit him for the TD from 15 yards out. Frith and Craft again teamed up for the PAT and the All-Stars trailed by a slim margin of seven points, 20-13.

Powers to Ragsdale

Again Powers took to the air with passes to Grogan and Ragsdale and moved the ball deep into All-Star territory. Powers rolled around left end from 28 yards out to chalk up the final score of the game and give the Southside Tide an upset victory, 26-13.

Dennis Cole threw for two touchdowns, one to Mike Keister and one to Jim Natasi in the second period and Keister hit Cecil Simmons for the third score of the period to give Central all of their scores as the Rebels turned away the Eastside Ramblers, 20-12.

Jerry Hall hit Freddie Headley for a TD in the first and third periods to give Eastside all of their points in the Ramblers fourth loss of the season.

Barron Throws Six

The Greaves Grave Diggers crushed the Shangri-La Rats, 37-2, as Gerald Barron hit Sidney Smith for five tallies. Barron also connected with Steve Quenneville for a sixth Grave Digger TD.

Shangri-La scored their only two points of the afternoon when Emmett Myers caught Greaves halfback, Jack Higgs, behind the goal line for a safety in the first quarter.

Roger Craft guided the Charley Brown All-Stars over the Ramblers from Eastside, 19-6, as he scored three TD's and intercepted a stray Rambler pass to half their drive.

Craft scored his TD's in the first, second and fourth periods as he hauled in a pass from Donnie Frith to put the All-Stars out front in the first period, 6-0.

In the second period, Craft intercepted a pass and returned it to the ten-yard line where he went off right tackle on the next play for the score. In the fourth period, Craft found running room over right tackle and went in for the score from 30 yards out.

Ken Grogan accounted for Eastside's only score as he went around right end from 20 yards out in the first quarter.

Tide Downs Rebels

Southside Tide, turned away the Central Rebels, 14-0, as Butch Ramsey tackled Mike Keister in the end zone for a first period safety. Jimmy Powers hit Johnny Ragsdale for the second score and Ricky Ammons intercepted a pass and returned it 35 yards to pay dirt to give the Tide their final score.

D. J. Lavoy threw three touchdown passes and ran for two more touchdowns as Shangri-La downed the Eastside Ramblers, 25-12. In the first period, Lavoy hit Rudy Irwin for the first tally to put the Rats out in front, 6-0. The Ramblers followed, with Harry Stewart hitting Bill Monsour from 12 yards out for the score.

In the second period, Irwin moved to the quarterback post and hit Lavoy for the second Rat score. Lavoy then moved back to quarterback and hit Joe Johnston and Irwin for two more tallies. The final scoring was done as Monsour scored for Eastside, and Lavoy scored from 50 yards out for the Rats.

LAST HOME GAME — These six sophomores will be playing their last home game this Saturday night when the Hinds Eagles meet the Copiah-Lincoln Wolves at 7:30 P. M. Homecoming Action Set For 7:30 P. M. As Gridiron Team Seeks Second Win

By DANNY McKENZIE
Sports Editor

Coach Joe Renfroe and his Hinds Eagles play host to the Copiah-Lincoln Wolves here in Raymond this Saturday night at 7:30 p. m. for their fiftieth anniversary homecoming.

Hinds goes into the game off their first win of the season over the Itawamba Indians. The Eagles downed the Indians 24-20 on their home field Thursday night to hand the Itawamba team their seventh loss of the season.

Hinds sports a 1-7 record with their losses coming at the hands of Northwest, Pearl River, East Mississippi, East Central, Perkinston, Jones, and Holmes.

Itawamba defeated the Northwest Rangers for their first and only win of the season, 32-27. Their seven losses have come to Pearl River, Mississippi Delta, Southwest, Jones, Perkinston, East Mississippi, and Hinds.

Calloway Out

Hinds will be going into the game without the services of their top defensive back, Jerry Calloway, who separated his shoulder in the Itawamba tilt and will be out for the remainder of the season. Calloway intercepted two passes and returned one of them 15 yards for a touchdown in the final period that proved to be the deciding score in the game.

Renfroe feels that his team is ready for another win after the big one over the Indians. He commented, "Even though we lost one of our best defensive backs and that will hurt us, I feel that our group is more than ready to play ball now. That win was a big one and our morale is way up."

"Our passing attack was hurting the other night, but our quarterbacks are ready for the game with Co-Lin," Renfroe added. "Our running game was better than we ever expected and we will be in full force again on the ground."

Hinds Leading

In the Hinds-Co-Lin series dating back to 1925, the Eagles hold a 22-15 lead over the Wolves with one game being decided in a tie. Hinds turned away Co-Lin last year by the score of 27-3.

The probable offensive starting lineup for Saturday night's game is: Mike Ezell, quarterback; Richard Hawthorne, fullback; Wiley Aldridge, tailback; Glynn Bell, slot back; Derle Underwood, split end; Brian Rowan, tight end; Robert Baker and Kenny Acton, tackles; Mike Corbin and Doug Walsh, guards; and Gerald Giles, center.

EAGLE OUT — Jerry Calloway, sophomore from Jackson, provided high points in the Itawamba bout by intercepting two passes and returning one for a TD before suffering a shoulder separation that will put him out of action for the rest of the season.

First Victory

HJC Downs Itawamba Indians 24-20

By BILL SUMMERLIN

Wiley Aldridge scored two touchdowns and Berlon Wedgeworth kicked two field-goals to lead the Hinds Eagles over the Itawamba Indians, 24-20 in their first win of the season.

Aldridge scored once in the first quarter and then again in the third quarter to lead the Eagle scoring. He was followed by Wedgeworth who also scored in the first quarter, and in the second.

Field Goal

Hinds offense stalled in Itawamba territory early in the first quarter to set up a 14-yard field goal by Eagle kicker Berlon Wedgeworth.

Later in the quarter, Wiley Aldridge made the score 9-0 when he scored on a 30-yard jaunt around left tackle for the second Hinds score.

Wedgeworth's other field goal came in the second quarter following Itawamba's score. The tally was set up when Eagle tackle recovered a fumble on the Indian 10-yard line.

Aldridge Scores

Second half scoring started off as Davis of Itawamba threw another TD pass, but the Eagles came right back with a touchdown by Aldridge, after Richard Hawthorne recovered a fumble on the Indian ten.

Defensive halfback Jerry Callaway provided the final Hinds touchdown when he stole the ball from an Indian receiver and returned it 20 yards for the score.

Penalties played a definite part in the Eagle victory as the Indians accumulated seven penalties for a total of 85-yards to Hinds' three penalties for 15 yards.

State Treasurer Challenges Youth To 'Stay In State'

By ED PAYNE

William Winter, Mississippi's state treasurer, spoke to several hundred Hinds students and challenged them to live not for themselves, "but to make Mississippi a better place to live."

Speaking in the auditorium by the invitation of ASB president Bill Cole, Winter drew laughter from students when he began his remarks by saying, "If you won't mention the governor's race, I won't mention football."

Praising students, Winter declared that they reflected a point of view Mississippi needs and are "the hope of this state." Emphasized was the fact that Mississippians can no longer isolate themselves, but, as Winter put it, "must move into the mainstream of American life."

The state treasurer advised students to stay in Mississippi because, "More bright, forward looking young people are needed to build this state." This task, Winter pointed out, "made those obtaining higher education at institutions such as Hinds 'special people'."

In closing, Winter urged students to always cherish their own ideas and principles, to keep their idealism, to avoid the "straight jacket of conformity" and not to shirk from the responsible expression of "Honest difference of opinion."

Change Holiday Dates

Senate Introduces New Legislation

During the A. S. B. Senate Meetings held October 24 and 31, plans for Homecoming activities and several major proposed pieces of legislation were discussed.

At the October 23 meeting, Vice-President of the A. S. B., Martha Womack introduced the first new legislation for this year. The proposal called for the changing of Christmas holiday dates to allow for more time before rather than after Christmas.

Another bill providing for the adding of two more chairs to each table in the grill was brought before the Senate. Both bills were passed and forwarded to President Robert M. Mayo.

Reports Discussed

In other actions of the October 24 meeting, plans for Homecoming were discussed which included reports by Woody Crapps, chairman of the Decorations Committee; Steve Graham, chairman of the Freshman Day Committee; Clark Colvin, chairman of the committee for the Kangaroo Court; and Ed Payne, chairman of the Publicity Committee.

At the October 31 Senate meeting, more reports on Homecoming were given by these committees as well as a report by Doris Fanning on the Guides Committee's work in getting each club on campus to select two members to serve as student guides for alumni during Homecoming festivities.

New Legislation

Two pieces of legislation were approved calling for, respectively, the changing of nine weeks tests from Friday, November 10, to another day so as not to conflict with Homecoming plans, and the installing of a cigarette machine in Southside dorm.

The next Senate meeting is scheduled for November 14.

Hinds Celebrates Past 50 Years With Eyes To Future

Hinds Junior College opened its doors for the 50th session this fall, proud of its past and present, but hardly paused long enough to celebrate its Golden Anniversary, as it made plans for 1986 and 5000 students.

The main grounds now occupied by Hinds were trampled by students for the first time in 1917 when the old home site of J. R. Eggleston, captain of the Confederate ironclad Merrimac, became a County Agricultural High School.

Changing Institution

Former alumni and friends, visiting the Hinds campus today, hardly recognize the institution known ten or twenty years ago, or perhaps even five years ago.

The campus in 1917 consisted of four edifices — the Administration Building, later known as the Old Science building, two dormitories — Shangri-La and Main, and a barn. Eight faculty members opened the doors for 117 students.

Booming Contrast

The campus of 1967 is a booming contrast. Serving 3,455 students in all the college programs during the 1966-67 school year, the campus contains 27 buildings on the campus proper and 44 houses for faculty and staff, while 120 faculty and 22 staff serve the college's program.

W. N. Taylor was elected the first superintendent. The school was founded with the expressed purpose of providing educational opportunities at low cost to students willing to work.

Before the advent of the agricultural high school, it was impossible for most farm boys and girls to obtain an education because of prices. Hinds gave them a chance to work their way through an education, always maintaining that "no student was turned away if he or she were willing to work."

The school was admitted to membership in the Southern Association fo Secondary Schools during the first year of existance. Superintendent Taylor resigned in the spring of 1918 because of illness in his family. R. E. L. Southerland, agriculture instructor, was made acting superintendent for the remainder of that session and was then elected superintendent.

College Work Added

The first year of college work was added to the curriculum during the 1922-23 academic year and the ninth grade of high school was discontinued. The first freshman class had 30 members. Just four years later, in 1926, the county decided it would do well to add the second year of college work to the curriculum.

The fall of 1926 saw the enrollment pass the 400 mark, with 74 of the number registered as college students. The college department "grew up" in 1928 when it was admitted to membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Sutherland Resigns

President Southerland resigned to accept a position as president of Mississippi College for Women and G. J. Cain, principal became president in 1930.

The year 1936 marked the beginning of Hinds' predominance in state competition, as the college won the championships in the literary, athletic, and debate competition.

President Cain resigned in 1938 to accept a position with the Mississippi State Department of Education and G. M. McLendon became president of an institution of 528 students and five buildings. The next 27 years have become known as "The McLendon Era."

"Mr. Mac" Retires

McLendon retired in July, 1965, at the mandatory retirement age of 70. During the 27 years he was president, "Mr. Mac" as faculty and student alike affectionately called him, became synonymous with the name Hinds Junior College.

TAYLOR

SOUTHERLAND

CAIN

McLENDON

Dr. Robert M. Mayo, one of the state's most respected educators, was elevated to the presidency of the college in July, 1965, after serving as vice president for five years. This September marks the beginning of his third year at the academic helm.

Hinds has taken on a "new look" in the last seven years. Since 1960, 11 new buildings have been added to the physical structure of the campus, and a $750,000 Fine Arts Building, will soon come off the drawing board.

Commuter College Planned

One of the boldest new programs of the college will be the establishment of the "Jackson Center", a commuter college which will be based in Jackson on a 30-acre site on Sunset Drive near Delta Drive. Construction will begin on the Hinds Extension next year.

Never content with the present, Hinds is busy now studying to meet the challenge of the future. A dynamic and bold plan to face the year 1986 and 5000 students is in the committee stage with recommendations complete. The plan would call for 25 academic buildings, 14 residence halls, a field house, and baseball stadium by 1986.

Emphasizes Excellence

Although physical facilities are important, Hinds is interested in offering the best education possible — by constantly updating its curriculum, hiring additional faculty and new courses to meet the needs, and emphasizing excellence in all fields.

On the 50th anniversary. President Mayo issued a word of thanks to the public: "To you, individually and collectively, for your wise counsel, for your understanding, for your friendship, and for your support, we who administer the day to day affairs of the college, are most grateful. We hope that our actions and judgement will continue to merit your confidence and that this personnel, and encouraging exvibrant, growing college to grow in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

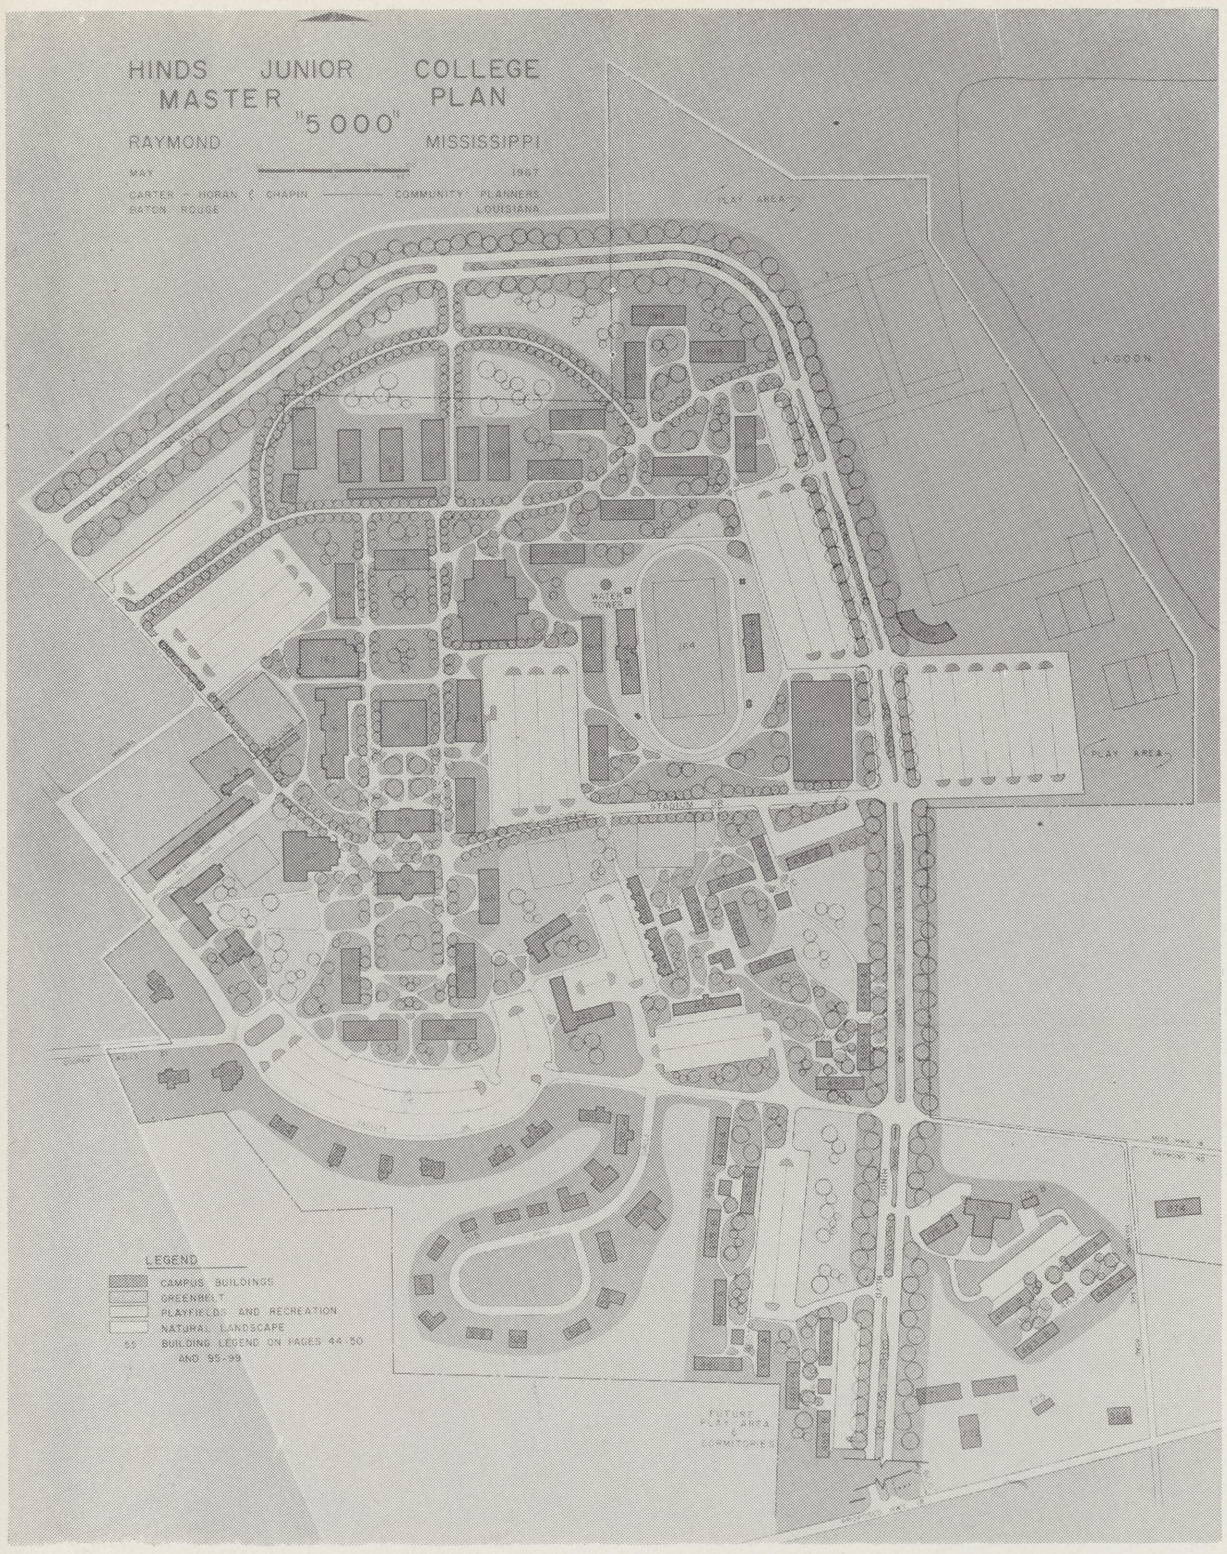
RAYMOND MISSISSIPPI



HINDS IN 1986 — A detailed report released by the firm of Carter-Horan and Chapin of Baton Rouge entitled "The Comprehensive Plan for Hinds Junior College" projects the college into the year 1986 with a predicted enrollment of 5,000. The community planning group, aided by a faculty committee tried to answer the proposed needs and problems which will arise in the next 19 years. The charts above and below show the detailed layout of the college as it was projected according to proposed expansion needs. The far right chart is a comparison of the population of Hinds county in relation to the enrollment of Hinds Junior College.

5000 Students

Hinds Looks To 1986 In 'Comprehensive Plan'

What will Hinds Junior College face in 1986 with a prospective enrollment of 5,000 students?

That is what the firm of Carter-Horan and Chapin of Baton Rouge, La., have tried to answer so that the college may begin to plan now to meet the needs of the college.

19-Year Plan

In a detailed 101-page report entited "The Comprehensive Plan for Hinds Junior College," the community planning group, aided by a committee appointed by President Robert Mayo, have posed needs and problems during the next 19 years.

The faculty committee was chairmanned by Dr. Floyd Elkins and joined by Walter Gibbes, Grady Sheffield, Jack Treloar, and Rosser Wall.

The projected enrollment for the 1986-87 academic year shows that 3718 students will be registered in academic and technical study, while 800 will be vocational students, and 500 will be engaged in health occupations studies. This would be a grand total of 5,081 students.

The Carter-Horan & Chapin plan advises that this assumption would call for 333 faculty members and on-campus living space for 2,706 students. New construction projected would call for 25 academic buildings, 14 residence halls, one field house, and a baseball stadium.

Other needs given special attention in the report include recommendations for a tree planting plan, a new walk and parking system, and the selection of an overall campus color scheme.

The plan was presented to the Board of Trustees of the College and the study and recommendations of the plan will be heavily considered in making future decisions concerning the college's growth.

Mrs. Riggs States Unreturned Books Growing Problem

By DAVID HILKERT

"Overdue books from the library are a growing problem to both the library staff and to students in need of unreturned books," stated Mrs. Virginia Riggs, head librarian.

The library compiles a list of all overdue book holders, copies of which are posted on campus bulletin boards every Thursday. "All students are encouraged to check these lists," commented Mrs. Riggs.

Mrs. Regina Goodwin, circulation librarian noted that "It is profitable to the students themselves to return the books on time."

Students on the lists should return the books as soon as possible. The fine for a two-week book is five cents a day, and the fine for a reserved book is 25 cents for the first hour and 10 cents for each additional hour that the book is overdue. An extended delay will result in the students name being turned over to the dean.

Deans To Attend Federal Workshop On December 7-8

Dean of Men Rosser Wall and Academic Dean Floyd Elkins will attend the Federal Programs Workshop to be held at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C., December 7, 8.

Discussed at the workshop, sponsored by the American Association of Junior Colleges, will be federal legislation concerning junior college programs under the Higher Education Act of 1965 and other federal programs envolved with junior college education.

Federal officials will make addresses to proposed panel sessions which will be of a workshop rather than formal nature. Members of Congress interested in junior college programs and representatives of other higher educational associations have been invited to attend these sessions which will include a preview of possible 1968 legislation.

Specific fields of discussion planned are anti-poverty programs, the Education Professions Development Act, and developments in such fields as nursing education, allied health fields, and student financial aid. A special session on the problems related to preparation and submission of proposals for federal assistance will also be held.

In a letter to Wall and Elkins, John P. Mallan, Director of Governmental Relations, stated, "A similar AAJC Federal Programs Workshop in December, 1966, attracted over 550 educators from over 40 states, as well as many top federal officials and others. We hope to match that performance."

Registrar Announces Proposed System To Re-number Courses For Catalog

By DOUG LAWRY

Announcement of a proposed system to re-number courses for the 1968-69 edition of the Hinds Catalogue has been made by Miss Mildred Herrin, registrar.

The new system stems from a proposal to have a uniform numbering system for the first two years in colleges throughout the state. It would simplify the comparing of courses between schools where, now, each has its own method.

Open To Faculty

At the present time, the plan is open to suggestions from any member of the Hinds faculty. Tentatively suggested guidelines are as follows: courses from 100 to 199 designed primarily for freshmen; courses from 200 to 299 primarily for sophomores; and courses from 0 to 99 for courses not designed for transfer purposes, such as distributive marketing technology, technical courses, nursing, and others. Courses numbered in the 300's will be taught only in night school.

The new plan will not mean that a freshman cannot take a 200 course or that a sophomore cannot take a 100 course. The number will only suggest what year the course should be taken.

Semester Course

Courses ending in an odd-number will generally designate the first semester of a two semester course. An even number ending will indicate the second semester of the course.

These recommendations are presently being passed on to individual teachers and department chairmen who are being requested to discuss the proposal within their respective departments.

Student Officials To Tour Campus

Members of the Student Council of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College District will be on campus Dectmber 1, to confer with Hinds student government officers.

In a letter to ASB President, Bill Cole, Charles Smith, President of the Council, stated, "the purpose of our trip is to enlighten us as to the different aspects of college life around the state of Mississippi."

Cole, commenting on the letter, remarked, "We are glad to have this opportunity to discuss with other student government officer, from around the state, problems which arise in the various colleges. I am sure this meeting will be most helpful to all parties concerned.

Sponsored by the Hinds yearbook, the Eagle, the election will decide the eight students, four boys and four girls, who will be chosen favorites for each class. The sophomore boy and girl receiving the most votes in the election will be named Mr. and Miss HJC.

Presentation of those winning in the elections will be made Thursday night, November 30, at the Hinds Beauty Pageant, to begin at 8:00 p.m.

Nominations will be made by petition. Any full time student is eligible for nomination. Students may start a petition in their own behalf or for someone else. The petition must contain the signatures of 20 different students and no student is allowed to sign more than three petitions.

Obtain Petitions

Available from the Public Relations Department, in back of the student union, petitions must be returned with a picture of the nominee no later than 3:00 p.m. tomorrow.

Voting will begin Tuesday, November 28, at 8:00 p.m. in the student union foyer and will continue until 3:00 p.m. If a run-off election is needed it will be held Wednesday, November 29. Students voting are required to show their ID cards.

18 Nominees

Students will mark their ballots for 18 nominees. These will include the selecting of five sophomore boys and five sophomore girls. The two sophomores receiving the highest number of votes will be honored as Mr. and Miss Hinds Junior College. Students will also select four freshmen boys and four freshmen girls for class favorites.

Said Sherry Webb, feature editor of the Eagle, "These elections are very important because the people chosen will be representative of what Hinds students feel are their most outstanding classmates, therefore, each one should weigh his votes carefully."

FEES DUE

Room and board fees, in the amount of $65, will be due to the business office Monday, December 4 for the third six week's period.

Identification cards will be needed by the student at the time of payment for identification if the student plans to pay by check.

Student Opinions Known Through Printed Letters

Many newspapers, both college and commercial, carry a regular feature tntitled "Letters to the Editor." This feature is a forum for student opinion and a chance for readers to voice their opinions on issues of the day.

The Hindsonian, in past years, has carried such a column whereby the students have this privilege. It proved to be an effective means for the expression of student opinion on many varied topics.

Either the students now at Hinds have no opinions, or they are just plain afraid to let their arguments be known. We do know, however ,that students do not express their opinions enough in the form of letters.

The editorial policy of The Hindsonian allows students to voice their opinions in this manner and the letters are always encouraged. We cannot of course, print letters which are unsigned or are written for the express purpose of demeaning the character of a particular person or organization.

It is the right of you, as a student, to express your opinion. Utilize this right in a letter to the editor of either your community newspaper or your college publication.

Remember, the right of expression of opinion is guaranteed to you in the constitution; it is a right and a privilege that should never go to waste.—JC.

Few Truly Give Thanks

Thanksgiving, first celebrated by a group of pilgrims in 1621, was designated for the express purpose of giving thanks to God for their survival through the long, hard winter in New England.

Nowadays, the idea of giving thanks has become a little less used, and a little more needed. Today, the United States is the richest nation on the face of the earth, and filled with approximately 200 million unthankful people.

Unthankful? Well, for instance in 1621, the pilgrims were few in number, fighting for survival and existence in the midst of a bitter winter, with lack of food, and an abundance of hostile indians.

These few pilgrims, after harvesting what few meager crops they had raised, celebrated in the fashion of a feast, and gavt thanks for what they thought was an abundance.

Now, 300 years later, we occupy the most advanced civilization in existance. Our society does not try to survive from year to year; it isn't necessary to fortify our homes against the enemy; and we need not seek food in the woods hoping to feed our families from day to day. Isn't that reason enough to give thanks?

Survival was the key word during the 1600's. Have you ever heard of anyone striving for survival in the continental United States today? The inhabitants of this country are better off than they realize.

During the Thanksgiving holidays, re-evaluate your attitudes and thinking toward the true meaning of the day. Think of the many things that you could give thanks for. Aren't there really more than you had thought? — JC

HJC Personnel Help Launch Saturn V

By ED PAYNE

When the Saturn V moon rocket was recently fired from Cape Kennedy, Hinds' trained personnel played a direct role in its successful launching.

"Every missile that has come off the launching pad at Cape Kennedy has carried pumps made at Vickers of Jackson," stated Cecil Landrum, assistant director of Hinds' Vocational - Technical program. He added that a large percent of the machinists involved in tht work receive their training at Hinds.

One Example

This is just one example of the department's widespread achievements in training which also includes a recently completed Maintenance Welding Clinic.

Said Vocational Director Walter Gibbes, "These programs provide a system of industrial experience for our personnel which puts them in direct contact with advisors communicating in various facets of industrial operations as these operations provide instructors and supplies."

Welding Clinic

Such as operation was the Welding Clinic. Jointly sponsored by Hinds and the Eutectic Welding Institute of Flushing, New York, the clinic was held November 13, 14, and 20, 21 at the Hinds Jackson Center. It was conducted by Tom Vinson, Jr., local technical representative of Eutectic, and Bill Dawkins, regional technical representative from Memphis.

Of the 23 taking part in the course, eight were students from Hinds. Also represented were several companies and hospitals from the Jackson area. These included M.P.&I., American Can Company, Mississippi Steel and Iron, and Hinds General Hospital.

Others represented were Blue Cross & Blue Shield, Jackson Police, Viking Freight Line, Magna-American, University Hospital, Capitol Welding Supply, and Jackson Cigar and Tobacco Company.

Purpose of Clinic

The purpose of the clinic, according to Landrum, was to "acquaint maintenance personnel in the availability and proper use of welding material used in hospitals and manufacturing as well as in general building and plant maintenance."

In co-operation with Vickers, Hinds is now training several persons in the welding of special metals such as aluminum and magnesium. In the joint venture, material and equipment are supplied by Vickers, including such instruments as the "Tungston-Inert-Gas", better known as the "TIG", welding machine.

Jobs At Vickers

Students in training will receive jobs at Vickers where already one third of the present employment have had Hinds training. Since they will be working with equipment which must meet federal standards, both as to quality and workmanship, these students will have to pass a federal exam, whose requirements make it "the highest degree of merit a welder can receive," claimed Gibbes.

This operation is but a part of the continuing training program with Hinds that began back when Vickers was first established in Mississippi. At that time the first 28 men employed by the company were trained by Hinds in co-operation with Vickers and the State Employment Agency.

Fourth Thursday In November Marks Time For Thanksgiving

By BETH ROBERTSON

Throughout the United States, the fourth Thursday in November marks a time for family reunions, bountiful dinners, and for giving thanks for the many blessings of the year.

Thanksgiving did not win national observance until Sarah Josepha Hall, editor of a popular women's magazine, wrote editorials, and sent letters to the president of the United States and to all state governors. President Abraham Lincoln gave her his support and declared the last Thursday of November a national holiday.

First In 1621

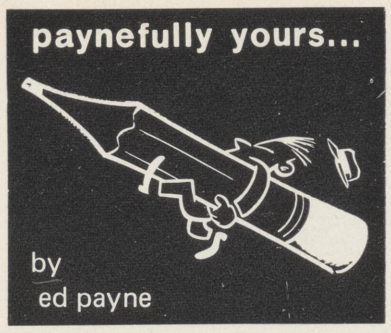
Ninety Indians and several Pilgrims were on hand for the first Thanksgiving held in 1621. They had survived a long, hard winter, and fortunately their harvest of the year was bountiful.

There is no record that the first feasts were called "thanksgiving." Appointing certain days for giving thanks was begun by the Puritans. The first recorded date of a thanksgiving feast was in 1623 when the Pilgrims gave thanks for the rain that ended the drought.

After Harvest

Soon thanksgiving days came to be celebrated all over the New England colonies after harvest.

The United States is not alone in celebrating this holiday. Canada began the custom in 1760 after a victory at Montreal. Canada proclaimed it a national holiday in 1879.



Basket Weaving

As you may have noticed elsewhere in this paper, in a report of mid-term grades, it was revealed that a whole, great, big, stupendously, gigantic, total of three — that's three, not three hundred, not thirty, or four, but three — students made all A's.

Now we of the student body should not be too hard on these poor, misled students. They probably could not help what they did. However, in order to prevent such an incident from happening again, since Hinds could get a reputation or something, here is a comprehensive example of how to apply your study time at Hinds.

First we take a typical Hinds student, Alfred G. Typical, who is pursuing that popular field of study, Basket Weaving 105.

As we all know, the required work in Basket Weaving includes an hour of lab each week, a theme on "Famous Basket Weavers of Northern Siberia," and, of course, all regularly assigned homework.

"For Thursday's class," cackled Alfred's cruel, slave driving teacher, Miss Weaslebottom, "I want you to weave four baskets in the shape of Lyndon Johnson's head."

She added that she doubted if any of the students would make the heads too big.

After supper Alfred arrives back in his room and deftly tosses his books on his bed. He takes out his basket weaving material, turns on his study lamp, sits down at his desk — and decides to go shoot some pool.

After eight games of pool Alfred has built up enough guts to head back to the dorm and hit the basket weaving. On his way out he goes into the grill, where he spends the next three hours ordering hamburgers trying to drown his troubles.

Seeing a fellow basket weaver, he exclaims, "Miss Weaslebottom gives us too much homework."

"Right," replies his friend. "You started on yours yet?"

"Of course not," answers shocked Alfred Typical.

At nine o'clock, with nothing else to do, Alfred returns to the dorm. He turns on his study lamp again, sits at his desk — and decides to join the bull session next door.

For the next four hours the entire second floor of the dorm is involved in a discussion of the physical virtues of the latest "Playmate of the Month."

At one o'clock, when the pin-up has been handled beyond recognition, the bull session breaks up. Alfred and his roommate face a lonely ordeal of being shut up in their room with their books.

The next morning (basket weaving meets five days a week) when Miss Weaslebottom complains that Alfred's baskets look more like George Wallace's head than L.B.J.'s, he responds, "Why I started working on those things right after supper and didn't get through till ten after one."

Reasons For LBJ's Popularity Slump

Mr. Master Politician, Lyndon B. Johnson, the once highly persuasive Majority leader of the U.S. Senate, and later the vice-president who became president at the death of President John Kennedy, seems to have slumped in nationwide popularity.

Public opinion polls, political observers, and surveys of all kinds indicate that Johnson's chances for re-election are slim.

Lyndon Johnson, having acquired the Democratic nomination with little or no opposition, won a landslide victory over Republican Barry Goldwater in 1964.

Johnson's present decline in popularity is not mainly attributed to the opposition of Republicans and Conservatives, but can be attributed to Johnson - Democrats, who have previously supported him and his so-called "Great Society" programs. These Governors, Senators, and Congressmen, who once stood with him have now become his critics. Observers are sure that he will meet serious opposition in his bid for re-nomination by the Democratic Party.

Certainly, his mis-handling of the Viet-Nam War has cost him the confidence of much of the nation's electorate. Perhaps this is the major reason for his decline. Patriotic Americans support our position in Viet-Nam, but disagree with the methods President Johnson is using in handling this situation.

The Viet - Nam War is a major reason for his decline, but there are many other reasons, also. Johnson's general ineffectiveness, his incapability to cope with domestic problems, and above all, his push for more and more executive power are several reasons.

This emphatic rush of executive power is destroying the governments system of checks and balances, in order to meet and fulfill the presidents own selfish and tyrannic motives. These are fundamental reasons for his loss of popularity.

The 1967 elections are most recent indications of Johnson's decline of popularity.

Republicans and anti-Johnson critics have replaced Johnson supporters in various posts throughout the country. In New Jersey, their Governor, who staunchly supports Johnson, will face a Republican majority in the state legislature next session. This is a downfall to the pro-"LBJ" Democratic machine in that state. In Kentucky, whose Governor is presently a Democrat, the people of that state chose as their Governor a Republican. Of course Mississippi's newly elected governor will give no comfort or support to Johnson or any other collective faction.

These are just examples of the public's view of Johnson. Whether or not Johnson wins the Democratic Nomination and the presidency, the fact remains that Johnson will not win by an overwhelming landslide as in 1964. This will be proven in the various primaries to come.

The hope of those who cherish American ideals and believe in good government with law and order prevailing, is that someone of intelligent and capability will succeed LBJ as President of the United States.

Students Prove School Spirit Exists

The students of Hinds are to be highly commended for a job well done.

The students have proved a point that has been in doubt for some time. We really do have some school spirit. We guess it just takes a long time to draw it out. This school spirit was certainly a welcome sight on our campus. Someone even said that we had the most school spirit since 1957.

This year's homecoming was the most successful ever, thanks to a great number of people. Actually the number of students remaining on campus far exceeded our wildest dreams. We are sure that if you remained on campus you enjoyed it. For this, we owe a note of thanks to the many committees and clubs that helped plan the activities.

These activities were very well organized and certainly proved that the students are interested in the school. The administration as well as faculty was pleased with the sucecss of all the planning.

Indeed, this homecoming proved that the students of Hinds are willing to carry out their ideas and plans. If the students accept their responsibility as a mature college student should, then there will never be any problem the student body cannot solve. If we are willing to work together for a common goal, we can achieve new heights.

Often times, we hear a great deal about various problems on campuses. If we intend to attack any problem, we must prove first that we have the responsibility and the organiation needed even to attempt a solution. The success of the past week were certainly due to such an attempt.

Maybe with the success of homecoming we established a precedent for the student body in which we can move forward with new ideas for our campus.

Surely the credit must go to a united student body that believed in what it was doing. Let us hope the students will continue to believe in their ideas and their work. We can certainly look forward with new hope that we can continue this same attitude for new goals.

Grads Pleased

I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation and that of the administration to the entire student body, faculty and staff for their efforts in making Homecoming on the year of our fiftieth anniversary a huge success.

The Homecoming Committee functioned well and worked long hours in preparing for this momentous event. The student organizations worked hard and long hours in preparing many attractive signs, displays, and decorations. All of these were of superior quality and brought a great deal of comment from the old grads who were surprised to observe the enthusiasm the students had for the college.

Many graduates who had not been on the campus for several years were amazed at the growth both in physical plant and in enrollment. Many of the old grads remembered the college when the agricultural high school was a part of it and college atmosphere left something to be desired.

The Alumni Association is rapidly becoming a strong right hand of the administration as Hinds faces the next half century with its increasing demands for additional community services, improved quality of academic education, and general usefulness to the area and the state we serve. With continued student and alumni help the best years of your college are ahead and you are indeed fortunate to be a part of its growth and service as you take your place in our dynamic society.

Senate Moves To Join Government Association

Bills were passed by the Associated Student Body Senate, at a meeting Tuesday, November 14, to buy a book on parlimentary procedure and join the Southern Association of Student Governments.

Introduced by Chuck Cuendet, Vicksburg, the bill to buy a book of parlimentary procedure stipulated that the book would be passed on to future Senate Parlimentarians. The bill was passed by a majority vote of the senate.

Bill Cole, President of the student body, presented information on the advantages of joining the Southern Association of Student Governments. These advantages included the facts that Association members could get discounts on entertainment, and would be eligible to attend the Association's convention and sportsmanship clinic. After discussing the motion, it was passed by a majority of the senate.

In other action during the meeting, Bob McLeod, Clark Colvin, Steve Graham, Martha Womack, and Ed Payne all gave brief committee reports.

Bruce Gates, senate treasurer, gave a financial report on money made during homecoming by the senate, concluding that the senate now has $125.57 in the bank.

Bruce McArthur, President of the Senate, thanked all senate members for the aid in making homecoming one of the best ever, as did Bill Cole who reported that faculty members were pleased with the amount of school spirit shown. "Some," he added, "stated that they believed it was the most school spirit shown since 1957."

Wilford Predicts

I just got through talking to Uncle Wilford again and now he tells me that he has gone into the profession of picking the different football teams that will appear in the various bowls this holiday season and entertain all the people with hangovers.

Now you have to take into consideration that my Uncle Wilford got his degree from South Hampton Institute of Technology and that some of his ideas for the bowl teams he has are just a wee bit wavy.

For instance, in the Rose Bowl there are usually teams representing the midwest and the far west. Now Uncle Wilford says that Simon Fraser College will meet Bemijidi State College and that Bemijidi State is favored by two points. Yes, those are real honest-to-goodness colleges and they do play football. They probably still wear leather helments and high-top football shoes but they do play the sport.

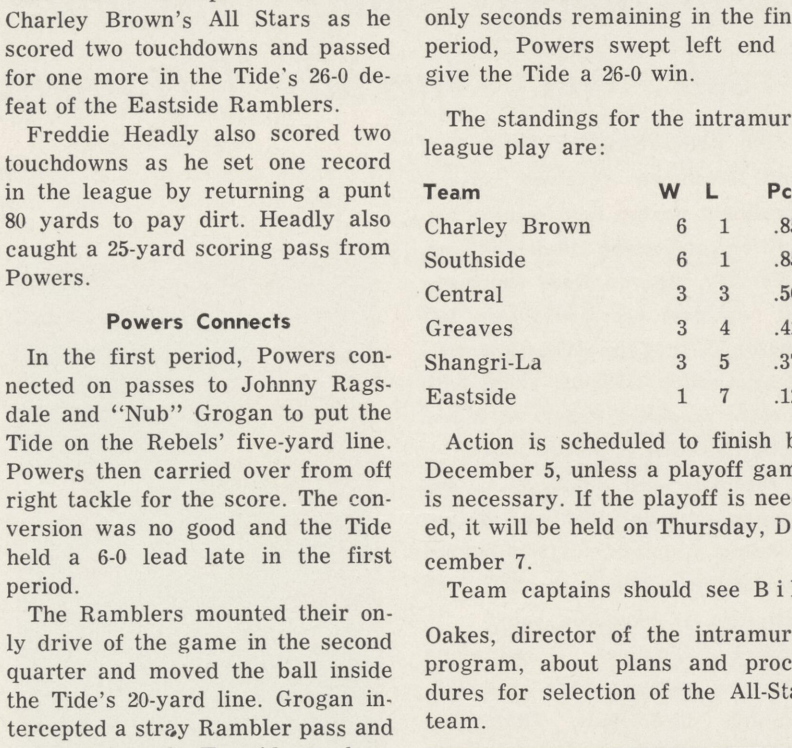
Unc also says that in the Sugar Bowl this year, Frostburg State College will be a nine-point favorite over Mars Hill State College. It seems like Frostburg has a boy playing flanker for them that is so fast he can block kickoffs.

Miami will welcome two strong teams to the Orange Bowl this year as Slippery Rock State Teachers College meets Friends College. Slippery Rock has not won a game all year, so Friends is a 12-point favorite over them.

Morningside State travels to the Cotton Bowl to battle Curry College in a game that sees Curry as a five point underdog to Morningside. Wilford says that this should be the toughest of the bowls since Morningside has a split end named Napolean Leopard that is 6'9" and weighs 121 pounds. Curry sports one of the toughest fullbacks in the league with Little Willie Williams, 4'6" and weighing 285 pounds carrying the ball.

I suppose all you folks think that Uncle Wilford is making up these teams, but I promise you that the teams are for real. Now Uncle Wilford wouldn't lie to you, would he?

Now for the contest that Uncle Wilford is running. The winner of this contest will receive absolutely free a trip to the Super Bowl featuring the Miami Dolphins and the New Orleans Saints. Of course, if these teams don't play in the Super Bowl you have wasted a stamp. Here is all you have to do to win: Finish this sentence in 25 words or . . . .



GROGAN CARRIES — Nub Grogan, halfback for the Southside Tide carries for valuable yardage in last weeks 26-0 victory over the Eastside Ramblers. Grogan is being knocked out of bounds by Rambler linebacker, Bill Monsour. Photo by McKenzie.

Powers Leads Southside Tide Over Eastside Ramblers 26-0

Jimmy Powers led the Southside Tide into a first place tie with Charley Brown's All Stars as he scored two touchdowns and passed for one more in the Tide's 26-0 defeat of the Eastside Ramblers.

Freddie Headly also scored two touchdowns as he set one record in the league by returning a punt 80 yards to pay dirt. Headly also caught a 25-yard scoring pass from Powers.

Powers Connects

In the first period, Powers connected on passes to Johnny Ragsdale and "Nub" Grogan to put the Tide on the Rebels' five-yard line. Powers then carried over from off right tackle for the score. The conversion was no good and the Tide held a 6-0 lead late in the first period.

The Ramblers mounted their only drive of the game in the second quarter and moved the ball inside the Tide's 20-yard line. Grogan intercepted a stray Rambler pass and returned it to the Eastside 25 where Powers connected with Headly for the second TD. Bud McDaniel hauled in Powers' pass for the PAT and the Tide took a 13-0 lead into halftime.

Headly Returns

The Southside defense held the Ramblers to minus yardage in the third period and set the stage for Headly's record breaking punt return. Headly took the punt on his own goal line and returned it all the way untouched. Grogan scored around his right end for the extra point.

Again Powers took to the air in the fourth period with short passes to Ragsdale and Grogan to set up his second TD run of the day. With only seconds remaining in the final period, Powers swept left end to give the Tide a 26-0 win.

The standings for the intramural league play are:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Charley Brown	6	1	.857
Southside	6	1	.857
Central	3	3	.500
Greaves	3	4	.428
Shangri-La	3	5	.375
Eastside	1	7	.125

Action is scheduled to finish by December 5, unless a playoff game is necessary. If the playoff is needed, it will be held on Thursday, December 7.

Team captains should see Bill Oakes, director of the intramural program, about plans and procedures for selection of the All-Star team.

Eagle Hardwood Team Seeks Second JC Title

Coach Troy A. Ricks and his Hinds Eagles open the 1967-68 basketball season December 1 against Mississippi Delta as they go in pursuit of their second straight Mississippi Junior College Conference championship.

Ricks welcomes three returning lettermen from last year's number one squad and one letterman from two years ago. Dave Wells, Anthony Shelton, and Buddy Patrick return from last season's team with James Lyles coming back from the 1965-66 season. Chip Angelo, a transfer from Mississippi State, rounds out the sophomore members.

The freshmen members include, Warren Rowe, Utica; Jimmy Pearson, Florence; Ronnie King, Port Gibson; Fred Beauman, Vicksburg; Jerry Newton, Forest Hill; Pat Fortenberry, Byram; Larry Rimes, Florence; Brian Rowan, Raymond, and Dickie Brock, Vicksburg.

Coach Ricks led the Eagles to a 15-5 season last year in the regular season play and to a perfect 4-0 record in the state playoffs. The head mentor stated, "We have a fine bunch of freshmen this year and with the returnees from last year's squad, we should be able to go all the way once again."

Ricks also commented that, "The opposition will be tough everywhere this year, so we will start with our opener against Delta and work from there."

When asked about the toughest competition that will face the Eagles this year, Ricks gave Perkinston the edge over Northeast. "Perkinston has such a wide area to choose from, that it would be impossible to leave them out of the top picks. Northeast has those type players that do nothing but play basketball the year round and they always pose a problem to not only us but to every one," Ricks added.

Ricks summed his feelings up by saying "Just because we lost a good many boys from last year's team, does not mean that we will not have a good year again. So far these boys have shown me that they have what it takes to go all the way, and I think that we have a better than average chance in the race."

Different areas of the campus were decorated by a total of 12 campus organizations. Each entry was judged as to design, theme, and beauty. This year's theme was to be in keeping with the college's golden anniversary.

"Decorations were very well designed and made," commented Woody Crapps, Commissioner of Grounds and Buildings and head of the homecoming decorations committee, "All of the clubs co-operated in making this a bigger and better homecoming."

Christmas holiday dates for Hinds students have been set for December 19-January 3, announced President Robert M. Mayo.

These dates were a change from the original dates which were set for December 22 through January 7. This change was the result of legislation passed by the Senate requesting that the administration take such measures.

'Eagle' Staff To Sponsor Pageant On November 30

By JEFFRIE LUKE

Five top HJC beauties will be chosen from sophomore and frehman contestants in the annual Beauty Pageant to be held Thursday, November 30, at 8:00 p. m. in the Hinds Auditorium.

The pageant, sponsored by Hinds yearbook, the Eagle, will feature contestants appearing in evening gown competition and parade presentation. Judging will be done solely on beauty.

A panel of five judges, all from out of town, will decide on the five top beauties and the one to be named "Most Beautiful." Serving as master of ceremonies for the pageant will be Woody Assaf.

Nominations for beauties will be done by petition. For a girl to be eligible, her petition must have the signatures of 20 students. Petitions may be obtained from the Public Relations Department, in back of the student union and must be returned by 3:00 p.m. Wednesday, November 22.

Stage decorations will be designed by Mrs. Anna Bee, pageant director, and built by members of the Circle K service club. "The Circle K boys are the greatest help any pageant director could ever enlist. If you want a job done well, call on the Circle K," said Mrs. Bee.

Mr. and Miss Hinds Junior College and class favorites, to be chosen in the Who's Who elections November 28 and 29, will be presented at the pageant.

Commented Linda Patterson, co-editor of this year's Eagle, "We are planning to have one of the best beauty pageants ever with the aid of Miss Bee and the Circle K. The student body of Hinds is urged to co-operate and participate in this very special event of the school year."

"Co-operation on the part of all students," commented Halford, "will make the magazine a great success."

Halford added that students are requested to submit entries to all departments on campus at a later date. Any student interested in working on the magazine may contact Mrs. Laster or Cecil Halford.

HOLIDAY DATES

Official holiday dates for Thanksgiving will begin for Hinds students on Wednesday, November 22, at 3:00 p.m. and will end the following Monday morning.

IRC To Sponsor Viet Nam Debate

By BOBBY CLARK

Debate on the subject of reducing the United State's commitment in Viet Nam will be held November 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium sponsored by the International Relations Club.

The debate will match faculty members Larry McFarlane and Henry Fant of the History department against students Chuck Cuendet, Vicksburg, and Bill Cole, Jackson, who are members of the Hinds debate team.

Debate Topic

The proposition of the debate is Resolved: That the United States sould substantially reduce its commitment in Viet Nam.

Stating his team's position in the debate, Cole commented, "We believe that the United States has entered into a situation which doesn't warrant our involvement legally or morally. We believe that this side should be presented to the students of Hinds and to the people of the nation."

McFarlane Replies

Upon hearing Cole's statement, McFarlane remarked, "We are legally and factually involved in a war in Viet Nam. Whether it is moral or immoral is no longer a question. We must get out after we win the war."

As sponsor of the IRC, McFarlane stated, "The purpose of having this debate is to try to interest the students of Hinds in national affairs." He further comented that the present students of Hinds will soon be voters, taxpayers, and those who fail to keep up their grades might be fighting there. With these prospects in the future, he added that the students should become familiar with the affairs of our country.

McFarlane concluded, "This debate is a part of the continuing effort of Hinds to provide quality programs which concern state and national governments."

Engineering Curriculums Up-Grading Planned By Junior College Consortium

By DAVID HILKERT

Plans for upgrading junior college engineering curriculums received major emphasis in the revamping of the Mississippi Junior College Consortium announced Rosser Wall, Dean of Men.

In co-operation with the University of Mississippi, the junior college consortium has designed a program to present lectures and instruction to be transmitted from the University campus at Oxford to the junior college campuses. Tele-lecture equipment and the Victor electrowriter will be used in the transmissions.

Five Courses

Features will be presented in five basic engineering courses which include: digital computation and numerical methods, Vector mechanics and matrices, solid mechanics, dynamics, electrical circuit theory.

Consultants from Mississippi State University will be furnished to guarantee that all programs as applied to transfer students will be satisfactory to both the 'Ole Miss' and State engineering schools.

Project Director

A project director will be employed to design the courses and to prepare all the necessary visual aids. In addition the director will be responsible for planning two workshops to train classroom moderators and administrators.

The Consortium reports plans to expand to other departments in institutions in the future.

Academic Dean, Floyd S. Elkins requests that all students having received an excessive absence notice, report to his office before the Christmas holidays.

This excessive absence warning involves approximately 48 Hinds students. Dr. Elkins stated that he "urges students to remember the regulations about absences."

Students dropping below a 12 hour course load are dismissed from school. Freshmen dropping or "cutting" themselves out of English or Physical Education by excessive absences are also dismissed from school.

To Propose Legislation

Delegates To Attend Youth Congress

Five delegates representing Hinds will attend the 20th Annual Mississippi Youth Congress scheduled for December 7-9 at the Heidelberg Hotel in Jackson.

The Hinds delegation will join with other colleges from around the state to form the upper house or the senate of the Congress. High school students will compose the lower chamber or the House.

Five Delegates

Bill Cole, Jackson; Chuck Cuendet, Vicksburg; Bobby Clark, Raymond; Barry McCracken, Jackson; Alvin Woods, Bolton; and Fred Brooks, Debate Coach will comprise the delegation.

Each school is allowed five delegates and five non-voting alternates. The alternates from Hinds will be composed of other members of the Hinds Debate class.

All Hinds representatives will be members of the Democratic party throughout Youth Congress. Other parties represented are the Republican and Independent.

Woods to Run

Woods is being run for the office of President Pro-tem of the Senate. If elected he will become the second consecutive Hinds student to hold the post, as Jim Walters, now of Mississippi College, was elected last year.

Cole is campaigning for the position of Democratic Party Leader. This is a new post this year since there were no parties at last year's convention.

Won Eight Awards

At the end of last year's Youth Congress Hinds was recognized as the "Outstanding Delegation" in the Senate by the Director of the Congress and brought home eight awards.

Last year, of the bills proposed by the Hinds delegation, one was passed by the assembly. This year the representatives will propose three bills. A pre-convention workshop on approaches to the teaching of literature was attended by Miss Pickett in addition to the three day convention.

Commenting on the workshop, which dealt in particular with classroom presentation of literature used for second semester freshmen, Miss Pickett stated, "It was very practical and helpful."

Summing up the convention as a whole, Miss Pickett remarked that, "After hearing some of the problems and procedures of various junior colleges throughout the nation, I have a little deeper appreciation for our administration and program at Hinds."

Basketball Games Need Greater Student Support

As most players and coaches will readily admit, school spirit is a mysterious "X-factor" when it comes to athletic competition. A strong display of this spirit or lack of it, has inspired underdogs and caused the upset of favorites.

School spirit cannot be legislated into existence — it is something born in the heart of the individual. It is something that seems to be all too often missing at Hinds athletic events.

This was most true of this season's striking correlation of a poor football record and even poorer school spirit. Indeed, it was not until Homecoming that anything remotely resembling school spirit was being displayed by students at Hinds.

By that time it was too late.

Now basketball season is upon us. Last year's Eagle hardwood team sported a hard-to-beat 19-5 record, climaxed by the winning of the Mississippi Junior College Conference championship.

This year's team may suffer from the lack of returning lettermen, with only three as compared with last year's six.

There is one department in which this year's Eagle basketball team does not lack, and that is potential. It is the duty of every member of the HJC student body, just as much as it is for the coaches and team members, to help develop this potential to its fullest.

All that is required of you is your attendance, some lung power, and a lot of honest spirit. — EP.

Apathy Distorts Elections

Results from the recently held favorite election combined with similar findings in the Homecoming Court ballots show that Hinds students profess little interest in politics and less interest in the activities of the college.

Several student government leaders have expressed the opinion that there is a great deal of apathy in the student body of Hinds. This very well maybe so, as the lack of participation in the voting has shown.

Students evidently do not realize that they possess a voice in the future of the college and can help mold the image that the college projects. By voting in these student elections, they are, in fact, letting their opinions be known.

It is obvious that a large majority of the students feel that their one little vote, not used, could hardly effect the outcome of the election. This, in an ideal situation, would be true. But when such a large portion of students believe this, the effect on the over-all elections could be marked.

Could you imagine what would happen if a large majority of voters decided not to utilize their right in a national election? The effect would be very detrimental to the election results and if the lack of participation were made public, could prove disastrous to the image of the country.

This same principle applies to a college. The amount of support by students for school activities reflects the student body's pride in its school.

Utilize your right as a voter in shaping the image of Hinds Junior College by participation in school elections and letting your voice mold the results. Your vote has more power than you think.—J.C.

Reagan vs Kennedy

Students Voice Presidential Choices

By GAYLE BECK
Feature Editor

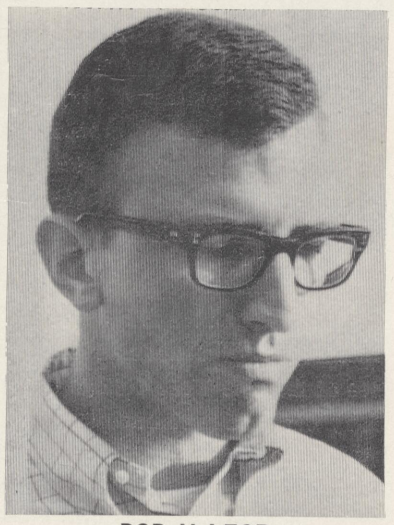
Next year American citizens will be faced with the controversial issue of selecting the President of our nation. In a recent poll taken on campus 25 students were asked questions about the coming election.

They were asked who they would prefer on the Republican and Democratic tickets for President. The Republican candidates listed were Ronald Reagan, George Romney, and Nelson Rockefeller, (Richard Nixon was inadvertently omitted).

Reagan of California won with a majority of 18 votes, he was followed by Romney with only six votes. Rockefeller of New York received only one vote.

Clark Colvin, who cast the only vote for Rockefeller, stated, "Ronald Reagan will never run for President of the United States, and Romney would never win."

Bob McLeod, who pledged his vote to Reagan, commented, "I don't believe that he will ever be a candidate, but I would support him if he were to be."



BOB McLEOD

LINA SORRELL

The Democratic candidates listed were Robert Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Kennedy received 21 votes for a good majority, and Johnson received only one vote. Two voters would not select either candidate, and McCarthy of Massachusetts received one vote.

"I would only have to choose between the lesser of two evils; I would never vote for either of them. I am pledging all my support to George Wallace," stated Mike Ezell.

The second question posed to Hinds students was assuming that these candidates were the presidential and vice presidential nominees in 1968, which ticket would you support if you could vote: Republican: Rockefeller, president; Reagan, vice-president; Democrat: Johnson, president; Hubert Humphrey, vice-president and Independent or Conservative: George Wallace, president; vice-president, unknown.

Republicans came out as winners with 15 of the votes and the Independents with nine, leaving the Democrats with only one.

Bill Summerlin was the only supporter of the Democratic ticket and gave his reasons, "I could not vote for the Independents because I feel that Wallace is an upstart and would not make us a good President. Rockefeller on the Republican ticket would never be elected and if he were he would never make a good president."

Many Republican voters stated that they were not just voting for Rockefeller, but they were voting against the nominess on the Democratic ticket, and would only help in splitting the vote by going Independent.

The students voting Independent gave as their main reason George Wallace. Lina Sorrell stated, "He is from the South and is one of us so I will vote for him."

When asked if they were voting for the individual or the party the 24 answered they were for the individuals, and not for the party as much.

As Electronics Instructors

Graduates Return To Practice Teach

By GAYLE BECK

Two Hinds Junior College graduates have returned as the first student teachers in the Electronics Technology Department of the Vocational-Technical Division.

Randy Smith of Raymond and Thomas Holcombe of Jackson graduated from Hinds in 1936 receiving a Technical Certificate as well as the Associate of Arts Degree. They are now students at Mississippi State University majoring in technical education.

J. W. Cocroft and H. J. Partin, instructors in the electronics department, stated that "They hoped to keep the boys busy enough during their nine weeks here so that this teaching experience would be enlightening and rewarding."

Practice Teaching

Some of the everyday routines of a teacher's life are learned during their practice teaching. Smith and Holcombe observed classroom procedures under the instructors for the first two weeks learning how to handle the text and the students.

Among the most important procedures they learned was the art of making lesson plans and making out tests. "How to come as nearly as possible to meeting the needs of the individual students and how to get the most out of sudents is something we hope to be able to clearly demonstrate to the student teachers," stated Cocroft.

In relation to his education at Hinds Holcombe stated, "My two years of electronic training here prepared me for the study at State. I had a good background in science, math, and English also. I was also able to transfer without losing any credit."

Smith commented that his two years at Hinds helped him to become settled and want to study, and to become adjusted to college life.

Friendly Atmosphere

Both of the student teachers liked the level of personal instruction, the smaller classes, and the friendly atmosphere of Hinds better than the role played by a student as only a number in a class as in some large universities.

Walter Gibbes- Co-Ordinator of the Vocational-Technical Division supplied the background on the student teacher program.

Hinds has been designated as one of the junior colleges participating in the practice teaching program for the senior colleges. These are the first students, but others are expected to follow each year.

Gibbes stated, "For the junior college to have properly trained personnel and technical instructors we must train our people in a coordinated program with the State Department of Education and the designated senior colleges of the state."

Recommend Students

He further commented, "To aid in meeting this need the junior college has been teaching in the technical field only and recommending students to the senior colleges to be trained as instructors."

At the senior colleges they will learn how to teach and present to their students what they have learned at the technical level in the junior college.

Directly Employed

After receiving a B.S. degree they may be employed as teachers, industrial technologists or personnel supervisors. If they are directly employed after study at Hinds they are able to go into many industries as well as paid skilled labor.

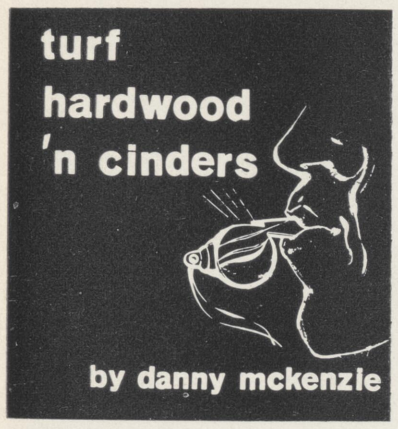
Thanksgiving Spirit Life's Vital Spark

The season of Thanksgiving has come and gone but the spirit of the season need not necessarily pass with the days. The spirit of Thanksgiving could linger with us all year and be a vital spark to make our lives more meaningful, if we would only remember to appreciate the blessings which we enjoy each day.

Truly our blessings are abundant. Opportunities are blessings. To live in a free America, to gain knowledge and, hopefully, wisdom through study and companionship with others here at Hinds, to share with others the joy we feel, or to live each day as it should be lived are just examples of the many blessings we so often take for granted.

And, when considered, seemingly incidental parts of our life, such as an understanding teacher, a loyal friend, or clear fall weather, become more than incidentals. They become the essence of life itself when we recognize them as gifts of God for us as individuals.

We are now in the midst of Religious Emphasis Week. What better time than now is there for us to renew or continue our Thanksgiving spirit? We should be grateful for a man of Dr. Chester Swor's ability being on campus as speaker and counselor this week. Indeed, much planning and prayer has preceded this week, but if we fail to hear and respond to the messages Dr. Swor has for us, we may cheat ourselves out of the greatest blessings of life.



Lew Chews Shoe

The epitome of ridiculousness has been reached. Lew Alcindor and some of his colored brethren are running their mouths about how they are going to boycott the Olympic Games and they haven't even been chosen to compete in them yet.

Of course, Alcindor will be selected since he is probably the best college basketball player in the nation today, but it is just downright ridiculous for him to say that the sports world, in particular these Olympic Games has never done anything for the Negro Race and that too much discrimination is being shown in this field of national interest.

Evidently, the limelight is blinding this young man. There is no area in which the Negro race is given the opportunity to excel to the furtherest extent of his capabilities than this area of sports. The Negroes that have proven themselves to be top-notch athletes have been given the glory and, I might add, the money that goes along with their abilities. Yes, there were the times when the colored man was given rough treatment, but these days are over. If the Negro can do the job on the field or on the court, then he is given the job, and that is the way it should be.

Take a look at professional basketball. There are two men, and these are the only two, that earn over $100,000. These two are Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain, both Negroes, as if you didn't know.

Of course there are some people that do not read the sports pages to find these facts out and so how should they know? This is all right if you are not one of the top sportsfigures in the world as Alcindor is. I guess people like him are just too concerned with themselves to pay any attention and to patronize the sport in which they are so deeply involved. One might say that they bite the hand that feeds them.

Take a look at Orenthal James Simpson, better known as Orange Juice or just plain O. J. Besides being the number one rusher in the nation this season as a junior, and besides being a unanimous All-American, and besides being runner-up in the Heisman Trophy voting, O. J. is a member of the Southern California world's-record holding 440-yard Relay team.

He is in a very good position to join Alcindor and his crew on this boycott nonsense, but instead he chose to represent his country in the Olympics. In a recent interview, he insinuated that the mush-mouths did not know what they were talking about. I agree with him. O. J. is a young man who knows what he wants. How can one help but look up to him when all he wants is to bring fame to the USA and to prove to other nations that we have the best indiscriminatory athletic program in the world today.

Sandra Dabbs Places First In State Singles Rankings

By DANNY McKENZIE

When you're number one, you like to stay that way and when you're number two, you try harder.

At least that's the way Miss Sandra Dabbs, girl's physical education director, feels about her tennis rankings. In 1966, Miss Dabbs was named number one in Mississippi in women's doubles along with her partner, Anna Price. In 1967 she teamed with Joan White to again take the number one rankings in the state.

After finishing number two in women's singles behind Carol Ann Vest in 1966, Miss Dabbs was recently named as the number one women's singles player in Mississippi fr her feats this past year.

All Over State

Miss Dabbs competed all over the state this year to capture the title. She participated in the Jackson City Tournament where she and her partner took first place in the doubles competition and she finished number two in the singles competition.

Since variety is the spice of life, Miss Dabbs and her partner must have decided to change the scenery a little, and in the Mississippi Closed Tournament she and her partner took second place in the women's doubles while Miss Dabbs went on to take first place honors.

In the River Hills Club of Jackson, Miss Dabbs decided that second place was not for her, no matter what the category was, so she teamed up with Miss White to take the women's doubles as well as copping the women's singles honors.

Outstanding Student

Miss Dabbs is a product of Aberdeen High School where she was elected Miss Aberdeen High her senior year. While at Aberdeen, she finished first in North Mississippi in women's singles her sophomore year. Her junior and senior year, she finished second place in North Mississippi.

Upon graduating from Aberdeen High, Miss Dabbs continued her education at the University of Mississippi where she and Susie Rau went on to capture second place in the women's doubles competition in the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament. While at Ole Miss, she was named a class favorite as well as being elected Secretary of the Associated Student Body.

She was also treasurer of Tri Delta Sorority and Vice President of Phi Gamma Nu, an honorary business fraternity. Miss Dabbs graduated with a B.S. degree in commerce and is now pursuing her masters degree in guidance and counseling at Mississippi College.

Tennis Coach

Miss Dabbs handled the tennis team at Hinds last year with Frank Stephenson. She and Stephenson coached the girls to a second place finish in the state and led the boys to the state championship.

Since Stephenson is on leave from Hinds this year, Miss Dabbs will coach both tennis teams by herself. Who could ask for a better coach than the number one women's singles and doubles player in the state?

All-Stars Compete In V'ball Tourney

Mrs. Susan Dean, girl's physical education instructor, announced recently that the Women's Recreation Association All-Star Volleyball Team will attend the annual University of Southern Mississippi Women's Volleyball Tournament Friday and Saturday, December 8 and 9.

The All-Star team, which recently defeated the Mississippi College women's team, 15-1 and 15-3, will meet such competition as University of Southern Mississippi, William Carey, MSCW, and Mississippi College.

Frosh Clash With Sophs In Powder Puff Action

WRA's annual Powder Puff football game, featuring the Freshman Bods against the Sophomore Spazzies, will take place in Eagle Stadium, Wednesday November 13 at 7:00 p.m.

Head Coach Johnny "Vince" Campbell of the freshmen and sophomore head coach, Wiley "Bear" Aldridge have promised another bruising football game this year with the Bods relying heavily on the passing of quarterback Briria Grayson and Spazzies relying on the ground with Pat Glaze and Sue Chiles carrying the load.

The sophomores will have to rely heavily on a defensive team with All-American candidate, Bruiser Cahoon leading the number one defensive unit in the nation. Cahoon will team up with an all conference choice, Phyllis Ainsworth, a defensive end, to lead the most feared pass rush of all time.

Ground Attack

Coach Aldridge commented that, "Even though Nancy Chappa is a good passer, she is better as a runner and we will have to keep our attack on the ground. Childs has been very effective this week in practice and Glaze has combined her speed with her movements to become one of the best backs in the game today."

Freshman defensive line coach, Glynn Bell, stated, "Our line is going to have to get up for this game since their running attack is so potent. Our offensive unit is probably the most thrilling team that you have ever witnessed and the ball will definitely be put in the air."

Sophomore coaches include: Aldridge, Robert Baker, Robert Hoseman, and Richard Hawthorne. Coaches for the freshmen are: Campbell, Bell, Bill Hall, Jim Vincent, Raul Sierra, and Ronnie Torrance.

Tickets for the game which will include the crowning of the WRA Homecoming Queen, halftime entertainment by the nationally famous Circle K Hi-Stompers and the Eagle record player, and the lively cheerleading of the sweetest cheerleaders this side of the Pearl River, can be purchased from any WRA member for 50 cents.

The homecoming queen for 1967 is Randy Parker and his maids are Bud Birdsong and Don Theobald, freshmen; and Derle Underwood and Gerald Giles, sophomore.

HJC Stalwarts Selected As All-Stars

Three players will represent Hinds in the Second Annual Mississippi Junior College All Star game to be played in the Mississippi Memorial Stadium on Saturday, December 9.

Richard Hawthorne, Mike Corbin and Doug Walsh were chosen by the Mississippi JC Coaches to represent Hinds in the game that is sponsored by the Jackson Police Department for the benefit of the policemen's hospital fund.

Hawthorne is a 5'8", 165-pound fullback and linebacker for the Eagles. He played his high school football at Jackson Central where he made honorable mention on the All Big Eight squad his senior year, along with being chosen as co-captain of the Tigers. Hawthorne was recently chosen to the honorable mention junior college all state team for the second time.

Corbin, another All Big Eight performer from Vicksburg Cooper, was chosen to the South All State team his senior year in high school. Corbin is a 6'1", 210-pound offensive guard and defensive end who made the junior college honorable mention list last year and this year he was named to the first team.

Walsh comes to Hinds from Forest Hill where he was an All North Little Dixie standout in 1965 at his center post. He is a 6'1", 208-pound guard who made the switch from center to bolster the Eagle interior line. Walsh also was named recently to the honorable mention team for the second year.

The South All Stars will be quartered at Hinds and the North team will be housed at the Police Training Center with their workouts being held at Hughes Field. The South will work out on the Hinds campus. Tickets for the ball game are $3 each and can be purchased at the junior colleges throughout the state and the Jackson Police Department.

Hardwood Team Opens Season With Victories

By BILL SUMMERLIN

Hinds Eagles collected their first basketball win by beating the Jones Bobcats, 83-70 in the second game of the Southwest Tournament held at Summit, November 27 and 28.

Hinds opened their regular season play with a victory over the Mississippi Delta Trojans by the score of 72-54, but were turned away from a second victory by the Northwest Rangers Saturday night, 86-82.

Anthony Shelton and Dave Wells spearheaded the first period attack, as both hit baskets in key spots. Rebounding for the Eagles was weak as they trailed by a one point deficit at the half.

Coach Troy A. Ricks and company came back with a 44 point second half to win the game with a 13 point advantage. Wells and Chip Angelo led the second effort for Hinds.

Leading the scoring for Hinds was Shelton with 21 points as Wells followed with 17. Angelo and Buddy Patrick rounded out the scoring for the Eagles with 16 and 11.

In first round action of the tournament, the Eagles were defeated by the Co-Lin Wolves, 79-76. The Eagles were trailing 20 points at the half as the Wolves rallied late in the initial stanza.

Second half scoring was led by Wells, as the Eagles outscored their opponents 44-30, but to no avail as the Wolves held on to their lead and took the win by three points.

Scoring for Hinds was led by Wells with 27 points, followed by Shelton with 16. Free throw inaccuracy played an important part in the loss as the Eagles only hit four for 12.

In the Hinds-Delta game, the Eagles jumped out to a second half lead, paced by the shooting of Anthony Shelton and Dale Wells, to hold off a Trojan rally, and preserve their 18 point victory.

First half action saw the lead jump back and forth several times, but with two minutes gone in the second half, Shelton went to work and started burning the nets for his leading 21 points. Wells and James Lyles followed Shelton in the scoring race with 16 and 10 points each.

In the Northwest game, three Eagles hit for double figures again, but three starters fouled out in the closing minutes to enable the Rangers to take a four-point win.

The Eagles outscored the Northwest hardwooders in the second half, 55-46, but a 14 point deficit at halftime was too much to overcome. Shelton, who again led the Hinds scorers with 26 points, kept the Eagles in the game until foul trouble forced him to leave late in the second half.

Shelton was high man for Hinds with James Lyles ripping the nylon for 20 points, 18 in the second half, and Dave Wells hitting for 16. Cecil Williams of Northwest led all scorers with 31 points.

Gulf Coast JC Delegates Discuss Student Problems

By ED PAYNE

Representatives from the Gulf Coast Junior College District toured the Hinds Junior College campus Friday, December 1, and discussed various student problems with members of the HJC student body.

The student representatives, numbering approximately 30 members, were visiting the campus as part of a tour of colleges throughout the state.

Hinds students conferring with the delegates, whose district comprises Jackson, Jefferson Davis, and Perkinston Junior College, included Bill Cole, Bruce McArthur, Bob McLeod, Clark Colvin, Bobby Clark, and Martha Womack.

Included in the informal talks held in the Meeting Room of the Student Union Building were the problems of raising money for student government needs and planning school activities.

Charles Smith, who headed the representatives, praised Hinds commenting, "It has the best junior college student government we have observed and compares favorably with the student governments of several senior colleges."

Remarked Bill Cole on the meeting, "Aside from offering assistance to the delegation, our talks also proved to be educational for us. For one thing, we, coming from a progressive school, were shocked at the relaxed dormitory rules for the girls in the Gulf Coast district, more relaxed than those of the supposedly progressive Hinds."

Construction Work Begins On Fine Arts Facilties

By JOANN NEAL

Construction of the new $773,000 fine arts building to be located behind the Student Union Building is now underway as workers aim for a completion date of November 22, 1968.

Designer of the building is architect George Brock of Jackson, who also designed the McLendon Library, the Student Union Building, and Greaves Hall.

Contracts Awarded

Campbell Construction Company of Jackson was awarded the general contract; D. W. Young Plumbing Company of Jackson received the mechanics contract, and Lee Electric Company, the electric contract.

Financing of the construction comes from state bond money and a Federal grant of 40 percent of the cost. State funds total $450,000 and Federal funds, $300,000.

The building, which will cover 39,000 square feet of floor space, will house the departments of music, art, foreign language, and speech. In addition to classrooms, it will contain art and music studios.

Lecture Rooms

Twenty practice rooms, a music library, a small recital room, and two large lecture rooms will also be located in the building. The lecture rooms will be used primarily for the social studies and psychology departments.

Long range plans call for the removal of the old music building to make room for a parking lot. The downstairs portion of the library will become an educational media center where students can dial lectures and gather information needin study.

Under the present state law, students of voting age who attend school outside their voting district are not allowed to vote in state elections by absentee ballot.

Cole Introduces

Bill Cole, ASB president, introduced the resolution which provides for absentee balloting by students whose school work prevents them from being present to vote in their district.

Other schools which have passed the resolution include the University of Mississippi, Mississippi State University, the University of Southern Mississippi and Delta State. The resolution was also endorsed at the Mississippi Youth Congress.

The resolution reads:

"Whereas, many qualified Mississippi voters are being enrolled in colleges and universities, and,

"Whereas, a state that does not provide to all of its qualified voters the convenience for their exercising the guaranteed right to vote is not a representative state or government nor a complete form of democratic process, and,

"Whereas, the state of Mississippi does not provide an efficient system for all persons who would be affected by an absentee ballot. therefore:

"Be it resolved by the Hinds Junior College Associate Student Body that the Mississippi State Legislature in regular session 1968 amend section 3196 of the Mississippi Code, in order allowing any stu dent enrolled in any college or university, and who is a qualified elector at the time of any primary, general, special or municipal election, to vote in such elections by absentee ballot, if his pursuit of an education necessitates his absence from such elections."

A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Governor-elect, lieutenant governor-elect, and to members of the Hinds County delegation in the state legislature.

Sowell Takes Post On Hill January 2

Public Relations Director Ralph Sowell, Jr., will become a Legislator on January 2 when he will be sworn in by Secretary of State Heber Ladner.

Sowell will represent Hinds County in the House of Representatives, filling Post 4. He will continue to hold his position at Hinds since the position is not a full time job.

Sowell said, "The House meets only in the afternoons, and hardly ever meets on Monday and Friday afternoons, which means we will be in session most weeks for only parts of three afternoons. In addition, we will be in session only about three to four months."

The House will act on only token and routine bills until January 16, when John Bell Williams is inaugurated the state's 55th Governor.

Chemistry Teachers Discuss Programs In Junior Colleges

Problems and aspects of college's chemistry departments were discussed at the Regional Two Year College Chemistry Conference held at Little Rock, Arkansas.

William Griffin, head of the Hinds chemistry department, and Richard Adkins, chemistry instructor, attended the conference which was held December 8 and 9.

The conference, sponsored by the Division of Chemistry Education of the American Chemical Society, was one of the four conferences to be held through the school year.

Face Problems

"This was a very informative conference," commented Griffin, "we were able to see the problems facing the chemistry departments of junior colleges in relation to the four year colleges."

Griffin was chairman of the group discussion, "Problems Involving Large Two Year Colleges," and stated that Hinds was considered one of the large junior colleges in this region.

Receive Ideas

The instructors received ideas as to how to help students reinforce their background as well as how to sectionalize the incoming students.

Griffin added, "We also discussed trying to change our courses to coincide with the courses throughout the nation, so it will involve considerably more instrumentation."

Approximately 100 representatives from Pennsylvania to Hawaii attended the conference. including representatives from four Mississippi junior colleges.

Season's Spirit Renews Youth

I am the Christmas spirit!

I enter the home of poverty, causing palefaced children to open their eyes, in pleased wonder.

I cause the miser's clutched hand to relax, and thus paint a bright spot on his soul.

I cause the aged to renew their youth and to laugh in the old, glad way.

I keep romance alive in the heart of childhood, and broghten sleep with dreams woven of magic.

I cause eager feet to climb dark stairways with filled baskets, leaving behind hearts amazed at the goodness of the world.

I cause the pridigal to pause a mment on his wild, wasteful way, and send to anxious love some little token that releases glad tears — tears which wash away the hard lines of sorrow.

I enter dark prison cells, reminding scared manhood of what might have been, and pointing forward to good days yet to be.

I come softly into the still, white ho emof pain, and lips that are too weak to speak, just tremble in silent, eloquent gratitude.

In a thousand ways I cause the weary world to look up into the face of God, and for a little moment forget the things that are small and wretched.

I am the Christmas spirit!

On Part Of Students

Disciplinary Committee Asks For Responsibility

By JUDY JOHNSON

"Students should be mindful at all times that they are representing Hinds, whether on or off campus," emphasized Chairman of the Disciplinary Committee, Floyd Elkins.

Students at Hinds are encouraged to assume responsibilities for their personal conduct appropriate to their age and maturity. Students are expected to observe the following general principles: conform to accpetable standards of decency, morality, and courtesy be truthful; respect the rights of others; be punctual and regular in atendance at classes and assemblies; and have regard for all college property.

Most patrons of Hinds judge the student body by the behavior patterns of students as they are seen off campus. As a result, Hinds students have traditionally been considered, in general, to be well mannered, courteous, and well groomed.

Elkins remarked, "No student on campus, if questioned, would not want to uphold this tradition. However, on occasion a certain type student will appear to be unconcerned about displaying acceptable conduct. It would be advantageous to any student enrolled at Hinds to remember, especially when he is off campus, that other people are observing him as 'Hinds Junior College'."

Phi Beta Lambda Holds Holiday Party

By JUDY JOHNSON

Phi Beta Lamda held its annual Christmas party Wednesday afternoon, December 13 in the reserve lounge announced Judy Webb, club president.

Discussion of plans for the sale of a student directory early next semester were brought before the club. This project will be a fund raising activity to help pay the club's expenses to the annual Phi Beta Lambda convention to be held in March this year at the University of Mississippi.

Committee progress reports were given concerning plans being made for seven contests to be entered by the club at the convention.

These committee reports were given by the chairmen of: Extemporaneous Speech, Richard Sullivan, Jackson; Vocabulary Relay, Pat Dear, Florence; Best Exhibit, Ralph Fryant, Jackson; Mr. and Miss Future Business Executive, Tom Wells, Raymond; Mr. and Miss Future Business Teacher, Sherry Baker, Jackson; Talent, Bob Williams, Jackson; and Most Original Project, Margie Briggs, Jackson.

Preparation for the campaign of a Hinds student for a state office at the convention was also discussed. Club support will be used to nominate Judy Webb, club president, for either state vice-president or secretary.

Worship Services Held Wednesdays

Vespers, an interdenominational worship service, is held at 6:00 p.m. every Wednesday in the music auditorium.

Those selected this year to serve on the Vespers committee, which plans the services and programs, represent every religious club organized on campus.

Members of the committee include Wesley representatives Andy Gallman and Gary Knight, Jackson; and Sherry Wright, Brandon.

Westminster committee members are Louis Aldridge, Jackson; Judy Hand, Raymond; and Vivian Jarvis, Brandon. Representing the Newman club are Paul Reihle, J. R. Marascalco, and James Nastasi, all of Jackson; and Bill Ammons, Charleston.

Students serving as committee members from the Baptist Student Union include Wally Byrd, Jackson; Jimmy Harrison, Yazoo City; and Doris Fanning, Clinton.

Andy Gallman is chairman of the vespers committee aided by co-chairman Paul Reihle. Serving as faculty advisor is Mrs. Anne Liddell.

Each religious club has charge of vespers in a rotating order. Members of the vespers committee have urged all students to come to the services.

RUBEL PHILLIPS

Phillips Endorses Two Party System

By ED PAYNE

Rubel Phillips, Jackson lawyer and former Republican gubernatorial candiidate, spoke to a sparce assembly of 100 students December 12, on the two-party system in Mississippi.

Speaking at the invitation of Hinds' newly formed Young Republican Club, Phillips proclaimed that the greatest problem facing the state was the people feeling they had no right to disagree politically.

Cole Introduces

Phillips was introduced by Associated Student Body president Bill Cole as a man who has "Made inroads in the political system of Mississippi."

In his talk Phillips complained that many Mississippians want "one great big happy Democratic party," while the history of our country has shown that the checks and balances of the two-party system are "The best we know anything about."

Personality Races

He noted that the state's gubernatorial campaigns were "not oriented to the issues" but rather to the candidates personality. "The real problem in Mississippi politics," Phillips summed up, "is that we are not discussing the real issues."

These issues, explained Phillips, include the fact that one third of the people in the state are unproductive and a drag on the economy. Also, Phillips observed that while many politicians show public disdain for federal aid, "the state cannot survive without it."

Phillips concluded his talk by stating his opinion that the future o fthe state rest in the hands of the people under 30 years of age who honestly believe the two party system will benefit the state.

Christmas Carols Scheduled By BSU

Wally Byrd, Baptist Student Union president, has announced the annual Christmas caroling and party scheduled for Monday night, December 18 at 6:30 p.m. at the BSU center.

The group will go Christmas caroling, after which they will return to the center for refreshments and singing. Students attending are asked to bring either fruit or canned goods.

The canned goods will be taken to a needy family while the fruit will be taken to the Home for the Aged.

B. J. Frew encouraged, "All Baptist students that wish to attend this annual social event are welcome."

Christmas Gifts, Decorations Available From College Store

By BILL SUMMERLIN

Christmas items including gifts and decoration for the up-coming holiday season have been announced on sale in the college book store by Mrs. Margaret Kimball, manager.

Gifts are available for mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters or just plain friends and can be wrapped by the bookstore sales force for a minimum charge of five cents.

Among the gift items on sale are dolls, shaving lotion and cologne, and Christmas cards. Wrapping paper, tag cards, ribbon and bows are also available.

There is a limited supply of Christmas tree decorations. Students are advised to shop early in order to insure getting such items as tree snow or ornaments.

Students who have younger brothers or sisters will be interested in the Christmas book with stories varying from religious to amusement, classics of Christmas stories.

Decorations for the doors or windows are on sale also. They range from bells to foil candles along with wreaths and multi-colored lights for either tree or door.

Santa Rewards Children

Genial, jovial, red-cheeked and white-bearded. As any child can tell you, that's how Santa Claus looks.

But the benevolent giver of presents has not always been pictured like this, nor has he always traveled by sligh or brought his gifts on Christmas Eve. In fact, he has not always been named Santa Claus!

"Santa Claus" is in truth a child's uphonic way of expressing the Dutch "Saint Nikolaas," or St. Nicholas, says The Encyclopedia Americana.

St. Nicholas, a fourth-century bishop, was later honored, in Europe, as a friend to children. Legend finds him making his rounds on December 5th, the eve of St. Nicholas Day, with gifts to reward children for good behavior.

Instead of a jolly red suit, St. Nicholas wore a robe, of tabard, and for that reason he really didn't need a sleigh, or even a horse. His robe enabled him to travel from place to place, instantly.

In Holland, however, he was said to use a horse for his journey at night over the roofs.

Dutch settlers brought St. Nicholas to the New World, where he gradually changed his name to Santa Claus and traded his horse and robe for reindeer and a red suit.

It was Clement C. Moore, in his poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas" who made Santa into a jolly elf "Saint Nick," who rides "in a miniature sleigh drawn by eight tiny reindeer."

Motorists Forget Rules; Add To Traffic Fatalities

Holiday seasons such as Christmas and New Years seem to be one of the high points for traffic fatalities as motorists flock to the roads to visit relatives or to complete their shopping lists.

Filled with the good cheer of Christmas, the drivers sometimes forget the basic rules of good driving and end up a statistic on the growing rolls of the misfortunate.

Facts show that since the car has been invented more people have been killed on the highways than in all of the wars in which the United States has been involved.

The National Safety Council warns motorists to be careful throughout the holiday season as the number of drivers increase. Combined with the greater number of cars, there is also the presence of those drivers who insist on drinking as they drive which doubles the chance of automobile fatalities.

As you enjoy this holiday season, remember to observe all driving rules and safety procedures. Hinds likes all of its students and would like to have all of them return safe and sound after the holidays.—JC

Season Boosts Good Will

Christmas spirit is that indefinable force which captures people throughout the world and carries them through the season on a cloud of good will. Perhaps it is this type of spirit that the peoples of the world need all year round.

During wars, racial strife, theoretical peace movements and international dissension, a kindred spirit of good will is badly needed.

In the United States and Europe there is a large faction of dissenting people who call themselves hippies. These people live under a code of peace, and advocate a doctrine of love toward their fellow man. They are dropouts from the human race who refuse to accept this "rat race" and believe that the world owes them a living. These people too, have a spirit.

But this spirit is one of worldly denial which seeks only to isolate them from the set patterns of routines and to establish a set of their own which are unacceptable in any society.

Dissension seems to be a popular type of spirit in the United States as riots are a frequent thing, and strife has become a familiar word on the news.

These things all advocate a type of spirit which is prevalent year round but does nothing good for mankind except to attempt to destroy him.

Christmas time would be an especially good season for all people to resolve their differences and for the American people to pray for the safe return of the troops abroad as international differences are brought to a close.

This season was once described as a time for everyone to be jolly, a time for giving of blessings and thanks and a time for evaluating the past year and planning for the new.

Perhaps this time will return to the thoughts of men and the dismal mist of dissension and general upheaval will lift and be forgotten. That is the type of spirit that is found at Christmas, only once a year, but the type that is needed every day.—JC

Rich Customs

World's Christmas Celebrations Vary

By BILL REIMAN

Christmas is the most important and most meaningful holiday in every Christian country in the world; however, that is where the similiarities end.

Dried thorns are burned in Bagdad homes at Christmas to foretell the future of the household for the coming year. When the fire is out everyone jumps over the ashes and makes a wish.

Shoes Outside

French children put their shoes outside for the Petit Jesu to fill. This custom started long ago when children placed their shoes, filled with oats, on the doorstep for the camels of the three wise men so that they might eat while on their way to Bethlehem. If they had been good children they found that the wise men had left gifts in their shoes.

Food, of course, plays a great part in all Christmas'. The Poles are most noted for their wafers stamped with representative religious figures and blessed by the priests. These are given away as gifts — and even as Christmas cards.

To be considered fortunate in Serbia your Christmas cake must be the one containing a sliver coin.

12 Foods

Mexican housewives must have 12 different kinds of food on the table at the Holy Supper. One of these foods is the traditional Kutia partaken of by every member of the family when prayers are said and wishes expressed for the coming year. Then the housewife dashes some of the wheat-based Kutia from a spoon into every corner of the house, saying, "May all evil fail to our sheep and cattle, as this wheat fails to take to the wall."

No two countries celebrate Christmas alike. Each has its own customs drawn from its own heritage. For example, during part of the 17th century, in England Christmas was abolished by law because the celebration was too rowdy.

These different customs of different countries add richly to the overall celebration of Christmas throughout the world.

Fir Represents Life Everlasting; History Reveals Popular Legend

By BILL SUMMERLIN

Have you ever wondered what right a huge fir tree has to dominate a 20th century home, every year around the 25th of December?

The fir has become a symbol of the very essence of Christmas and has made a place for itself in the homes of all Christian people. One reason for the fir being used as the Christmas tree is that it doesn't turn deadish brown with the first hints of frost like other trees but stays green year round. This represents life everlasting as in Jesus Christ.

Many Legends

There are many legends about how the Christmas tree came into use but the most popular one is about Saint Boniface. It seems that Saint Boniface was a missionary preacher in Germany and during his wanderings he came upon an oak tree. Boni-face chopped down the oak tree and where the oak was growing, a tiny fir tree sprang up. Saint Boniface took advantage of this miracle and told the people that they were supposed to take this tree into their homes as a symbol of Chrismas and that custom has lived up until today.

Different Trees

Lately different kinds of trees have been used as the symbol of Christmas. There are trees made of tin foil and plastic along with multi-colored trees. If one were to feel the urge he could probably buy a polka-dot tree with psychedelic branches.

Present day has brought about many changes in the Christmas tree, but the meaning is still the same.

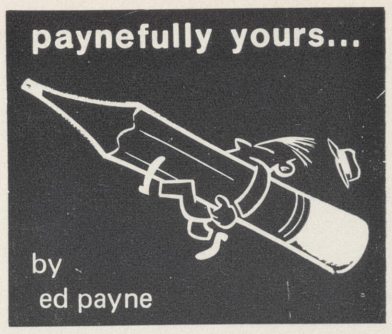
"White Christmas" Represents Dream

For a quarter of a century people have been sentimentally dreaming their way through a "White Christmas."

It was in 1941, the black-clouded war years had already begun, when Hollywood released a motion picture entitled: "Holiday Inn." The star of this movie was the ever-popular crooner, Bing Crosby. But perhaps the real star of "Holiday Inn" was the song written by Irving Berlin: "White Christmas."

Through the ensuing 25 years, over 100 versions of the song have been recorded by almost as many artists, yet "White Christmas" is synonymous with the name of Bing Crosby.

The poignant Christmas message that's found in the song has made it popular 'round the world. It has French, Chinese, German, Spanish, Hungarian, the Scandinavian languages, several Polynesian tongues, and even Swahili.



Buy Napalm Nick!

As we all know, it is the day after Thanksgiving, just after we are getting over that big turkey dinner and just before we are looking forward to months upon months of turkey left overs, that the first sign of the Christmas season arrives.

The first sign of Christmas? Is that the decorations, or te music on the radio ("Let's all rock out to this new version of that great old favorite 'Noel,' folks" the DJ cheerfully shouts), or is it perhaps the 30,000 Santa Clauses that jam the department stores? No, the first sign that Christmas is just around the corner is—

"Napalm Nick! That's right all you young G.I.'s out there, you know what to demand for Christmas, good old Napalm Nick. This is the soldier toy that is more than a toy—it DESTROYS. Napalm Nick comes complete with an anti-tank gun, mortar, machine gun, two 45 caliber pistols, and a miniature atomic cannon!

"As a limited Christmas offer, with each Napalm Nick you buy you get a free genuine looking Draft card, which you can keep in your wallet, or burn like the older kids do.

"Don't delay another day. Get Napalm Nick today and wipe out your neighborhood before some other kid beats you to it.

"Napalm Nick costs only $240, so you shouldn't have to throw too much of a temper tantrum to get your folks to put up the loot. Napalm Nick is available wherever lethal toys are sold. Remember:

"Napalm Nick, he is the best
For lots of fun without a rest.
He's so vicious that as a rule
He'll make your friends all blow their cool!"

That's right, the first sign of Christmas is those gosh awful commercials urging all kids to go out there and, by any and all means necessary, get their greedly little hands on this or that toy.

"Girls, you simply will not be out of the "in crowd" if you don't own Molly Model for your very own. Molly Model and all her friends — Horney Harry and Sisiter Sally all are bargain priced at only ten cents each.

"However — just between us — what your parents don't know is that Molly Model's clothes cost a fortune! And mommy and daddy have to buy them.

"So buy Molly and her friends today and start your family on the road to bankruptcy with her 2000 piece wardrobe, not to mention the Molly Model Jaguar sports car, cabin cruiser, and split level home.

"And don't forget that with each piece of Molly Model merchandise you buy there comes absolutely free a bottle of play birth control pills."

Now some of you may think these examples are mildly exaggerated, obviously you haven't been looking at the Saturday morning Kiddy Kartoon Show lately.

"Okay all you fun-loving brats out there, you all know what you want and now here it is at last— Big Bertha Battleship. This is an

What Students At HJC Want --- Nothing

The small liberal arts colleges are almost dead. Yet Hinds hasn't even reached the atmosphere of a small liberal arts school. So where does that put us.

It seems that many schools are fastly becoming "degree factories" with no hope whatsoever for an education for the student. We must do better than that. Diogenes said, "The foundation of every state is the education of its youth." We can only hope that we will not resort to a poor foundation.

However, the "degree factory" is not the fault of the school. The blame can be placed primarily on the non-involvement of a student body. Although it is the duty of the school to provide the challenge for its student body to become involved in the various facets of educational life in a college.

Certainly no one is hoping for a highly intellectual atmosphere. But we can hope that students will provide some type of intellectual curiosity to a campus upon which a school can build a strong foundation.

But what do the students of Hinds want? Obviously the answer is nothing. Last week's issue of the Hindsonian had an interesting editorial about apathy existing on campus. This was brought out by the recent elections at Hinds. Perhaps this theme can never be over emphasized especially at Hinds Junior College.

On campus we can find numerous "authorities" on the problem of the school, however, you can never find anyone willing to do anything about it. No one is willing to volunteer a sensible and workable solution that they are willing to follow.

It is high time the students became involved. Involved in getting an education, not only through books and lectures but through an atmosphere of a liberal arts involvement.

One reason for this apathy that results from non-involvement is the name of the school. Often we hear people speak up and defend their do nothingness and non-involvement with the excuse that they are attending a Junior College. Perhaps the word Junior has received the wrong connotation and it is time to change.

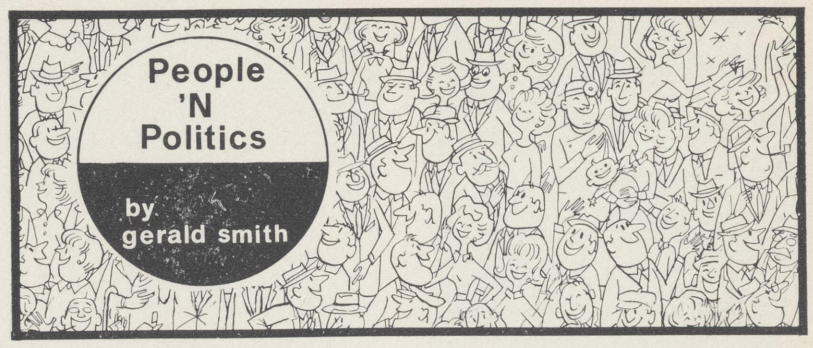
Consequently this connotation leads to the non-involvement of the student body. The students began to feel that by attending a Junior College he is in some sort of waiting period before he can really go off to college. In this way the student is living in the wrong frame of mind and by doing so adds to the weakness of the student body as well as to the school.

Conceivably, we have a lot to be proud of here at Hinds but certainly this weakness is not one of them. The more we talk with other Junior Colleges the harder it is to defend Hinds. We cannot rest on our laurels of the past. We are growing in size, we should also grow in the college atmosphere field. Before too long if we do not grow in other areas we could find ourselves attending an archaic college in new buildings.

The stability and life of a college does not entirely depend upon financial success. Let's hope that Hinds never reaches a period where this is true.

If we hope to someday reach the realm of being a real college we must offer this involvement to the student. But the solution is a two way bridge. Each of us must help build the bridge and then go his way on that bridge.

But that bridge must include a strong foundation and that foundation will truly be an education. If we cannot achieve these goals then we, too, as a Junior College will have the same plight that a great number of liberal arts colleges now find themselves; one of non-existence.



Senator McCarthy To Challenge LBJ

Senator Eugene McCarthy, senior U. S. Senator from Minnesota, recently announced that he would challenge Lyndon B. Johnson's bid for re-nomination by the Democratic Party, in accord with his outcome in the Presidential Primaries he will enter in four states.

This certainly comes as no surprise to the American people. There has been wide speculation that he would take this step for the past several weeks.

McCarthy has stated that his reason for challenging President Johnson is to help the Democratic Party by changing the platform of the party or to change the administrations' present role in Viet Nam.

McCarthy criticizes the present U. S. policy on the grounds that the U. S. is spending too much money on the war. He believes that this money should be used to finance federal governmental programs such as the so-called anti-poverty program.

McCarthy has been widely accused of advocating "peace at any price," however, he declines from this accusation by stating that his real purpose is to work out an honorable, rational, and political solution to the war. However, he fails to make clear his real position on the war.

Even though senator McCarthay's support may seem to be growing in some sections of the country, he is viewed as a weak, hopeless candidate. Many people believe McCarthy will do no more than split the liberal-Democratic vote in the East, while at the same time commit political suicide for himself. Others believe his actions will change the Democratic Party platform to a more 'soft' on communism Foreign Policy.

What the impact of Senator McCarthy's threat on President Johnson remains to be seen; however it will give President Johnson something to think about, while he makes plans for re-election.

For those who back our boys in Viet Nam and want our nation to win a victory in Southeast Asia, Senator McCarthy does not take a place in on their hearts. Even though Senator McCarthy doesn't advocate 'Peace at any Price,' it is plain to see that he would be willing to sacrifice principle for an illegitimate peace.

Tropical Poinsettia Yuletide Newcomer

"What color is the blossom of the poinsettia plant?" Chances are, your answer will be, "Red, of course."

Actually, the red "blossoms" of the plant — are leaves. The real blossoms are the tiny yellow flowers in the center of the red cluster.

A comparative newcomer to the traditional Yuletide greenery, the tropical poinsettia was discovered in Mexico in 1828 by Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett, first U. S. minister to Mexico. He aroused interest in its beauty, and the plant is named for him.

Albert Ecke, a California farm, er, developed and improved the plant, and first marketed it in 1906.

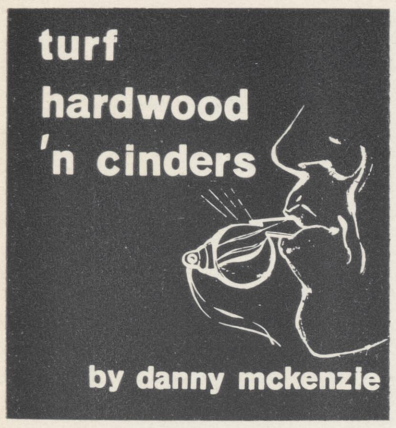
Renewal Of Spirit

The most enjoyable season of the year is approaching for students and teachers. The Christmas holidays give us a well deserved respite from study, classes, and the routine of college work. We will for two weeks visit with our families and friends. Old friends will be visited or will visit with us and good will, kindness, and gratitude will dominate our lives. The joyous season will probably be followed by the usual New Year's resolutions to return after the holiday period and "get with the books" as we come into the final stretch of the first semester with exams less than a month away.

This format for the holidays has been followed by thousands of college students and teachers who have preceded us over the years and we think it is good, but many of us overlook the opportuniy to renew the wellsprings of our spiritual life while all Christendom celebrates the birth of Christ, the master teacher.

Too many college students in their youthful zest for living in the "now" grow away from their church or synagoguge. Fortunately for those whose religious life have been formed in their early years many will return to the faith of their fathers and the house of worship, but fruitful years are too often wasted away — and some never return. What better time could one find to renew our faith and shore up our spiritual life than the Christmas season? And too, the advice, admonition and challenging statements of Dr. Chester Swor, our Religious Emphasis Week speaker, are still ringing in our ears and stirring our minds with thoughts of a Life Worth Living.

As we wish for each of you a Joyous Holiday Season, let's resolve as a community of teachers and students who have been blessed as no people before us have been blessed to return to the campus January 3 as better teachers, better students, and better people!



Bradley's Back

In the November 21 edition of the Hindsonian, I quoted Coach Ricks as saying, "Just because we lost a good many boys from last year's team does not mean that we will not have a good year again. So far these boys have shown me that they have what it takes to go all the way, and I think that we have a better than average chance in the race."

Coach Ricks did not say this. What he has said to me many times is that "Belhaven has stolen my basketball team," and that, "We should have a fair team this year." Sorry coach, I just get carried away with the typewriter sometimes. I hope that I did not upset the team's morale.

I thought it was rather interesting that the UPI picked Maurice Moorman as one of their second team All-American tackles. Moorman was booted off the Texas A&M team after they had lost four of their first five games. After his leaving, the Aggies went on to win the next five and the Southwest Conference title. I guess the UPI missed him more than Texas A&M.

Now that basketball season is under way I guess that most of you realize that the immortal Bill Bradley is back playing pro basketball. Bradley is the former three-year All American from Princeton that received a Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University to continue his studies. After a year's layoff, he has decided that basketball is in his blood and that he must get back into it. Of course the $500,000, four-year contract he was offered by the New York Knickerbockers didn't have anything to do with his return to the sports scene.

There is a story about Bradley that has been verified by his friends around the country. He was out west in a tournament when he decided that he needed a little extra practice before he played his first game. He took six shots at a goal from 25 feet out and missed five of them, whereupon he reported to the gym keeper that the goal that he was shooting at was one-fourth an inch too low. The gym keeper measured the goal and it was one-eighth of an inch too low. I would say that he had a pretty good eye for goal.

Now that Christmas is almost here, let me remind you that the greatest coach that ever walked the face of the earth was born almost 2,000 years ago this month. Let's not forget the real meaning of Christmas and lets get into the game instead of sitting on the sideline and watching.

To all my faithful readers, both of you, let me wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Uncle Wilford says that he would also like to wish you the merriest of Christmases and the happiest of New Years. Now an't that just like Uncle Wilford, trying and out do his best friend.

Shelton, Lyles Lead Eagles To Wins Over Wolves, Bears In Home Tilts

By BOB CLARK

Chip Angelo sunk a thirty-foot jump shot as the final horn went off to give the Hinds Eagles a 91-89 victory over the Southwest Bears, Friday night.

Hinds Eagles jumped off to a four-point lead early in the first half and relinquished it only once as they topped the Copiah-Lincoln Wolves, 78-72, for their fifth victory of the season.

After trailing most of the first half, the Eagles caught back up and took a six-point 54-48 half-time lead. The Bears then came from behind themselves to knot the score at 76 all with 4:35 left in the game. On consecutive jump shots by Anthony Shelton and James Lyles the Eagles took a four point lead. Their lead was again taken away as the Bears came back with two consecutive scores to tie the game at 80-80.

A shot by Dave Wells gave the Eagles a 87-84 lead with only 1:05 left in the final period but Southwest again evened things up on a three-point play with only 56 seconds left. Jimmy Pearson hit from the top of the key to give the Eagles an 89-87 lead with less than half a minute to go. The Bears quickly scored to tie it up again, and the Eagles stalled for the final shot by Angelo.

The Eagles had four men to score in double figures against Southwest. Lyles led all scorers by bagging 31 points, the highest of any Eagle this season. Lyles was followed in the scoring race by Shelton who hit the sack for 23 points. Wells and Angelo rounded out the double figure scorers with 19 and 12 respectively.

Dave Wells' basket early in the first period brought the Eagles back from their only deficit of the night and put them ahead 13-12. From this point on, the hot shooting of Wells, Anthony Shelton and James Lyles proved to be the deciding factor as they had to hold off a late second half rally.

Leading only 32-29 at halftime the Eagles gradually built up a seven-point lead with eight minutes remaining in the game. At this point a rally of four consecutive baskets by Hinds pushed the game out of the reach of the Wolves.

Wells popped the sack for 20 points, 16 of them in the second half. Lyles and Shelton also burned the nets for 20 points. The victory over the Wolves kept Hinds undefeated in the South Division of the Mississippi Junior College Conference.

Hinds Defeats Bobcats; Lose To Holmes Bulldogs

Anthony Shelton hit a 25-foot jump shot with one second remaining to give the Hinds Eagles a 75-73 win over the Jones Bobcats after an earlier loss to the Holmes Bulldogs by the score of 85-64.

Behind seven points with only three minutes left in the game, the Eagles relied on the guns of Dave Wells and Shelton to get them back in the running. Wells popped in four quick points to narrow the gap to three and with only 2:15 left, Shelton hit a layup and a free shot knot the score.

Jones then jumped out to a four-point lead again and Shelton tied the score at 73-73 with two field goals. With 43 seconds remaining, The Eagles got possession of the ball and held for the last second shot by Shelton..

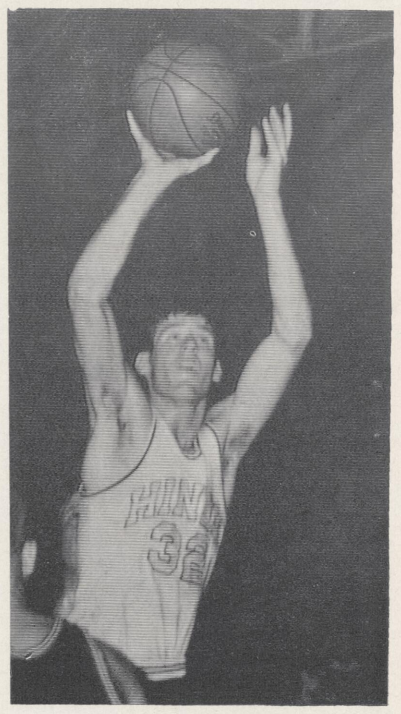
Halftime saw both teams tied at 39 all, but in the second half, the combination of Shelton and Wells, along with the ball handeling of Chip Angelo sent the Eagles to a lead they held most of the second half.

In the Holmes game, an error filled first half saw the Bulldogs take a three-point, 35-32 halftime lead. The Eagles came back out with a hot hand and quickly jumped to a 39-35 lead.

Holmes came back with eight consecutive points before Hinds could even scratch and took the lead for keeps. After another Eagle bucket, Holmes burned the nets for nine more points before Hinds could score again.

For the first time this season, the Eagles failed to have at least three men in double figures in the scoring race. Only James Tay- scoring race. Only James Lyles and Dave Wells could hit the magic mark as Lyles threw in 20 and Wells hit the sacks for 17.

In the Jones victory, four Eagles scored in double figures with Wells pacing the attack with 19. Angelo followed with 17 and Shelton and Lyles popped the nets for 16 and 15 respectively.



SHELTON GUNS — Sophomore Anthony Shelton from Forest Hill, takes aim at the goal in the Hinds victory over the Southwest Bears. Shelton burned the nets for 21 points in the fourth Eagle win of the season and is currently in second place in the scoring race averaging over 18 points per game. Photo by Harris.

Student Heads Jackson Karate School

By ED PAYNE

Napolean Solo, James Bond, Derek Flint — all these fictional characters use that deadly oriental art karate to squash any villains in their way, but with Mike Lasseter karate is real in every sense of the word.

Mike, a student at Hinds, possesses a first degree black belt and teaches the oriental defense in his hometown of Jackson. Along with his co-instructor, Ben Wills, also from Jackson and a student at Hinds, Mike hopes to establish a karate club on the Hinds campus after the Christmas holidays.

Dojo School

The Jackson Karate School — called a dojo — which Mike teaches is located in one of the former Air Force Base barracks on Clinton Boulevard.

There two nights a week, Tuesday and Thursday, many of Mike Lasseter's 150 students gather to receive instruction. By his own count, Mike estimates he has has taught over 2000 persons the basic skills of karate.

Oriental Defense

Karate, it is explained, developed in the orient as a defense against bandits by peasants who were forbidden by war lords to carry weapons. It differs from judo or jiu jitsu in that it can be used for striking any number of opponents while the others rely on fighting on a man to man basis.

A typical karate class at Mike's school is filled with rigid ceremony. The class is called to order in Japanese and all bow to the memory of the late Funakoshi Gichin, the founder of the present day form of karate.

Study Techniques

After a half hour of exercising the class studies techniques and karate locks — the self defense part. Then comes "the fun part" as Mike puts it, sport karate fights.

Karate, as a competitive sports event, is a fast growing part of the American athletic scene with more and more karate tournaments being held. Such a tournament was held at Millsaps college last December and plans call for another one to be held in January.

Light Contact

Ben explained that in sport karate focus and light contact are used. With such technical control karate students can "pull punches" with no degree of danger. None of the classes Mike has taught have ever lost in a karate tournament.

Describing his personal feeling toward karate, Mike stated that "It is a sport, art, means of self defense, and a great means of getting in shape." He added that a knowledge of karate gives a person both agility and confidence as by products.

For Mike the study of karate began in 1959, when he was in the 10th grade of high school. It wasn't until 1962 that he began receiving professional lessons and gaining rank.

Four Years

The road to a black belt takes an average of four years for the person willing to devote the time and energy. On the way to earning a black belt, orange, green, purple, and brown belts are required. There are five degrees of black belt, and Mike hopes to acquire his second degree in the future.

The basic fundamentals of karate, Mike added, take the average person about six months to acquire.

In his other plans Mike hopes to graduate from Hinds with a Physical Education major and obtain a job at the University of Alabama, where he once taught karate.

Probably the most popular concept of karate to the public is exhibition of board or brick breaking with the foot or hand. This demonstration, Lasseter has explained, is only an example of the terrific power that can be developed through the use of the proper karate skill.

He added that his hand is not deformed or covered with callus, as many people think. "The only difference that you can see between your hand and mine is that the skin on these two knuckles is a bit tougher than yours."

With seven minutes left in the game, Ken Borries of Perkinston scored the go-ahead TD on an off tackle plunge. After holding the Yanks deep in their own territory, Corbin pounced on a Keith Daniels fumble to assure the South of a victory with only 41 seconds remaining in the game.

Richard Hawthorne of Hinds intercepted a pass in the second period to set up a field goal attempt by Corbin later in the period. Hawthorne started at defensive halfback for the Rebels where along with his interception he batted down two passes and was in on numerous tackles.

Besides handling the kicking chores, Corbin was a defensive end for the South, where along with his touchdown he was also in on many tackles. Corbin had a field goal and extra point attempt blocked, had one field goal attempt go astray, and booted the final Reb PAT.

Technical Director Addresses Members Of Engineering Club

By DAVID HILKERT

J. E. Thomas, director of the Gulf Coast Technical Institute spoke to a recent engineering club meeting concerning the importance of continuing post-junior college engineering education.

Emphasis was placed on strict requirements for entering the Gulf Coast Technical Institute. It was also pointed out that requirements for entrance were approximately the same as for a professional school.

Division of MSU

The institute is a division of Mississippi State University's college of engineering. The institute has had seven students from Hinds to attend their school, and two graduates.

Bachelor degrees in electronics and construction technology are offered. Plans are being made for a division to be added in Marine Architecture Technology.

Great Demand

Wallace Wall, director of the Hinds graphics department noted that "National surveys show that the demand for professional engineers requires five engineering tchnicians. Opportunities are almost unlimited in employment and location."

"Any person who has a special interest in any phase of engineering and enjoys the application of it, could benefit more from the institute than from a professional school which puts emphasis on theories," stated Wall.

History vs Legend In Stocking Origin

Did a spinster hang up the first Christmas stocking? Legend says yes, but history says no — or at most, "Maybe."

St. Nicholas, a fourth century bishop, secretly gave gifts of gold for the dowries of poor spinsters. His method was to toss gold down a chimney by night, at Christmas.

On one occasion, so legend says, the gift landed in a stocking, hung by the fireplace to dry.

History casts a dubious eye on this "origin" of the Christmas stocking custom. The spinster probably didn't have a stocking — not in the fourth century.

Knitted form-fitting hosiery was unknown until the 13th century. Earlier, people wrapped cloth or rags around their feet as substitute for modern stockings.

Even after William Lee invented the stocking frame, a more efficient method of production, in the late 1500's, it was some time before the poor could afford to buy stockings.

History Of Christmas Card Custom Started With Hand-Colored Lithographs

Christmas cards have become as much of a Christmas custom as the Christmas Tree and Carols. Each Christmas postmen are swamped with millions upon millions of cards sent to express good will toward men.

The first card was designed in 1843 by John C. Horsley, R. A., for Sir Henry Cole, first director of the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, England.

Begin in 1846

The real tradition began in 1846 when one thuosand copies were lithographed, hand-colored and sold.

Christmas Cards were first introduced in the United States around 1870 by Marcus Ward and Company of London. American Christmas cards were made world famous by Louis Prang, who was the first to engrave cards and was holding a $3,000 prize competition for new card design.

Museum Pieces

These cards, now valuable museum pieces were often elaborately decorated with frings, tassels, satin, plush or brown glass. One trend, interesting, is the applying of glittering "flitter" and soft feeling felt on which the Victorians were fond.

Today, just as Christmas Carols are sung the world over to express joy in our hearts, the Christmas Card continues to spread the universal theme of love to all.

The evolution of the Christmas card and the growth of the greeting card industry in general has been speeded up in the last years. The elegance, the color, and the variety are a far cry from Christmas cards earlier in this century.

These cards, in turn, grew out of the first religious greetings that passed in the mail between friends and family.

Today, Christmas cards cut across the spectrum of American life and tastes. These are five-cent cards with greetings to the milkman and the newsboy. These are carriage-trade cards, which are shown by appointment only.

Broadwater Wins $500 From 4-H Scholarship

Clifton Broadwater Jr., Florence freshman, has received a $500 educational scholarship for excellence in the 4-H Agricultural Program.

One of six national winners, Broadwater was chosen by the Cooperative Extension Service to receive the scholarship presented by International Harvester Company, donor of 4-H awards for nearly 50 years. Presentation was made during the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago, November, 26-30.

Raises Cows

Broadwater has cared for 24 cows, including his present herd of five. He has raised 44 different types of vegetables, producing an ample supply for canning and freezing each year.

"Fresh meat and eggs play an important part in our family menu. Because I raise all my chickens we use our own eggs and sell the rest of them," he said. He also grows corn, peaches, apples, pears, pecans, plums, and figs.

Broadwater owns his own tractor and has given numerous demonstrations on the subject. He also is familiar with the hazards of farm electrification.

Improves Pastures

The national winner has improved pasture land on the farm by fertilization, clipping and careful management. In junior leadership he has completed 660 activities given 114 talks and prepared 61 news releases.

He recently was awarded the J. Walter Terry Scholarship, named for the extension agent who first enrolled Broadwater in 4-H.

Annual Exhibit Set For December 12-18 By Art Department

Hinds art department will sponsor its annual Christmas exhibit December 12-18 in the art department, according to Instructor Louis Walsh.

The Alta Woods Garden Club will be honored on Tuesday afternoon, December 12, the opening day of the exhibit. Choir members, their parents, and other off campus guests will also be honored on the evening of December 18 following the choir concert.

On display will be Christmas posters, creative patterns, water color, pencil sketches, lineoleum block prints, landscapes, temporal paint on wood, and pottery. The department will have Christmas cards that they have made for sale.

Four new pieces of equipment were added to the art department this year. A magnetic sign press, two new potter's wheels, and a pug mill used to grind clay are all new additions to the department.

Walsh commented that "The pottery section of the exhibit will be outstanding. Bottle and other container shapes made by Tommy Brown, Linda Riley, and John Brent will probably be of particular interest to those attending the show."

St. Francis Of Assisi Credited As Father Of Holiday Carols

"Glory to God in the Highest and on Earth, Peace, Good-Will toward men." As these words echoed through the night the angelic choir sang the world's first Christmas Carol.

Today, wherever people gather, the glad sounds of hymns and carols ring out at Christmas time in worship of the newborn King.

Old Carols

Some of the old carols in use today are older than any other form of music, but the true definition of the term "carol" is still obscure. It was originally a term applied to a circle dance in which the participants sang a gay song as they danced.

It is also believed that "carol" comes from the Greek word for flute player, in compliment to the musicians who played for Christmas ring-dances. Still another thought is that carols originated wih he songs of the Roman Saturnalia.

Nativity Scene

St. Francis of Assisi has been given the honor of the title of "Father of the Christmas Carol." He arranged a Nativity scene and led the singing of songs of praise to the Christ Child at Greccio in 1224. This act by St. Francis promoted the idea of happy singing at the Christmas Season.

Wynkyn de Word, apprentice to the famous English printer, Caxton, issued the first printed book of carols in 1521.

Soon Carols were printed on "broadsides" which sold for a penney for the English people. In the seventeenth century broadsides were "bootlegged" to the public, when the Puritans abolished holiday observances.

Christmas Songs

There are many different types of Christmas songs. There are those in praise of the Virgin Mary, carols of the Wise Men, and songs of the Holy Night of Christ's birth. Today these songs hold a place within the hearts of all Americans. "Silent Night," "Joy to the World," "Away in a Manger," all of these are a part of yearly Christmas worship and will continue to be as long as the true Christmas meaning is kept.

Academic Dean Announces New Technical Programs

By JUDY JOHNSON

Hinds is scheduled to offer two new technical programs for students in x-ray technology and agricultural engineering in September, 1968, announced Dr. Floyd S. Elkins, Academic Dean.

Hinds x-ray technlogy course will require three years of study and training. The first year will be spent at Hinds, while the remainder of the requirements will be obtained at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson.

The agricultural engineering course will be a two year course.

These technical programs are designed to equip the students with knowledge and skill in business or to train them to hold a place of service in a two year period.

General Courses

Traditionally a student is required to take general educational courses such as, English, Social Science, Math and Science. This program is planned for those students remaining in college for four years.

When a curriculum is planned for a student to take a position after two years, it is necessary to shorten the time spent in the generalized courses.

Technical Studies

When technical courses begin to apear in the junior college curriculum, usually approximately one half of the regular English, Science, Math, and Social Science requirements of a four year student are required.

Elkins stated that, "After studying technical programs requiring general education courses for several years, that it is the concensus of most junior college administrators that a different type of general education course would benefit the two year technical student."

Hinds will consequently offer six hours of technical English, six hours of technical Math, three hours of Social Science, and six hours of applied physics for technical students in the 1968-69 sessions.

Landscaping Plans Slated By Deme To Improve Campus

Plans are now under way to landscape and generally improve the appearance of the Hinds campus announced John Deme, Horticulture instructor.

Buildings slated to undergo the landscaping, which consists of havinclude the Student Union, auditorium, Eastside dorm, Northside dorm, and the Dean of Men's home.

College maintenance will also try to complete paving of the parking lots of Eastside and Greaves dorms over the Christmas holidays if weather permits.

Deme outlined plans to landscape building by building using plants grown in the college's greenhouse. These include the landscaping of the Fine Arts building and a project to plant trees about the campus.

Work on the grounds, stated Deme, will continue into the spring depending on the weather.

Authors Honor Christmas In Writings

"I will honor Christmas in my heart, and try to keep it all year."

So wrote Charles Dickens, for whom Christmas was a favorite topic — so much so that most people, asked to name someone who wrote about Christmas, would immediately answer, "Dickens."

Not only Dickens, but almost every writer from the little-known to the famous, has been inspired at some time in his career to "honor Christmas" in prose or poetry. For instance—

At Christmas I no more desire a rose
Than wish a snow in May's new-fangled mirth,
But like of each thing that in season grows.

Willam Shakespeare

At Christmas play and make good cheer,

Former Hinds Student Honored As 'Outstanding'

By GAYLE BECK

Gary Powers, a 1967 graduate of Hinds from Natchez, receiving the Outstanding Attitude and Ability Award from the Field Engineering Educational Center in Rochester, Minnesota.

The only Mississippian to ever receive the award, he was chosen from a class of 3,000. This award is only the fifth to be given of its kind in the entire history of the school.

Powers, who graduated from Hinds with an Associate of Arts Degree and an Electronics Technology Certificate, commented on the training he received at Hinds, "The computer courses at Hinds were very beneficial to me in my work in Minnesota, but the electronic courses proved to be one of my greatest assets."

The education center is sponsored by the IBM Company, and Powers stated that the "school provided a very extensive course, covering all aspects of IBM computers."

He completed his training as a customers engineer and is now employed with the IBM Company of Jackson, but will soon enter another school in New York.

WATCHING FOR SANTA — Two sophomore girls from Northside dormitory, top, Linda Jones, and Judy K. Johnson, both of Jackson, 'peep' from their decorated suite door. All girls' dormitories are in both individual and overall competition to be judged for first, second, and third place prize for decorations.

Parties Honor Yuletide Season In Dormitories

By CAROL ANN HAYWARD

Christmas parties in the girls dormitories, Main, Westside, and Northside were held Wednesday, December 13 to highlight the annual season.

Northside, the sophomore dormitory, held an annual "Toys for Tots" campaign. Marine representatives from Jackson picked the presents up for distribution all over the area. The girls participated in buying gifts for children of different ages instead of exchanging presents within the dormitory.

Main dormitory drew secret pal names. Each day until the party, the girls gave small presents to their "pal." At the party larger presents were exchanged.

Westside planned a Christmas basket for the Home for the Elderly outside Raymond. The girls brought such things as soap, toothpaste, and other everyday essentials for the basket.

Each dormitory had food, singing, and entertainment. Individual door decoration judging within the dormitory was encouraged for all three dormtories for the annual open-house to be held Monday, December 18, from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

A Christmas devotional opened the dormitory party staged for Westside. Afterwards, Christmas caroling led to the surprise for all girls in Westside . . . a visit from Santa. It was later discovered that Vickie Williams was behind the plan to discover what all of the girls in the dormitory wished for Christmas.

Main began their party with B. J. Frew, B.S.U. Director, reading "The Littlest Angel" by Charles Tzewell. The girls afterwards sang Christmas carols and had refreshments. The girls in the dormitory honored Euell Liles, campus security, by inviting him to share in the refreshment time with them.

Librarian Warns Students To Return Overdue Books Prior To Holidays

Students having books overdue at the Hinds library run the risk of being prevented from taking their semester exams.

All library books should be checked in before the Christmas holidays, although this year they may be checked out for the holiday period.

Mrs. Regina Goodwin, circulation librarian, explained, "We do not want to have to fine students for overdue books, but it must be understood that many of these missing books are needed by other students."

She added that students should remember to observe library etiquette in the biulding. "The library is built solely for the purpose of study."

A list of overdue bookholders is posted on campus bulletin boards each Thursday and the library staff urges all students to check it before the holidays.

Christmas Not Always 'Merry'

"Merry" Christmas? Not always, according to some ancient beliefs once associated with the day.

Take, for instance, the old belief that cattle and other stable animals were given the power of speech on Christmas Eve.

Any person who heard the animals speak would die within a year, so superstition said.

Somber omens of death were read into still other Yuletide legends. When the Yule log burned, bystanders were told to watch the shadows on the walls. If the shadows of any persons appeared to be headless, this supposedly meant death for those persons, again within a year.

Salt was also said to have the power of forecasting life or death, when used in connection with Christmas. The test could be made by leaving a small mound of salt on the table on Christmas Eve. If the salt melted during the night, that, too, meant death within 12 months.

If the salt remained unmelted, the forecast was for a long and healthy life.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS — Displays of various gift packages made by Mrs. Alon Bee, Hi-Stepper Director, are now being shown in the reserve lounge. This annual display shows the various ways that Mrs. Bee 'builds' her personalized Christmas gifts. These original package decorations represent a profession, hobby, honor, or a lifetime friendship. The gifts also depict the personality of the recipient.

Favorite Hobby

Mrs. Bee Makes Art Of Packages

By GAYLE BECK

Fraternity shields, a long string of Hi-Steppers, an artist's pallet, a carousel, and a throne—all of these are only part of the many surprises Mrs. Alon Bee uses to "build" her personalized Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Bee commented, "These Christmas packages are my main way of expressing my gratitude and love to so many people. I want the person to know I am thinking only of them."

Gift Wrapper

Wrapping gifts has been a hobby for Mrs. Bee as long as she can remember. She stated that gift wrapping helped to get her mind away from beauty pageants, speeches, and dance-routines. She earnestly stated that there is nothing she had rather do.

She combines ribbon, household odds and ends, pretty paper, dolls, a great deal of glue, and a complete night's work to form packages depicting a profession, hobby, or a lifetime of friendship.

Varying Scenes

Her wrappings vary from a dairy scene for her father, who is a farmer with over 500 cows, to a throne and court for Miss Mississippi.

One of her greatest compliments she feels was when a young ten year old boy refused to open his birthday gift because it was too pretty.

A plush ornamental bee is used to decorate many packages becoming a symbol of her work. It is the only thing ever repeated on her gifts.

Whenever she goes out to buy ornaments for her packages she keeps her eyes geared for small things which remind her of people.

Religious Motif

The gift designs are often religious in motif as a nativity scene, or the motif might be for a child as a play house for a little girl. Every detail is designed and made to perfection to delight the people around her.

She likes to give surprise gifts to unsuspecting people as the mailman, children, her neighbors, and people all over town.

Under the Christmas tree for 1967 Mrs. Bee has displayed a variety of interesting gifts some will find hard to open.

A wedding gift shows the life time friendship of two girls, and a small rag doll tops a package for a little girl. One gift for a boy resembles a giant-sized domino. For her teen-age friends Mrs. Bee has arranged a discotteque scene.

"Probably no one has less time for wrapping gifts than I do," concedes Mrs. Bee.

Directs 'Steppers

Aside from her many past times she is the mother of two children and wife of a TV personality, official chaperone to Miss Mississippi every year, and director of the Hinds Hi-Steppers.

"My greatest reward," stated Mrs. Bee, "is the joy and gratefulness other people receive from my personalized gifts."

Mrs. Denton Forms New Designer Club

Students of the two Hinds design classes have formed a Designers Club for the purpose of promoting competition of creative patterns and composition of art work.

Keith Beron and Linda Gordon have been elected as presidents from their classes. Exhibition chairmen include Kathy White, Danny Jones, Danny Smith, and Charlotte Seal. The exhibition chairmen are responsible for setting up the qualifications of the work to be entered in the art shows held during the year, arranging the pictures for the show, and judging.

Mrs. A. L. Denton, club sponsor, noted that "Students enrolled in these two classes are especially interested in design work. We feel as if these students, after given an oportunity to display their work will prove to be very outstanding."

Descendents Of President Establish Sutherland Fund

By ED PAYNE

Descendants of the late R.E.L. Sutherland, president of Hinds from 1918 to 1930, have donated $500 to the college to use as a student loan fund, announced President Robert Mayo.

Establishing the initial money for the fund were Mrs. R.E.L. Sutherland, wife of Mr. Sutherland; Mrs. Miriam Sutherland Baker, Mrs. Bolivar Lee Sutherland Hait, and Mrs. Annette Sutherland Boutwell, all daughters of Sutherland.

Money Matched

The fund was matched with college money to total $1000 which, matched with the federal college student loan ration of 12½ to 1, established the final student loan figure at $12,500. The scholarship will be known as the R.E.L. Sutherland Student Loan Fund.

Approimately 25 students will be able to attend Hinds for one year with the loan fund money. At the end of their college careers, when repayments begin, the fund will begin revolving and other students who follow will be eligible for the benefits of the fund.

Formed in Memory

In a letter to President Mayo, Mrs. Baker, speaking in behalf of her mother and sisters, wrote that "we want this scholarship fund to be established in memory of R.E.L. Sutherland, who spent many years at Hinds Junior College.

"All of us have many fond memories of Hinds and the people of Raymond and we just hope this money will be of some help to some student in obtaining their education."

Said Mr. Mayo of the gift, "We speak for the faculty and Board of Trustees in expressing our heartfelt appreciation for this contribution.

"We think it especially significant in view of the fact that a large part of President Sutherland's professional life was spent guiding the destiny and growth of this college from an agricultural high school to membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and put it well on its way to becoming the largest junior college in Mississippi and one of the outstanding junior colleges in the South."

Sutherland replaced W. N. Taylor who resigned because of illness in 1918. Sutherland, until then an agriculture instructor, was elected superintendent at the end of the session.

'Players Sponsor Announces Tryouts For One Act Plays

Tryouts for roles in three one-act plays, to be presented February 13, will be held in the speech room January 9 and 10, announced Miss Marjorie Hess. sponsor of the Lendon Players.

Miss Hess added that the entire student body is invited to the tryous to seek roles.

The three plays, "The Man in the Bowler Hat," "The Valient," and "The Fog," will be approximately 45 minutes in length and will be directed by students Linda Rushing and Geoffrey Harsch of Jackson, and Tom Williams of Bolton. Copies are available on reserve in the library.

Judges from out of town are to view the plays and give an award for the best presentation.

"This is a good opportunity for someone to try their hand at acting or staging as three stage managers, three lighting men, and, in fact, three of everything will be needed," said Miss Hess.

Alumnus Takes Chief Executive Post In Inauguration Ceremonies Tuesday

By JACK COPPENBARGER

Hinds Junior College alumnus John Bell Williams received the inaugural oath as Mississippi's 55th Governer Tuesday in front of the stately old capitol building in Jackson.

Festivities honoring the new Governor began at 9:00 a.m. at the Governor's Mansion and ran through the Inaugural Ball held Tuesday night at the Mississippi Coliseum.

Entertainers Perform

Leading off the Inauguration Parade Tuesday afternoon were the Hinds Hi-Steppers, directed by Mrs. Anna Bee, and the Eagle band, directed by Al Rowan. The Hi-Steppers and band presented a 10-minute show for the reviewing stand.

Also appearing in the parade was a float designed by Hinds art students. Built by Convention Display Services of Jackson, the float represented the Mississippi Association of Junior Colleges and featured the four areas of training offered by them—academic, nursing, vocational and technical.

Riding atop the float were Hinds students Miss Jean Buffinton, Jackson, Miss HJC, and Bruce McArthur, Jackson, Mr. HJC. Some 30 units representing senior colleges, junior colleges, high schools, specialty units and floats participated in the parade.

Hinds Grad

Governor Williams attended Hinds High School, Raymond then went on to graduate from Hinds Junior College. He attended the University of Mississippi, the Jackson School of Law and returned to Raymond in 1940 to practice law.

Governor Williams was named Hinds' Alumnus of the Year by the year-old Alumni Association at a banquet held during the college's 50th anniversary homecoming festivities.

Wall Named Board Member Of ETV; To Bring Educational Station To Hinds

By JOANN NEAL

Hinds President Robert M. Mayo has announced the appointment of E. Rosser Wall, Administrative Assistant and Dean of Men, to the Television Council on Higher Education.

Wall will serve as a permanent member of the Council and will have the authority to speak for the college on college policies. The Council will be made up of college representatives, including those of private institutions.

Advise Courses

Organization of the Council, which is now underway, should be completed by spring. "The purpose of the Council" said William R. Smith, Director of the Mississippi Authority for Educational Television, "is to advise and plan the college credit courses to be viewed."

By October of 1968, the program will be underway. In January of 1969, two stations will be operating out of Jackson on closed-circuit television to Hinds. By the fall of that year, six other stations will have been added. If legislative funds are provided, the program will eventually be operating statewide.

Top Professors

The teachers for the educational television program will be top college professors from Mississippi and the surrounding area. ETV will be used as an aid to instructors already established in the colleges so that the student will be able to ask questions and hold discussions.

Of Wall's appointment, Dr. Mayo said "Because of his interest in and experience with related programs of this nature, I believe he will make an outstanding contribution as a member of the Council."

Bivens To Serve As HJC Trustee

Walter R. Bivins of Jackson has been named to the Board of Trustees of Hinds Junior College by the Hinds County Board of Supervisors.

Bivins will fill the vacancy on the Board following the death of Board member George Morgan of Terry. Bivins has been with the Employment Security Commission since 1936 and presently holds the post of State Director of the Unemployment Insurance Division there.

Registration Less Hectic With Student Preparation

One of the most hectic times during the school year at most colleges, both senior and junior, is registration time. During this period, the greatest amount of students are concentrated in to the least amount of space.

Students soon tire of waiting in the long lines, checking schedules, arranging courses, rearranging, rechecking, filling in forms ,paying fees, buying books and finalizing details for another long tenure of work.

Many colleges truly have a problem with this time of the year. Registration at Hinds is relatively simply if students will follow the instruction pamphlets provided by the Registrar's office.

To help out, try planning a temporary schedule to discuss with your faculty advisor when you reach that portion of the registration.

Also familiarize yourself with the instructions in the packet to avoid confusion in not knowing where you start registration, where to proceed and what materials you will have to have to complete the cycle.

Cooperate with registration officials in helping make this registration less confusing for both the students and for the teachers.—JC.

Purpose Of Exams Lost

To many Hinds students the semester examination period of January 19-26 will mean little more than a time of desperate cramming filled with all night book sessions, pep pills, cold showers, silent prayers, and other frantic activities.

Is this the purpose of the semester examination?

Supposedly, a semester examination, or any other school test, is meant to help both the student and instructor evaluate how successful they have been.

The examination in a real sense tests both the student and instructor. The job of the instructor has been to present the facts as clearly and interestingly as he can, while the student should have actually exerted the energy to grasp what is offered. An examination is a test for weaknesses on either side of this bridge of knowledge.

However, in recent years the purpose of the examination has been lost, or at the least greatly obscured. Emphasis seems no longer on the test of the communication between instructor and student—rather the objective now seems to use the examination to "get a grade" by any and all means.

To such a degree has this false principle taken hold that cheating scandles have been uncovered on some of the nation's most highly regarded institutions of learning. Polls reveal that large majorities of the nation's students feel no moral scruples about cheating to "get a grade." In light of this some universities have gone so far as to restrict grading to a simple pass or fail system to eliminate grade competition.

This seems a poor solution because grades can be useful to indicate good work or point out needed improvement.

Therefore, with semester examinations facing us, take time out to consider what your attitude is towards the testing system. Do you view the examination in its true meaning, or is your sole objective to "get a grade?" — EP

Offer Improvements

Students Air Views On Cafeteria

By GAYLE BECK

If you would offer constructive improvements to a cafeteria problem, what main item would head your list? Students on the HJC campus were presented this question These are the answers:

KUESPERT

COLE

LEN BOULER — No, students should not gripe. They should taste the food in the armed services.

PAM KUESPERT — I believe most students do have a gripe. One of my friends found a roach in her food. That is almost unbelievable. Possibly the reason might be a cut in cafeteria allowance. Some foods offered are pretty good, but whe have no variety. A larger allowance might help.

BILL COLE — Certainly there is room for improvement. A choice of food would help. Perhaps we might be able to find out what kind of meat we are eating. The administration does not know the magnitude of the problem and how the students feel. I hope something can be done to improve the situation.

PAM HALL — Yes, definitely there is a problem. The fish I had today was raw, we haven't had any tea all week; hamburgers served all the time would be better. We could protest and maybe leave our trays on the table. To head my list of improvements I would say let Morrison's cafeteria cater, like at MC.

BUTCH RAMSEY — I think the students should get a petition to get the State Board of Health to investigate cafeteria food. The faculty and staff should become familiar with the students' gripe. They are making a great deal of profit on the food because of the students' lack of enthusiasm to eat and they are coming to the grill. If they would half-way cook a decent meal, they would finally get an estimate of how many people will eat there during the day and soon all meals would improve and better meals could be planned by the people in charge of securing the food.

DICKIE BROCK — The food served on college campuses does not supplement the daily diet of an active student. Therefore, the food could stand improvement in order for better nourishment. Food is not properly prepared, sometimes it is prepared in such a way that even the sight of it is nauseating, much less the taste and smell.

KARL KOENIG — I think that the food in the cafeteria is definitely not of a superior quality. Certain foods are served entirely too often and in a poorly-prepared way. However, it must be said that some foods are prepared well enough to be enjoyed. I think that there is a definite need for improvement on many items.

HALL

MARGIE BRIGGS — We need improvement. I think a catering service would help; other schools have them and we could too.

RAMSEY

BOULER

TOMMY ABERNATHY — To improve the conditions of the meals can be summed up in one phrase: the meals as a rule are good, but it just isn't enough. There is a need to show the student an improvement in the food to go along with the higher price. As of now there is no improvement.

MIKE MARTIN — I feel a definite improvement could be made. The food served is not worth our money. The students that live here and pay for the food should be allowed to choose the food they eat and not have to pay for a meal they do not eat. An investigation should be started concerning where our food comes from. If everyone would show how they don't like the food maybe it would improve. During this next semester students may protest.

MARK WATKINS — We are certain that the meals served in the cafeteria are quite nutrious and contain all of the vitamins and minerals necessary for healthful growth and living, but yet again, who will eat the meals when they art completely void of taste.

Campus Discontent

While attending the annual meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in Dallas, Texas last month, I found myself listening to a symposium entitled, "Discontent on the Campus." While returning from a meeting that had been cancelled at the last minute, I noticed the announcement of this symposium over a meeting room door. Out of curiosity and with nothing better to do at the moment, I wandered in.

The symposium was basically in the form of a discussion between students and deans, most of whom were from large university campuses. No punches were pulled and the discussion of student problems and unrest was frank, candid, and at times, I thought absurd.

As one might expect the discussion quickly centered around the Viet Nam War, the draft and student attitudes. To put it mildly, I was a little shocked to discover among these student leaders any patriotic feeling or sense of responsibility for the country's military defense. On the other hand I was disappointed in that the deans of students of these large universities seemed to be floundering in the same morass of muddled thinking and indecision concerning this problem as were the students. I quickly reached the conclusion that there is a large credibility gap between this generation of college students and the Department of Defense, especially on large university campuses.

Unless this problem is soon resolved this gap will grow wider and the defense of this country could be seriously imperiled. I don't have the answer in a few neat, well-chosen words as to how this can be done, but I do know this country cannot afford to have its best young minds questioning the motives of our government to the extent that they refuse to bear arms in times of national crisis. To question, to debate, and to disagree are the rights and privileges of any group in a democratic society but to dissent to the extent that educational processes are disrupted and that allegiance to one's country is unfashionable is carrying dissent to a dangerous and indefensible extreme.

I left this meeting with a feeling of gratitude and thanks for the students at Hinds. I hope the two years our students spend on this campus will better equip them to meet and to reason intelligently through the many problems that will face some of them when they enter the large university campus and find themselves face to face with questions that they have not had to cope with heretofore. Facts and a knowledge of the struggle of mankind as recorded in history will stand any student in good stead when he must stand up and be counted in a group of his own peers or when called upon to defend his country against all enemies both "foreign and domestic."

'Credibility Gap' Evident On Campus

In recent months attacks have been leveled at the Federal Government because of a credibility gap.

This credibility gap is an item not unique to the Federal Government for we at Hinds have one of sorts. Actually, it is a rather large gap, corresponding to that of the Grand Canyon.

The gap we are referring to is that between the student government and the student body. It is evident that it would even be news to many students that a student government even existed. This is not entirely the fault of that government but rather the fault of uninterested students.

We must ask ourselves exactly what we believe a government to be and how it is to function. The answer can only come from the student body — and quite obviously that answer has not come. The student body must decide what a student government should stand for and what it should accomplish.

Apparently from the response this year they do not even care if a student government exists.

Possiby we have reached the perfect society at Hinds where the students are completely satisfied and nothing needs to be done for their welfare. It is certainly encouraging to know that we have finally achieved at good ole "Hiny Ho" what man has been striving to do elsewhere for centuries, the creation of a perfect society. Perhaps that speaks for the effectiveness of the student government.

As a matter of fact, we shall be more than happy to report to the administration that everything is going along fine and everyone is satisfied here at Hinds.

If by any "remote" chance this satisfaction is not the case, then the students should by all means inform their Senator. We are supposed to have a representative form of government but it is a two-way route, someone must want to be represented. If the student government is to survive, then it is a must that the students change their concept of the student government.

Only through a truly representative government can we have an effective one. And it can only be representative if the students will tell their Senators what they would like proposed to the administration. Maybe, if this is accomplished we will hear more of what the Senate has done.

However, if we have reached that point of a perfect society, a perfect campus, then we apologize for this statement. But if that is not the reason for the uninterested student body, then perhaps in the coming months you will be reading ASB Forum under the Obituary, A.S.B. R.I.P.

Winter Bulletin

Now I have nothing personal against winter, in fact it's a great excuse to stay indoors—but this junk someone has been panhandling at Hinds which everyone takes for winter . . . Let's face it folks, we've been had.

Congressional Race Takes Shape

Mississippi is in the process of installing a new administration of government to serve this state for the next four years. Swearing in of elected officials began on January 1. On the following day members of the legislature assembled in the state capitol building beginning an expected five or six month legislative session.

Officers for both houses were chosen following swearing in ceremonies. A host of new faces composed much of the legislative body, including that of the first Negro member since the dreadful reconstruction of a century ago.

Some members had previously met with the Governor-elect to discuss matters which are expected to confront the legislature. The installation of other state officials will take place at later dates. State commissions have also met for the purpose of acquainting its members with the tasks and responsibilities of public service.

In the midst of the organization of the new administration and the participation in ceremonial festivities, the third U. S. Congressional District became concerned with the choosing of a Congressman to serve the soon-to-be vacated term of Congressman and Governor-elect John Bell Williams which will expire in June. Congressman Williams, who has served this fourth most important federal office for the past 21 years, was officially discharged of his Congressional duties when he took the oath as Mississippi's Chief Executive on January 14.

The special election will be held sometime in late February or early March. The exact date has not been announced presently. A variety of candidates have announced and are appealing to the voters for support.

Presently, this is a 4-man race which includes Charles Griffin, Utica, administrative assistant to Williams during almost his entire Congressional mission; Senator Ellis Bodron, Vicksburg, a long-time member of the state legislature; Troy Watkins, a former mayor of Natchez who had twice been an unsuccessful candidate for Lt. Governor; and Joe Pigott, a county district attorney. There is much rumor of other candidates announcing.

These candidates, all of whom may or may not be well-known to the electorate as a whole, are well-known in the particular area they represent and for the various positions they hold or have held.

The nature of this campaign is at present seemingly quiet and non-issue oriented, but the selection of a temporary representative is of supreme importance, because this choice will most certainly be the leading contender in the forthcoming general election in June.

The candidate should be chosen on the basis of his qualifications and abilities rather than the familiarity of the individuals name. So often unconcerned voters choose a candidate who has not the necesary experience and ability to serve a particular elective office, simply because they have not taken the time to study and consider the candidates qualifications.

The hope of citizens who are concerned about the type of representation they receive is that someone of dedication and initiative will be sent to congress to render to the constituency of the third district the type of representation to which any constituency is entitled. The people want a leader who is loyal to his belief and conscience rather than to any political machine or collective fraction. This is the type of representation our people have always sought.

Proud Packers

For shame, John Milton, how couldst thou say that pride is the deadliest of the seven deadly sins? Hast thou never heard the Green Bay Packers comment on the secret of their undisputed success in the National Football Leagueb

Lend an ear, oh learned scholar, to what the gridiron greats have to say, and mourn not that they failed heed your words.

Quote: Henry Jordan, defensive tackle that delights in playing 'crush the opposing quarterback,' "We have a great amount of team pride that keeps us together and enables us to win the majority of the games we play."

Quote: Ray Nitschke, linebacker, who delights in playing, 'crush the opposing team': "There is a feeling of pride in us that you can sense even in our dressing room, and this pride stays with us on the playing field."

Quote: Jerry Kramer, offensive guard who delights in beheading defensive players who stumble in his way by accident or on purpose, "This team has too much pride in the fact that we are a winning team, and therefore, it is virtually impossible for us to loose a ballgame." Kramer sounds more like a Rhodes Scholar than a big, dumb football player.

Quote: Herb Adderly, defensive back who delights in breaking necks, arms, legs, anything that happens to be available when he makes a tackle, "This is a proud team because each individual member is proud to be a member."

Quote: Bart Starr, quarterback who delights in diving teams nuts with his uncanny ability to keep his cool and call the right play at the right time, "The one element that makes us a winning team is pride. We are proud in the way we do our job and we plan to continue doing our job in a winning manner." I'll bet the rest of the NFL is happy to hear that.

Quote: Vince Lombardi, head coach and general manager who delights in nothing but winning: "As far as the men on our team are concerned, winning is the only way to play this game and they take a great deal of pride in the fact that they are number one. Without this pride, we would be an also-ran."

So there, Johnny baby, have a feast on your words. There is nothing wrong with being proud as long as one is proud of the right achievements. You must admit, oh fountain of knowledge, that you were proud of being a Puritan when you wrote your "Paradise Lost."

Well, that's enough of the Packers. I've got to go catch Uncle Wilford before he goes and pulls a stunt that he might be sorry for. He claims that he is going to send a life preserver to Bear Bryant.

22 Year Veteran

HJC Basketball Mentor Sports Top Win Mark

By DANNY McKENZIE

After 22 years in the coaching field, Troy A. Ricks, head mentor of the Hinds Eagles, has emerged as the number one junior college basketball coach in the state.

Ricks had taken his Hinds teams to the Mississippi Junior College State Playoffs six times before last year and was able to capture the South Division title twice in these ventures. Last season Ricks and his Eagles shocked the entire state by not only winning the South Division crown again, but this time taking the overall state crown for the first time in Hinds Junior College's history.

Ricks' Legend

The Ricks legend for championship playoffs started in 1934, when he was a guard for the Sunflower Junior College (now Mississippi Delta) cage team. In the two years that he was on the Sunflower team, they won the state junior college championship.

In 1940, Ricks moved to Delta State College where he led the Statesmen to third place in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Tournament. In the NAIA tourney, he set a scoring record of a 21 point average for five games that stood for over ten years.

Head Coach

Upon receiving his discharge from the Army in 1946, Ricks took the head coaching position at Saltillo High School in the small Mississippi community. He stayed for only one season but guided his team to the state playoffs with a 23-3 record.

Ricks then moved to Copiah-Lincoln Junior College in Wessson where he became head coach for the next two years. His record for the seasons, 1947-49, was a remarkable 55-3 that included two Mississippi Junior College State Championship.

After his two glory-filled years at Co-Lin, Ricks came to Hinds where he has been the head basketball coach for the past 18 years. In his 18 years at Hinds he has amassed 287 victories against only 137 defeats for a .678 percentage. Add this record to his 23-3 season at Saltillo and his 55-3 campaign at Co-Lin and his record of 365 wins and 143 losses puts him at the top of the list of the Mississippi Junior College coaches.

Hinds Claims Win Over Jones 79-70; Wells Hits For 25

By BOB CLARK

Hinds' Eagles claimed a 79-70 decision over the Jones Bobcats in a South division game of the Mississippi Junior College Conference Saturday night.

After an early first half challenge by the Bobcats was stopped, the Eagles gradually took the game out of the reach of Jones. Throughout the opening minutes the teams matched baskets, but with Buddy Patrick's scoring play with seven minutes gone in the ball game the Eagles claimed the lead never to relinquish it again. Until this time the lead had changed hands seven times with the score being tied on five occasions.

A string of five straight points by James Lyles and Dave Wells upped the Hinds margin to a night high of 19 as the score was 69-50. At this point Coach Troy Ricks began to substitute for his starting five and the Bobcats countered with a late rally forcing the return of the starters.

Wells Paces

Wells paced Hinds with 25 points, along with Lyles, who tallied 17 points in helping the Eagles garner the decision. Anthony Shelton contributed 13 points to the winning cause, while Chip Angelo recorded 11 points.

Reading Instructor Urges Enrollment

Reading instructor Mrs. Marion Mounger has urged students to consider taking a course in that field during the second semester.

According to Mrs. Mounger, Hinds is one of the only junior colleges in the nation that offers three courses in the field of Reading.

Courses are taught in Improvement of Reading, Speed in Comprehending and Speed Reading. The courses are designed to help students develop reading skills, comprehension skills, and to emphasize critical thinking, retention and flexibility.

Mrs. Mounger stated that there were several major misconceptions about the need for reading courses in college and that many colleges required students to take a reading course.

In the Improvement course, diagnostic tests are given to determine the needs of the student. The Speedin Comprehending course developes reading interest that will provide background for college courses. Speed Reading, for students earning above average grades, practices with laboratory equipment provided according to the needs of the individual.

Student Directory Slated For Printing By Business Club

Phi Beta Lambda, student business club, is printing a Hinds Student Directory to go on sale at 50c per copy Thursday, February 1 in a booth set up in the foyer of the grill.

The directories will be available in the booth for approximately a week. After that time, any student wanting to obtain a directory can contact any member of Phi Beta Lambda.

The directory will contain all student names with the exception of night enrollees and will list home addresses, home telephone numbers, and suite numbers of sophomore girls.

The directory will contain approximately 50 pages. The cover will have the Phi Beta Lambda letters engraved on the front.

Judy Webb, club president remarked that, "This year's project is something that both the business students as well as other students can benefit from. Our club members are attaining practical experience in helping to put the directory together. We hope that the students will be able to use their directories for reliable informative purposes."

Several members of the Hinds administration and faculty have been named as colonels on the staff of newly inaugurated Governor John Bell Williams.

The colonels, led by chief R. E. Dumas Milner, took a major part in Tuesday's inauguration parade and held a prominent place in ceremonies throughout the day. Several of the Colonels from Hinds were featured with their photograph and biographical sketch in the "Colonels Section" of the Sunday Clarion-Ledger Jackson Daily News.

Committee Chosen To Promote Plans For Mock Primary

By ED PAYNE

Students have been selected to spearhead plans for Hinds to participate in a nationwide collegiate mock Presidential Primary that will take place in the spring.

Named to a committee that will help promote active student campaigns were Associated Student Body Vice President Martha Womack, Utica; Bobby Clark, Raymond; Doris Fanning, Clinton; and Ed Payne, Bolton.

Appointments were made by A.S.B. President Bill Cole at the January 9 Senate meeting.

Choice 68

"Choice 68" the national organization promoting the primary, is sponsored by Time magazine. Under the organization's direction the election is to be held on campuses from coast to coast April 24.

Colleges from all 50 states, representing a total of two million students, have already signed up to participate in the primary. Among these colleges are state institutions which include Ole Miss, Mississippi State, and Mississippi Southern.

Furnish Ballots

Individual schools are responsible for organization of election machinery, publication of the event locally, and regulation of the election. Ballots will be furnished by the "Choice *8" executive office and have been structured, according to official bulletins, "to allow for the fullest and widest possible expression of opinion."

Preliminary work has already begun on the campus to bring possible presidential candidates or their representatives to the school. The campaign headquarters of Richard Nixon and George Romney have been contacted and both have expressed interest in the project, according to Cole.

Cole added that all students interested in working in the campaigns and elections, or wishing to obtain further information, should contact him.

PREPARING EXHIBIT — Art Major Cathy White, sophomore from Jackson, begins preliminary work on a painting for the Designers' Club. Cathy, along with other members of the club, have been busy preparing exhibits to be used in displays sponsored by the club's two lab classes and to be judged by a jury of art teachers.

Designers' Club Lab Classes Prepare For Art Competition

By JOANN NEAL

When the average person looks at a painting or a sketch, he sees only the finished product and can not appreciate it until he learns of the great talent and many hours of labor which created this finished product.

Such preparatory work is now being done by the HJC Designers' Club. The club is composed of two lab classes which are now working on pieces for competition. Most of the 41 members are art majors.

Design Basics

The students are working with the fundamentals of design: dominance, unity, balance, rhythm, and proportion. Each class will compete in order to attain excellence in design. The purpose of the competition is to achieve quality rather than quanity in the pieces.

Each class has an exhibition chairman, who, with the aid of a teacher, will select the best pieces from each class for competition. These pieces will be judged by a jury of art teachers and placed on display.

Study Countries

The subjects of the finished pieces will involve a study of the countries of the world. Each student will pick a country, decide on the three things most representative of this country, and put them into design.

Twelve hours are spent in lab in preparation of the pieces. However, the student must spend many hours doing library research to acquire the knowledge needed to achieve his objective.

In speaking of the work now being done by the students, Mrs. Katherine Denton, Department Head, said, "The students will learn to draw skillfully, to use good color combinations, and acquire an individual style."

Debate Team Participates In Millsaps Tournament

Hinds' Debate team advanced to the finals of the annual Millsaps Invitational Debate Tournament by recording a three and one mark in the preliminary rounds, before losing to Louisiana Tech in the final elimination rounds.

Bill Cole, Jackson, and Bobby Clark, Raymond, composed the team that reached the finals; while Barry McCracken, Jackson, and Paul Reihle, Jackson, were the members of the Hinds team that posted a one and three record. The team members were accompanied by debate coach Fred Brooks, who judged other teams while the Hinds team remained in the tournament.

Panama Debate

The next scheduled tournament for the HJC debators is the Gulf Coast Junior College tournament to be held January 19-20 in Panama City, Florida. This will be the first time this season that the Hinds debators have been in a junior college tournament.

Cole and Clark rolled through the preliminary rounds with only a loss to Southwestern Louisiana University by a single point to blemish their record. They claimed victories over Texas Christian University, Southern State University, and the University of Little Rock.

Tech Wins

In the finals they faced a Louisiana Tech team which had gone 4-0 in the preliminaries. In a close decision the judge pronounced Tech the winner. As a result of this victory they advanced in the tournament and finally finished second in the competition.

McCracken and Reihle achieved their only victory over Southwestern of Memphis; while losing to the University of Alabama, the University of Arkansas, the eventual winner of the tournament, and the University of Southern Mississippi.

For the second straight year, Hinds was the only junior college to attend this tournament. All competition was held on the topic "Resolved: That the federal government should guarantee a minimum annual income to all citizens."

to return to it after the sidewalk which connects the building with higher ground washed away.

Setting out last Thursday to cross the vast swampy wasteland laughingly referred to by students as "the parking lot," the five ignored warning that three other students had previously been lost in the muck.

Several of the five were clearly beside themselves, witnesses reported. One was observed to be screaming hysterically, "My car is somewhere under that mess."

The Coast Guard is continuing its air search for the five, but a high ranking officer offered the opinion, "All hope is gone." Eastside dorm is reported slowly sinking into the mire.

In other developments on the campus, it was learned that during the night of January 7, a student in Central dorm was frozen solid in the shower when the hot water tanks suddenly malfunctioned.

The student, I. Q. Lowly, was taken from the shower stall after volunteers worked throughout the night with ice picks to free him. While being removed from the dorm, however, Lowly was accidently dropped and unfortunately shattered.

Frigid conditions are noted to still exist at the girl's dorms.

Deceased Trustee

Board Honors Morgan In Resolution

By ED PAYNE

Members of the Hinds Junior College Board of Trustees passed a resolution honoring the memory of George W. Morgan, a Board member for eight years, who died December 12.

Morgan, a lifelong resident of Terry, served as a Board member from district five. He was an alumnus of the college.

The resolution states:

"WHEREAS, God, in his infinite wisdom has called from our midst a faithful and valuable member of the Board of Trustees of Hinds Junior College, and

WHEREAS, George W. Morgan rendered outstanding service as a member of the Board of Trustees for almost nine years, and

"WHEREAS, He has made a distinct contribution to the educational improvement of Hinds County as well as to the surrounding area, and

"WHEREAS, His many admirable qualities composed of his innate ability, wide experience, profound interest, wise counsel and Christian influence will be sorely missed,

"THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that we extend to his bereaved family our sincere sympathy in their great loss,

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this Board, and that a copy be sent to the family and to the press."

President Robert M. Mayo added that Morgan "was a kind man, not given to wasted words. When he talked, his colleagues listened because his words were worthwhile."

In addition to his Board membership, Morgan operated a general mercantile business in Terry, was vice president of the Jackson-Hinds Bank, and manager of the Terry branch of the bank. He also served as a deacon in the Terry Baptist Church.

Secretarial Science Program Begins With Miss Gandy Named Co-ordinator

Business Instructor Margaret Gandy has been selected as coordinator for the secretarial science program to be introduced at Hinds second semester.

This program is set up for a one or two year program. Students have an opportunity to spend time in on-the-jotb training and it is designed to train girls on an intensive basis in one year or for a broader course and in greater depth for the two-year program.

This course of study is designed for only terminal work and can not be transferred for students in oter secretarial science courses of study to other colleges.

"This program is a training program and not merely a work program. The on-the-job training will be related to career objectives and class study. This course of study will be matched to the student abilities and interests as well as the employers needs," stated Miss Gandy.

Credit in this new program for on-the-job training will consist of three semester hours. "This new program will benefit the students and will give them an opportunity to investigate the practical aspects of their schools training before choosing their vocation," added Miss Gandy.

Walsh To Teach Special Workshop

Art Instructor Louis Walsh will instruct a special ceramic workshop for elementary teachers of the Hinds, Rankin, and Warren County area during the semester break this month.

This workshop will be sponsored by the American Art Clay Company and the Martin School Equipment Company.

Senate Passes Four Bills; Approves Parliamentarian

By ED PAYNE

Passage of four bills and installation of a new Commissioner of Rules and Procedure highlighted the meeting of the Associated Student Body Senate, Tuesday, January 9.

Taking over the duties of Senate Commissioner of Rules and Procedure was Alvin Woods, freshman from Bolton, after he was appointed by student body President Bill Cole and approved unanimously by the Senate.

Bills Pass

Bills that passed called for actions that include installation of a suggestion box, sponsoring of student activities, earlier opening of the cafeteria for lunch, and additional facilities to take care of trash.

Doris Fanning, senator from Main Dorm, authored the suggestion box bill which called for the installation and operation of the box in the Student Union "for the benefit of obtaining student opinion."

Student Activities

Under the provisions of a funds for student activities bill by day student Bobby Clark, the Senate will sponsor at least one student activity per month with any funds obtained to be set aside for further student activities.

A change in the cafeteria opening time for lunch from 11:15 to 11:00 was sponsored by Paul Reihle of debate. After amending the bill passed along with another, authored by Alvin Woods, seeking the placement of trash recepticals in classrooms and in the parking lot behind the student union.

In other Senate activities, Bill Cole reported on progress in contacting possible Presidential candidates or their representatives on campus as part of the Choice '68 Presidential Primary to be held on the campus. The next senate meeting will be held January 31.

Transfer Students Advised To Submit Financial Statement Before Deadlines

Students transferring to senior colleges under financial aid of the College Scholarship Service are required to submit a Parents' Confidential Statement, advised Dean of Men Rosser Wall.

Desired dates for receipt of these statements by state colleges, to be used for financial aid in college expenses during the 1968-69 academic year, include:

Receipt Deadlines

Belhaven College, Millsaps, and the University of Southern Mississippi, April 1; University of Mississippi, March 15; Mississippi State University, April 15; Mississippi College and Mississippi State College for Women, July 1; and William Carey, June 15.

Dean Wall stated that while some schools will accept other forms, the Parents' Confidential Statement is an absolute requirement for aid at Millsaps, Ole Miss, Southern, and Mississippi State.

At High Schools

The P.C.S. forms are available from high schools and students who list more than one college to receive a copy of the statement should file the form by the earliest of the dates specified by those colleges.

Early Morning Classes Cause Student Complaints

College students frequently complain these days about having to get up so early to attend an eight o'clock class or how boring it is to sit through a class into the afternoon.

"Why not," they will ask, "arrange my schedule so that I can have all my classes around the middle of the day. That way I will be through early, I can sleep late and I can then . . . " What?

In variably, students will spend time in the grill, take a nap or join a bull session about the hardships of attending college under the tremendous pressures of parental rampage and the ever present draft.

Educators will tell you of times when they attended seven o'clock classes and their school days lasted until dusk with little free time for anything other than the academic side of college.

Students today do not always realize that they have more free time than they know what to do with: Time that could be utilized in a beneficial manner like studying, or becoming more informed through materials in the library.

It is also recognized that these same students who complain about early classes, are the ones who take the lightest academic loads and frequently participate in little else.

Face it students: a college education is necessary to succeed in the world today; it will not be achieved by any easy means and lastly; eight o'clock classes are an inevitability.—JC.

Fashion Affects Economy

Next time you girl watchers out there gaze on an expanse of leg left uncovered by today's rising hemlines, think of the nation's economy.

According to H. W. Gossard and Company, who have been watching skirts and the Gross National Product since 1958, there is a direct correlation between hemlines and the economy.

For an example, skirts in 1967, as even the most nearsighted fellow will tell you, rose to phenomenal heights — and so did the economy with some experts predicting a $650 billion G.N.P.

If you need further convincing, look back to 1959 when, as Gossard reports, the hemline went up an inch and the G.N.P. reached $400 billion. And what admirer of the feminine figure can forget 1966 — the year of the mini-skirt. And what admirer of the nation's Gross National Product can forget 1966 — the year of the economic upsurge of 9.65.

To erase any remaining doubts any of you might harbor concerning the Gossard theory, take a look at one of their historical examples. Of those old enough to remember, who could ever forget the flappers of the roaring '20's which brought high rise shimmy skirts and rouged knees. Then came 1929 with a depression that brought the economy and hemlines spiraling down to the nation's ankles.

Well, what does Gossard predict in the future? From the examples of the new midi-skirts — only a scant 12 to 13 inches from the floor — the Gossard crew say there is bad news, a see-saw economy as the midi and the mini vie in popularity.

There you have it ladies, a clear trend. For the sake of America, the boy next door, and mom's apple pie, keep the hems high. — EP.

Helps Individuals

Reading Courses Aid Student Needs

BY GAYLE BECK

"Reading is the most complicated thing the human mind has ever achieved."

If you have ever been with Miss Marion Mounger on a tour of the Hinds Reading department you would have to agree with Albert Einstein's quotation.

1000 Hours

Miss Mounger stated that over 1000 man hours of research have gone into this field and the many shelves of material available at Hinds has been accumulated over a period of years.

Over 100 students have registered in the three different classes offered this semester. One hour credit is given for each course. Indivual instruction can be given to students and faculty members not enrolled in the course.

Speed Reading

One course is offered for those who need to speed up their reading and for those who have a fear of reading aloud.

A second course focuses on helping a student learn to get the main ideas, summarizing, and drawing conclusions from what he has read. This course is helpful to those who want a college degree and may go into graduate work.

Law, science, and math students are especially benefited in the third course. A student who reads a great deal, but slowly will make a great deal of progress toward reading faster in this course.

Special Programs

Miss Mounger stated, "We try to set up a program that suits that particular person at that particular time, and offer him enough help to be useful for years."

She stated further that a program was followed that enabled the student to check his own progress, and that in recent years several of the reading students were graduated with high honors.

Over two-thirds of the nations colleges offer a reading program. Hinds is the only junior college to offer three reading courses.

Tape recorders, shadowscopes, electric pacers, and sixteen carrels are only a part of the equipment used to help with the students reading problems. The department includes shelves of material including encyclopedias, novels, histories, pamphlets, and textbooks. Projectors and film strips are also available.

Governor, Legislation, Election Viewed

John Bell Williams now reigns as Mississippi's Chief Executive. Upon entering the Governors Office, Williams outlined his plan of administration in his Inaugural Address.

His key pledges were to promote law enforcement, which has vastly contributed to the harmonious atmosphere in which Mississippians live and work: To defend the conservative principles of which our state so proudly seeks to defend and preserve; and to recommend to the legislature programs to promote better conditions for our state, as a whole, such as improvement of our state's highways, which are at the present on a level of insufficiency, and a hike in the salaries of the state's educators, which would encourage the state's best qualified educators to remain on Mississippi soil.

Certainly it is simple to sight these and other major needs of our state. Only through an industrious chief and an eager legislature will these plans become accomplishments.

The concern of the 1968 legislature ranges from the passage of a compulsory education law to the decision of whether or not Mississippi should remain on daylight savings time and from the decision of abolishing the state milk commission to a law prohibiting the headlighting of game.

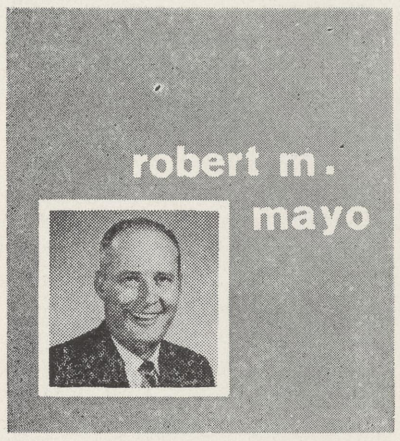
There has also been minor complications and disputes over the assignments of committee members and chairmans. There is no doubt that the legislature is now in the full swing of activity.

Again, concern over the special Congressional election, grows. Governor Williams, who officially resigned his Congressional post with his Inaugural as Governor, has set Tuesday, February 27 as the date for the special election to be held.

Three more candidates have now joined Griffin, Watkins, Bodron, and Pigott in their bid for election. They are David Perkins, of Jackson, NAACP leader, Charles Evers, of Fayette and WLBT news Director, Hagan Thompson, Republican.

Most of the candidates have made clear their views on major issues confronting the national Congress. They have pledged their talents to promote victory in Viet Nam and to stand in opposition to socialistic trends through acts of Congress.

These will most likely not be major issues, as most of the candidates share the conservative philosophy of Government. Most of these candidates have a past record of considerable success and a record of honorable civic and public service.



250 New Students

To the more than 250 new students who have joined us second semester we extend a cordial welcome to the Hinds Junior College campus. It is our desire and purpose that you find at Hinds a course of study that will fit into your educational plans and also that you will find here the intellectual stimulation that will cause you to pursue these plans earnestly and with enthusiasm. To do less is to waste your time and the resources the college has to offer.

Hinds is a small friendly college when compared to the large complex university campus. We take a great deal of pride in the close student-teacher relationships in the scholarship and teaching ability of the faculty, in the expert counseling services that are available in the office of the Dean of Students, in the excellent library services, and in the wide range of courses that are available. We hope you will grow to appreciate these and to share our pride in them.

To those of you who have been with us for one or more semesters we expect to observe signs of intellectual growth and maturity. The acquisition of these traits will equip you to make better value judgments concerning the use of your time and energy which in turn will be reflected in better grades and the satisfaction that comes from doing a job well.

Finally, we repeat a statement we made in this column in the first issue of the Hindsonian—The doors of the President's Office and those of all administrators are open at all times to any student who feels that we can help him with any problem either personal or academic.

Constructive Criticism Aids Progress

Politics, as quite a few Hinds students are finding out, is quite a game. This will even become more evident with the upcoming student body election in April.

It seems that even the political aspiration of a senator has already materialized to a Bobby Kennedy role on campus.

Certainly this past week's senate meeting was an exciting one. It seems that, to our misfortune, political expediency won. However, let me say that the attempted repudiation by several to further their own political prestige is not going to suffice for an effective government. We do not intend to jeopardize in any way the general welfare of the student body by any suicidal attack by some for political gain.

To the members of the Senate I would like to inform you that for the first time this year I saw it necessary to veto the bill that I introduced at the last Senate meeting. My decision was made due to the small vote in passage and the major objection raised to the bill. I do hope the bill will be reintroduced after a fact finding committee I appointed to report back to the Senate.

In recent weeks this office has had a good deal of criticism both pro and con regarding several statements by numerous students in connection with the cafeteria. I defend these students' right to criticize just as everyone has a right to criticize them.

We must look for the validity of this criticism. I certainly do not intend to make any retraction of what was said on my part at the time. Let's look at the situation with an open mind and not jump to conclusions. I believe that the opinions expressed in the last issue of the paper were of the majority.

But let me say right here that personally I have noticed a marked improvement in the matter. Let's not go on opinion all the way. The criticism has been issued to the effect, by some, that these opinions have no merit. Well I ask what are the facts—can't we clear the matter up once and for all. I will be glad to accept them.

The statements made by this office are done for the exact purpose of finding out what is going on. Certainly no citizen wants a member of the legislature to sit by and not raise questions about the public welfare. We are only trying to do the same job here. This is the student government of the students used to represent them for their welfare and best interest. If we continue in this way of doing what a government for the people and by the people is supposed to do then I am sure we will receive more criticism.

Valentine's Day

Custom 700 Years Old

By GAYLE BECK

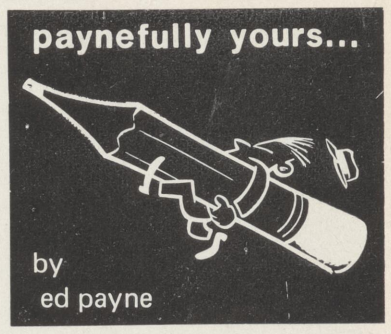
February comes and Cupid draws back his bow, fires, and before you realize it, you are buying a card or a box of candy.

Young men and women in this age aren't the only ones that have done it, this custom has been practiced fro over 700 years. St. Valentine's Day, February 14, is commerated as a day of peace and love.

St. Valentine is the designation of several saints of whom some are martyrs. Earliest record of a valentine is a letter posted in February, 1427 addressed "Unto my right welebelovud Valuntyne. John Paston, Sqyuer." Soon the custom of spending expensive gifts to the one you love became popular.

The custom of sending valentines had most probably only an accidental connection with the martyrs, but rather owed its origin to the conventional medieval belief, that is was at the start of the second fortnight of the second month that the birds began to mate.

Approximately two centuries ago Valentine cards were manufactured, exquisitely designed and bearing a poem of love. In some parts of England St. Valentine's morning was of such momentous meaning that no work was begun in houses, mills, or factories until the postman arrived.



Our Fighting Men

(Note: This week's humor column is by Bobby Clark. The views, if any, that he expressed are not necessarily those of the regular columnist or the paper — ed.)

By BOBBY CLARK

General William C. Eastmoreland received a shocking and puzling reply to his recent request for additional orders and more troops to help him carry out his mission in Asia.

General Eastmoreland is the commanding officer of the United States forces stationed along the Chinese and Soviet border. The U.S. GI's, who number over 300,000, were sent to Asia to end the border conflicts between the Russians and the Chinese.

American soldiers left for the Asian boundary line only after the United Nations refused to hear the incident.

Several months prior to this peace keeping mission, one million American soldiers were sent to West Germany to counteract the Communist build-up in East Germany. The military escalation in eastern Europe was due to the East Germans seizing of an American jeep near the Berlin Wall. The Communist claimed that the vehicle was on the dividing line and was thus eligible for seizure, while the Americans asserted that the jeep was clearly on their side of the line.

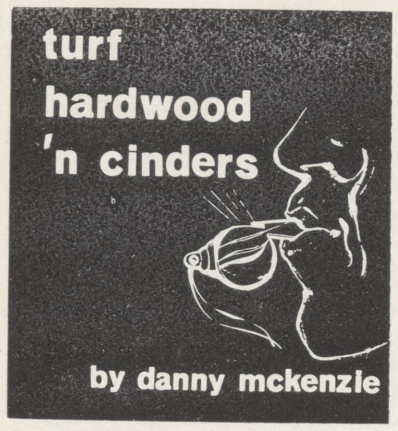
While these two military ventures are taking place, the effort in Vietnam is requiring two million GI's to maintain the American defense of democracy in this area of the world. Military experts estimate that Americans now out number the Viet Cong in South Vietnam 3 to 1 and these same experts predict that this war will end with in the year..

Meanwhile, through periodical ascalations the American force in Korea has recently topped the million and a hlf mark.

Throughout all of history, the American envolvement in the middle east has to rank as its most brilliant military maneuver. In the beginning of this war the United States aided the Israelis with equipment. Following Arabic victories the U. S. was forced to send men to help Israel (this troop development now has reached nine hundred thousand men). With this American aid the Jews turned the tide and drove the Arabs back, now the United States not wishing to lose the Arab nations as friends began to send aid to them (this troop allotment now totals a half-million men). The brilliance of this situation is that no matter which side wins America will have aided that side.

General Eastmoreland commented last week from his station in Asia, "They are spreading us rather thin with their constant attacks all around the world."

Incidently the reply to the general's request was in a slightly Chinese accent saying, "No one was here to defend your land so we decided to swap you our country for yours."



Living Immortal

Immortality is the point one reaches when he is still being mentioned 20 years after he is dead and buried. Immortality is when one is mentioned in retrospect with his achievements which in most cases are outstanding.

Vince Lombardi is alive and breathing and he has already reached the stage of immortality. His achievements are beyond the mere status of outstanding, there is no word to describe his success with the Green Bay Packer.

In 1958 the Packers won a grand total of one football game. In 1959, Vince Lombardi took the helm as head coach and general manager of this hapless team. Since then he has captured the western division of the National Football League five times and has gone on to capture the NFL Championship four times. There has been two Super Bowls played between the champions of the American Football League and the NFL and guess who has won them both? Yep, Lombardi and his Packers.

Lombardi set a style that the rest of pro football will be following for many years to come. It is a proven fact that when he came into the league in 1959 all pro teams were passing 75 per cent on the ground attack. Now that he has been around and waved his magic wand with Jimmy Taylor, Paul Hornung, Tom Moore, Jim Grabowski, onnie Anderson, Elijah Pitts, and about 43 more running backs, pro teams run just as much as they pass and often times more.

Lombardi coached a bruising type of football. The Green Bay style of fottball is a bone-crushing, bow-the-neck style that is not intended for the soft hearts to participate in. Coach Lombardi took issue with the old saying that football is a contact and in doing so, he illustrated his outlook on the sport. "Football is not a contact sport. Dancing is a contact sport, football is a collision sport."

Time to change the subject and bring you the latest from Uncle Wilford. Good ole Unc was telling me the other day about a football game Ole Miss and Mississippi State were playing not long ago. He said it started raining so hard you couldn't see your hand in front of your face. It seems like the Ole Miss team just up and left the playing field because of the rain. Three plays lattr State scored.

In case you're wondering, that 1-3-1 defense that Kentucky runs is not a zone defense. In the words of the master of the game, Adolph Rupp (who despises zone defenses), the Wildcats use, "A stratified, transitional, hyperbolic paraboloid."

Hinds Eagles scored a come-from-behind victory over the Southwest Bears, 66-61, and claimed a 67-62 win over arch-rivals Copiah-Lincoln Wolves as they began action in the second half of the season.

Chip Angelo hit a 15-foot shot with 2:30 left in the Southwest game to give the Eagles a 60-59 lead, the first they had had in the game. Another field goal by Dave Wells put Hinds out of reach for the remainder of the game.

Angelo paced the Eagle scorers in the first game with 17 points and was followed closely by Wells with 15, and James Lyles finished third with 12.

In the 67-62 victory over Co-Lin, Hinds had to stage a late second half rally to claim the win. After leading 32-31 at halftime, Hinds jumped off to a 49-44 lead before experiencing a cold streak that almost cost them the game. The Wolves outscored the Eagles 12-1 and took a 56-50 lead.

The Eagles fought back and with 2:21 remaining in the contest, Warren Rowe hit a bonus free throw to put the Eagles out in front to stay 62-59.

Wells and Lyles led in scoring for Hinds with 21 and 20 respectively. Angelo rang up 11 points to round out the double figure scorers.

ASB Senate Meet Discusses Revenue Through Taxation

BY ED PAYNE

Student government revenue through student taxation was a subject of heated debate at the Associated Student Body Senate meeting January 31.

The bill, authored by ASB president Bill Cole, calls for assessment of a 50 cent tax on all students beginning in the first semester of 1968-69. After a motion to table the bill and a suspension of the rules, the taxation measure passed by a narrow margin.

Tax Bill

Other provisions of the bill include that the tax will be collected during registration along with other fees, that the revenue be placed in a "specific bank account of the A.S.B.", and that the money be used "for the expressed purpose of student government business and the general welfare of the student body as deemed necessary."

Those in opposition to the taxation legislation, led by day student senator Bobby Clark, claimed not all the facts were known and research should be done on the need for the bill.

Tabling Motion

A motion was made by Paul Reihle, Newman Club senator, to table the bill until an investigation into the need for funds from this source could be made. Cole countered with a call for suspension of the rules so the bill could be reconsidered. The suspension was passed and in the final vote the taxation measure was approved 13-12.

The senate adjourned with the next meeting scheduled for Tuesday, February 13.

For Machinists

Vo-Tech, Area Industries Cooperate In Training Program For Students

Vocational Technical Director Walter Gibbes has announced that his department is in the process of working cooperative training programs for machinists as well as other skills with several industries in this area.

The cooperative program has been worked out in the machine shop area with several industries where 60 and 70 students will be chosen to work in industry and jointly to be trained by the vocational department at Hinds.

Industry Pays

As a full time employee, the student will be paid by the industry and have an opportunity to attend classes at Hinds according to a pre-arranged schedule between school and industry.

Satisfactory, said Gibbes, must be accomplished at the industry and in the classes. As the student progresses in school and industry, he will be permitted to have more work responsibility at the industry.

Work Experience

A program of work experience will be outlined for each student and will be followed by the industry. Such a program will insure to each student the experiences necessary to become a machinist.

Selections of students will meet with the approval of both the school and the participating industry. In each case the student will be tested to determine if he has the necessary abilities to succeed in the machinist trade.

Increase In College Costs Effective Summer Session Announces Sheffield

BY GAYLE BECK

Business Manager Grady Sheffield has announced an increase in tuition and board fees for Hinds beginning with the summer session.

The entrance fee of $50 paid at the beginning of each semester will be raised to $60. An ID card and privileges guaranteed with the card will be covered in this fee.

Semester Fee

Sheffield stated that a change in procedure for collecting the room fee would also be made. A $45 fee will be collected each semester from the dormitory student during registration. After the first two weeks of school no refund will be made.

Each boarding student will be required to purchase a meal ticket each six weeks for $60. If a student moves from the dorm each complete unused week of the ticket will be refunded at the rate of $10 a week.

"It is necessary to increase meal tickets to cover the food prices and food preparation prices," commented Sheffield.

State Fees

Out of district and out of state fees will remain the same. All men students enrolled in physical education classes are required to pay a three dollar fee each year.

Sheffield stated, "The entrance fee is fairly uniform within the state. Most of the room and board fees for state colleges have also been increased."

Literary Magazine Requests Articles

Contributions are requested for the planned literary magazine to be published this spring announced project editor Cecil Halford.

Poems, short stories, and essays which students would like to submit should be sent in to the main English office any time before the deadline of March 29.

Two limitations have been set on material: short stories should not exceed 1000 words and essays should be no longer than 500 words.

Selection of material for publication will be made by a faculty committee with illustration for the magazine to be handled by art students taking designing courses. Mrs. Ann Laster, English instructor, is faculty sponsor of the project.

Commented editor Halford, "I am pleased in the amount of interest in the magazine, but am disappointed in the lack of material thus far."

Gubernatorial Proposals Boost Education Effort

Mississippi's educational system was placed under hard scrutiny recently and received several dynamic proposals as Governor John Bell Williams addressed a joint session of the legislature on possible improvements for the system.

"A massive effort must and will be undertaken to improve every level of public education in Mississippi," announced Governor Williams.

This state has repeatedly been placed at tne bottom of the lists when rating education, but if the proposals that were suggested by Governor Williams are approved, they will vastly improve the public schools in the state and the quality of education as reflected in its students.

Of the many proposals that the Governor announced, was a recommendation for a much needed $1,000 increase in base pay for teachers holding "A" and "AA" certificates.

Aiming toward improvement of junior colleges, Governor Williams recommended "that legislation be enacted to provide for a division of junior colleges in the state Department of Education with adequate professional and clerical staff to serve the needs of our growing junior colleges."

In other proposals effecting junior colleges and funds, Governor Williams proposed that "consideration be given to requested increases for the division of vocational education, adult education, crippled children's services, school health services, textbooks, public junior colleges, and vocational rehabilitation."

Governor Williams also stated that he hoped in time to place before the voters "a recommendation for the establishment and creation of a continuing fund to be available to public junior colleges, colleges and universities for construction needs to meet demands for growing enrollments."

In setting these and other proposals before the legislature, the state, and most important, the voters, Governor Williams has mapped out a courageous plan for improvement and upgrading all of the public schools through more readily available funds, and through encouraging teachers to stay at home and teach in Mississippi.

Governor Williams described the plan as taking courage "to walk where in the past, even angels have feared to tread"; yet this walk will prove an immense boost to Mississippi's educational system.—JC

Intramural Valuable Asset

Intramural athletic competition can be counted on as a valuable asset to the sports life of any campus where there are students who take advantage of the program.

Here at Hinds we are fortunate enough to have a group of students who participate in the intramural program with tne right spirit.

Right now the intramural sport being played is basketball. Thirteen teams are in heated competition that will last on through a final playoff tournament.

Most of the games played thus far have been hard fougnt with close scores and averages or up to 20 points scored by some players.

So if you want to see some basketball action that gets down to the nitty gritty, stop by and view the intramural action.—EP.

'Happiness: Ultimate Of Existence'

By GAYLE BECK

"Happiness is the ultimate of our existene," Joe R. Harris, social science instructor, seriously stated, "It is the result of giving and living for others."

This is the motto that Harris, a veteran teacher of 40 years, has lived by and hoped to have instilled in his students.

"Every living thing has a purpose, I feel God has directed me to fulfill my purpose as a teacher at Hinds Junior College," stated Harris, "I advise all my students to find their purpose and dedicate their lives to it. Our desire to fulfill this purpose makes us better."

Central Grad

Harris, a graduate of Central High School, received his B.S. from Millsaps, and his M.A. from the University of Alabama. He has done graduate work at Mississippi Southern and the University of Mississippi.

As the political science instructor at Hinds, he stated the basic purposes of this course were to assist the students to become more civic minded, becaue a democracy rises no higher than the level of its citizens, and to make students more concerned with society, because the world's welfare is also the United States' welfare.

In summarizing policital science he stated, "To live a useful and successful life we must become more right minded, to want to know the truth and to know the truth."

Worthy Motive

Education to Harris means a great deal of things, comenting that "education is not thme narrow desire for wealth or economic advancement, but the greatest and most worthy motive for learning is the desire to help others."

Aside from his teaching, Harris owns a farm on Raymond Road. He spends nearly all of his spare time caring for his horses, cattle, and land. He enjoys spending his evenings with his family and preparing his school and church work.

FULFILLING MOTTO — Joby Harris, political science instructor, has spent 40 years teaching at Hinds fulfilling his motto that 'Happiness is the result of giving and living for others.' Car Ticket Blues

Oh, there were hopes of it being a bright happy day last Friday when I skipped down the sidewalk to my car — hopes that darkened when I found my car sporting one of those genuine, authentic, black ink on white paper parking tickets.

Now it wasn't noticed right off the bat. No, I hopped briskly into my little white mean machine and was headed into the wide open spaces of another of those wild lost weekends before that gleam of white and the faint rustle caught the full focus of my attention.

Of course I started to read the thing, since it was presssd there against the windshield anchored by the windshield wiper. While gaping astonishingly at it, I relied on my quick driving instincts to guide me along the road. These instincts led me weaving along from ditch to ditch and nearly caused me to squash two kids who, pale with fright, mumled curses at me through bites of their tootsy roll pops.

Putting the car under manual control again, I decided that that THING on my windshield flaunting itself at me must be a figment of my imagination: the product of accidentally inhaling glue fumes during those long hours I had toiled over model airplanes in my childhood.

So I turned on the windshield wiper, the automatic window washer, and waited for the darn thing to disappear.

It didn't so, resigning myself to the ticket's reality (though still faintly hoping it was one of those eye catching B.S.U. circulars) I pulled the car over and made a closer examination of the ticket.

It had me scared. On the back was written in rather stern wording:

"Stop by the business office and pay your fine within five hours or bamboo splints will be burned under your fingernails. Thank You."

My mind raced back through the last week. Now what could I have possibly done to deserve something like this. Everyone knows it's impossible to find a parking place at the dorm, so how could I have parked illegally? The only place usually available for me to stash the buggy is behind the practice football field.

In fact, often I have wondered what it will be like to tell my children one day, "You kids have it easy today. Why back in my time I remember when we sometimes had to walk a hundred yards or more to class, in sneakers, with the weather 30 degrees." And they would walk away shaking their heads and saying," pop sure tends to exaggerate, doesn't he."

There is no doubt about it, I am the victim of a frame up. As a matter of fact, I'm sure now I remember seeing a man hanging around my car. Perhaps he was the one that illegally parked my car. I'm positive he was one armed, and I saw him leave the scene of the crime.

But Lieutenant Appleton will never believe my story, so I will have to find the one armed man myself. Until then I remain a fugitive.

Events Of History Plentiful In Shortest Month Of Year

By GAYLE BECK

Did you realize that over 110 history making events happened in the month of February? Events involving government, literature, music, art, recreation, outer space, and others all took place in the second and shortest month of the year.

Those of you born under the Pisces and Aquarius signs might find it lucky to know that two presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, were born in this month. Also born in February were the famous composer, Federic Chopin, the painter, Winslow Homer and the nature poet, William Wordsworth.

Ground Hog Day

If you are superstitious and interested in the weather you will remember February 2 is Ground Hog Day. For all of the romantics and sentimentalists St. Valentine's Day comes on February 14 with hearts, flowers, and candy.

The gay season of New Orleans opens formally on the 27 of this month, Mardi Gras. Ash Wednesday follows the next day.

One of America's greatest cowboys, "Buffalo Bill," was born in this month in 1846. Another national ero, Charles Lindberg, aviator, was born on the fourth in 1902. A great event in the space realm was John Glenn's orbital space flight February 20, 1962, which was America's first.

Court Meets

The Supreme Court of the United States met for the first time in this month in 1790. On February 8 the Boy Scouts organization was founded.

These are just a few of the reasons February has been noted as the "history month." Can you picture the year 2000, when they speak of February, 1968?

New Semester Marks New Beginnings

A new semester is an excellent time for new beginnings—for us as individuals and for us collectively as campus organizations and an over-all student body. For many of us this is our last new beginning at Hinds with all the frientds we have made among the faculty and students in the past two years, and this fall will find us widely separated from each other. Others of you will have more semesters at Hinds to bring opportunities for beginning afresh. However, all of us would profit if we would accept this new semester as a challenge to improve—now—in every way we possibly can.

Since Improvements in us as individuals would in turn strengthen campus organizations, not to mention the over-all student body, let us look for a moment at the maximum potential for the Hinds student and see how a greater realization of potential in individuals could markedly affect Hinds Junior College.

When the student begins a semester, he is casting himself among opportunities unlimited. Before the semester closes he will have had countless opportunities to participate in campus affairs by joining clubs, attending social funtions, by supporting the athletic teams, and by voting in campus elections. As the semester opens, the oportunity is his to experience learning daily in his calsswork so that when the semester ends he will have earned the very highest grade possible for him in each course. Most important, he will have had the opportunity to do all things for the glory of God. How close we as students come to capitalizing on all these priceless opportunities is of vital importance to Hinds Junior College.

If we as individuals fail to meet the challenge for improvement, we may as well stop wishing for such things as more social activities, an even broader curriculum, a winning basketball team, a more effective student government, and a more dynamic Hinds Junior College. How can clubs sponsor projects and social affairs if the individual student at HJC does not partiipate in the club? Can we expect to have social functions on campus, yet not attend when they are held? Oh we really expect the team to win when we never warm a bleacher or raise our voice to cheer? How can competent leaders be elected for our campus when only 20% of the student body votes in campus elections? Why do we expect a grade which we have failed to earn through learning? And finally, can we expect God to glorify us if we refuse to glorify Him?

The challenge is out for improvement. It can be a new beginning for you as well as for me. We, a student body of roughly 2,500, can make this a semester to remember for Hinds if we are willing to make 2,500 new beginnings toward improvement right now.

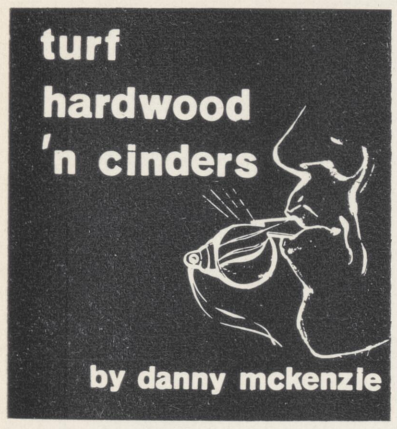
Auto Question

Should students bring automobiles to college? This question has been debated on most college campuses and is still a popular topic of discussion among college administrators. I am frequently asked by parents who plan to send sons and daughters to enroll at Hinds if automobiles are allowed. If one glances at our large parking lots and at the area around the dormitories it is obvious that we have not seen fit to restrict the use of automobiles by our students. Valid arguments can be made for both sides of this question, but the nature and purpose of the junior or community college might be changed if the use of automobiles by students were prohibited.

In counselling with students we attempt to point out the educational booby trap inherent in the ownershp and operation of an automobile. To the dormitory student the automobile is usually a useless appendage to his educational career and one that is the cause of many temptations. If they pass up the temptation they have eliminated the problem. Not only is the ownership of an automobile a constant money problem for many students, but it becomes a hobby, a symbol, a folly, and most always a way of life. It can and often does provide an escape from the work and diligent application of one's mind to the task at hand. Some students take a demanding part-time job, not to pay the modest cost of attending Hinds, but to support an automobile.

Too often this immature reasoning results in poor or failing college work. To the large and growing number of commuting students, the automobile may be a necessity, especially if the student finds it necessary, and many of our students do, to hold a part-time job, either to help family finances or to provide money for his own use while attending college. For this group, the automobile should remain just what it is—



Olympic Origin

The one year that all amateur athletes all over the world have been waiting in anticipation for has now arrived. The Olympic Games are here and once again we, the people, have a chance to see true dedicated athletes perform, not the men who play for pay and sometimes fail to put any excitement into the world of sport.

The Olympic Games originated in Ellis, Grece where every four years truce bearers of Zeus were sent out to invite all people to come. The games lasted five days, and during these five days, all wars that were going on stopped.

On the first day of the games, all athletes swore an oath of good honor and fair play before a statue of Zeus. An oxen was then sacrificed to Zeus so that he would rid them of the numerous flies.

On the morning of the second day, a chariot race was held in the Hippodrome. The course that the chariots followed was nine miles in length containing 23 sharp turns.

On the afternoon of the second day the Pentathlon took place. This test of physical abilities included wrestling, footrace, broad jump, discuss throwing, and the throwing of the javelin. Hyson was the greatest of the Pentathlon championes despite the fact that he had polio as a boy.

On the third morning a whole herd of oxen were sacrificed to Zeus, again to rid them of the flies. During the afternoon the children's games were held.

The fourth day was the big day for these athletes. In the morning the 400-yard dash and the 200-yard dash were held. In these races false starters were whipped; also, the winner of the 200-yard dash had the games named after him for the next four years.

In the afternoon of the fourth day, wrestling and boxing were held along with the Pankration. Milo was the most famous wrestler of his day and Glaucus was recognized as the most powerful boxer.

The Pankration, which means "all power," was the contest that only the strongest, or the most ignorant of men would dare participate in. In this contest everything but eye-gouging and nose and ear-biting off were legal.

All Olympic competition was ended on the fourth day with the running of the 400-yard dash, this time in a full suit of armor. This run could prove to be rather difficult since armor sometimes weighed close to 200 pounds.

The fifth was a day of ceremonies in which the winners were presented with their headbands of holly, not gold medals.

I would like to thank Mr. Reuben Dyer for the information that he passed along to me in this Western Civilization class concerning these most famous of all athletic contests, even the Super Bowl.

Junior College Conditions Revealed By Investigation

Mississippi's General Legislative Investigating Committee for 1964-1968 recently released its report on conditions existing at junior colleges in the state.

The Committee investigated 17 junior college districts in the State of Mississippi. "This investigation consisted of a personal, physical inpection by the committee of practically every building used by each junior college and inquiries into the financing, curriculum, future plans, administration, housing, transportation and other subjects deemed pertinent," the report stated.

The investigation of junior colleges began in late January of 1967 and was "for audit, comparison, and analysis tof school accomplishments."

Full Text

The full text of the report on Hinds is as follows:

"On Tuesday, February 21, 1967 your committee made an investigation of Hinds Junior College. We went directly to the office of the President Robert M. Mayo. After a general discussion of various phases of the college program, we made a tour of the buildings, and the enterprises operated by the school.

"Hinds is one of the oldest, and is by far the largest of the junior colleges. The curriculum is, also, the broadest. Buildings and campus are both well kept. Extensive rebuilding and modernization has been done; some work is now in progress, and much more is planned.

Programs Utilized

"The Academic, Fine Arts, Physical Education, and the Vocational and Technical Training programs are being utilized.

"Because of the size of the school, authority is delegated more than at any other junior college. However, the president was remarkably conversant with all aspects of the college's operation. Those to whom authority is delegated seem capable.

Favorably Impressed

"Your committee was particularly and favorably impressed with the activity of the Vocational and Technical Divisions under the direction of Mr. Gibbes. This department was literally alive with its work. Representatives of industry are almost constantly on hand seeking to hire students.

"The atmosphere at Hinds is more akin to the senior than the junior college. However, local interest, particularly by the Hinds County Board of Supervisors, was evidenced by the number of enterprises turned over to the school by the county. This school is unique in that, in addition to its educational responsibilities, it operates an airport, a cold storage plant, a golf course, a park, and a large recreational lake which is open to the public. In addition to the above enterprise, the college, as some others in the state, operates a farm which emphasizes the raising of beef cattle, hogs and chickens.

Some Spoilage

"Your committee observed that unusually large stores of cafeteria supplies were on hand and that some spoilage had occurred.

"Dormitories are, or are in the process of being made attractive, comfortable and functional. Thought was being given to dormitory utilization, which should be of interest and profit to other institutions."

Three Hinds honor dramatics students were recently initiated into Delta Psi Omega, Dramatics Fraternity, announced sponsor, Miss Marjorie Hess.

Linda Rushing, Shalimar, Florida, Jerry Peyton and Phillip Criddle both of Raymond were chosen on scholastic achievement and the number of hours work done in dramatics for this honor dramatics club.

National Fraternity

In 1967 the club had 225 chapters with several charter grants under consideration. Membership in the society totaled approximately 21,000 members last year.

To be eligible for membership in Delta Psi Omega Dramatic Fraternity, colleges must offer at least two years of work beyond the high school level, and have a dramatic club, or other organized group for the purpose of staging plays.

Role In Play

In order to be eligible for membership in Delta Psi Omega, a student must have played a major role in a three-act play, or its equivalent in one-act plays or stage work, as defined in the national constitution.

Six Major Roles

Musical Tryouts Open February 19

By JUDY JOHNSON

Tryouts for "110' in the Shade," a musical, are scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, February 19, 20, and 21 in the Music Auditorium at 6:00 p.m.

This musical, to be presented in early May, is a joint project of the Music Department and the Speech and Drama Departments.

Music From Reeves

Music can be picked up from Mrs. Leslie Reeves, voice instructor, for tryouts for any of the 30 chorus parts in the Music Department.

There will be 20 speaking parts, six of which will be major roles. Any student wishing to read over the script in order to practice before trying out for a part, can go by the speech office to read at any time prior to the tryout dates.

From Play

The musical is taken from the play and movie titled, "The Rainmaker," which starred Bert Lancaster.

The musical takes place at the time of a paralyzing drought in the West. Lizzie Curry whose father, H. C. Curry, and her two brothers, Jimmy and Noel are as worried about her becoming an old maid as they are about their dying cattle. Lizzie is indeed a plain girl.

The brothers try every plausible scheme to marry her off, but without success. There is not any sign of relief from the dry heat either. A picaresque character with a meliflous tongue and the most grandiose notions that a man could imagine appears.

Bring Rain

This picaresque character is a rainmaker. He promises to bring rain, for $100. It is a silly idea, but the rainmaker is so refreshing and ingratiating that the Curry finally consent.

The Curry's begin to bang on big bass drums to "rattle the sky"; while the rainmaker turns his majic on the girl, and persuades her that she has a very real beauty of her own.

Lizzie believes the rainmaker, just as her father believes that the fellow can actually bring rain. Eventually rain does come . . . and so does love.

The New York World Telegram and Sun rates this musical as "A cloudburst of a hit."

Research, Development Center Goals Explained By Speaker To Engineers

By JUDY JOHNSON

Bryan Baker, of the Community Development and Planning Division of the Mississippi Research and evelopment Center spoke to the Hinds Engineering Club recently.

Baker explained in his speech that the goal of the Mississippi Research and Development Center as being to raise the average Mississippian's income to the national average by the year 2000.

Explain Center

Most of the staff at the center has been there for only 27 months. Baker distributed sheets for the members to explain the organization of the center.

Baker demonstrated the progress that Mississippi is making by the use of charts. He also represented the position of Mississippi on a national comparison basis.

Future In State

At the conclusion of the program, Baker explained the possibilities of the future of Mississippi in the field of engineering by the use of booklets published by the Mississippi Research and Development Center. He finally encouraged the students not to leave the state after graduation.

Baker, a registered engineer in Texas, Georgia, and Mississippi was presented to the club by last year's sponsor, Jim Hust.

transportation—not a way of life, a hobby, and a means of temptation or escape from the demands of college or the job.

In summary, the automobile is to the college student just what he wants it to be. It can be used as a means of acquiring an education that might otherwise be denied him or it can be a booby trap that puts him out of the academic competition before he really gets started. This decision of how the automobile is to be used will be made by parents who sign payment notes and insurance policies and by the students themselves. The automobile on the college campus is not an inherent evil per se. How it is used and the importance attached to it may be.

Vo-Tech Sets Foundation For Mississippi Industry

Training men for the demanding roles of industry is a big job, and Hinds Vocatioal-Technical Director Walter Gibbes meets it with the philosophy of instilling a desire in his studenas to achieve.

Gibbes will readily tell you of his rapidly expanding department which seeks to develop the potentialities of the students and to help them realize the importance of their place in business.

The main objective of Vocational-Technical training, says Gibbes, is to train men to take their place in industry while educating them to become a valuable unit of the community.

According to Gibbes, academic students would benefit greatly by taking a course in the Vocational-Technical Department which would relate to their major field. In effect, this would guarantee them a solid foundation in basic knowledge to their vocation, and could help serve as income for supplementing college costs from summer or part time work.

By offering courses from radio and television theory through airplane engine mechanics, the Vocational-Technical Department is helping to build a solid foundation for the industries of Mississippi.

Ever expanding and ever improving curriculums and courses, with an emphasis on the building of the individual, the Hinds Vocational-Technical Department stresses a modern and realistic view toward improvement of manpower in Mississippi industries.—JC

Good Rules To Follow

Good English, as anyone in Freshman Composition will readily tell you, is of utmost importance in school work.

At this time of year, with term papers peeking over the not too distant horizon, correct use of English takes on added dimensions. It is a safe bet that in the weeks to come the campus bookstore will be faced with an onslaught of students purchasing those "2000 Easy Steps To Writing A Decent Term Paper" - type books.

It is an even safer bet that the vast majority of these books will have the first five pages read and then be placed on the shelf to gather dust the rest of the year. Proofreading of the term paper will end up being done by the student's roommate at two o'clock on the morning the paper is due.

So, as a public service, the Hindsonian would like to reprint these rules of English grammar as they first appeared in the "Education Reporter" magazine:

1. Don't use no double negatives.
2. Make each pronoun agree with their antecedent.
3. Join clauses good, like a conjunction should.
4. About them sentence fragments.
5. When dangling, watch your participles.
6. Verbs has to agree with their subjects.
7. Just between you and I, case is important, too.
8. Don't write run-on sentences they are hard to read.
9. Don't use commas, when aren't necessary.
10. Try to not ever split infinitives.
11. Its important to use your apostrophe's correctly.
12. Proofread your writing to see if you any words out.
13. Correct spelling is esential.

That there about sums it up.—EP

World's Record?

Student Plans Mile-Long Love Letter

By ED PAYNE

Buddy Cooper of Jackson, a Hinds student who describes his hobby as "doing nutty things," is presently involved in one of his nuttiest exploits to date: writing the world's longest love note.

The note, being written on two and one fourth inch wide adding machine rolls, is but the latest in a series of lengthy exchanges between Buddy and Betty Evans of Vicksburg.

20 Foot Note

It all started rather innocently when Betty sent Buddy a note written on 20 feet of adding machine tape.

Not to be outdone, Buddy — with the aid of two friends, Jim Blackmon and Edward Sauls of Jackson — set out immediately to respond to the note. It began with a simple "Dear Betty" and ended some 449 feet and 11 inches later with his signature.

500 Feet

The entire 500 feet of tape was done over a period of three days and nights, stretching over Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of last week. Locations used in composing the note included Buddy's home, the bus he drives, his classes, and the school grill. Some of it was even done in his bathtub.

'Mushy Stuff'

Jim and Edward assisted by keeping the paper rolling so Buddy would not become entangled in his own jungle of prose. Buddy has kept the contents of the letter a secret but from what the two could sneak peeks at, the note consisted of jokes, some drawings, and a lot of "romantic mushy stuff" they could never get a good look at.

When the completed roll was finally presented to Betty on Friday she was, in Buddy's words, "Startled . . . she knew I was up to something, but she didn't quite expect this."

Some Problems

Naturally, there were problems: "When my parents found out what I was doing they thought I had really gone off my rocker." Then there was the day, Buddy relates, when about 75 feet of the note fell out of his pocket in front of the science building and he got some rather odd looks from bystanders.

But that's not the sort of stuff to deter a fellow like Buddy, who hasn't called it quits yet. "No, I told Betty I was going to write her the world's longest letter. I figure if I let it go at 500 feet, some other nut might be crazy enough to write one longer."

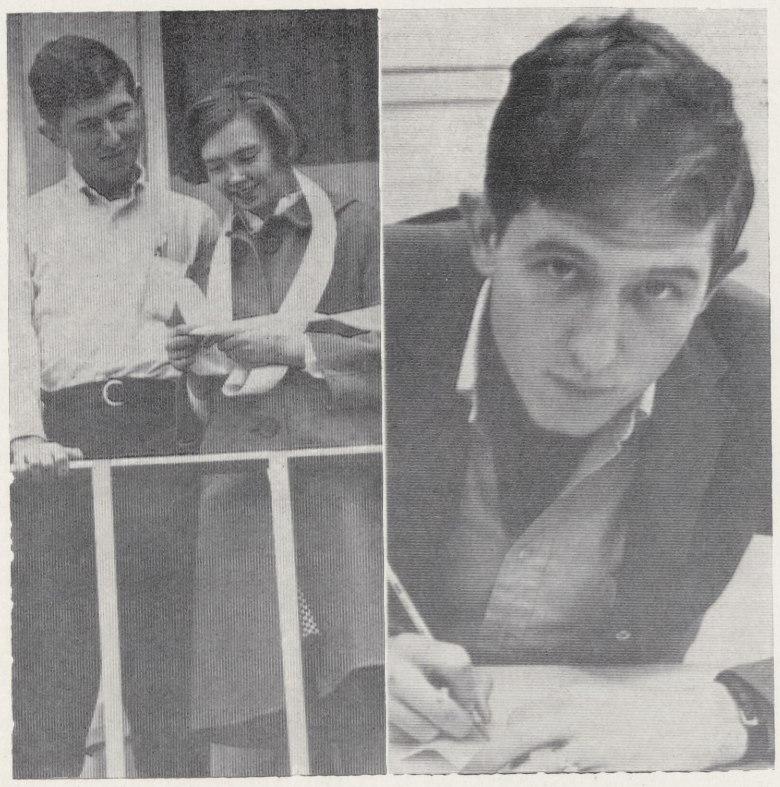
So Buddy is doing it himself. He has started work on a new letter. This one "won't be a gag like the last one."

Mile Long Letter

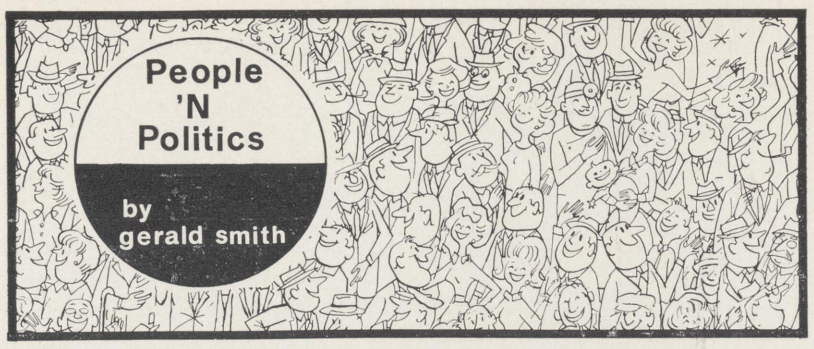
Writing at the rate of 200 feet per day, four hours a day, Buddy estimates he will have a mile long letter in twenty-five days.

According to the "Guiness Book of World Records," which seems to be the authority on matters such as this, the record for letter length is one of 3200 feet, also written on adding machine rolls back in 1954.

If Buddy keeps at it he might have a world record on his hands.



ALL WRAPPED UP — Betty Evans is all wrapped up in a 500 foot love note sent to her by Buddy Cooper. Buddy, already working on another note "which won't be a gag", expects to break the world's record for the longest letter. Photos by Harris.



State, U. S. Races Show Complications

In Mississippi, the state legislature has been in full activity for the past couple of weeks, despite their so-called "long weekends," as the news media coined the phrase.

Several minor bills have passed and been signed by the Governor, however, the legislature must soon turn it's concern to the new education proposals of the Governor. The education committee of the Senate recently approved the program, in general, and has brought it before the body for consideration.

The second session of the 90th Congress is now underway and the Third District is still without representation. On February 27, voters will choose a U. S. Representative.

The seven candidates have now tightened their efforts to capture the vacated seat. State Senator Ellis Bodron of Vicksburg, has repeatedly advocated a plea for more Mississippi - type government in Washington.

Former Administrative Assistant Charles Griffin is strongly advocating a fire ant control proposal, among other plans in his platform. Dr. David Perkins, with his outspoken conservative campaign manager, Ace Carter, has pledged his efforts to cut federal intervention in state affairs, which would in state affairs.

Former newsman Hagan Thompson and only Republican contender in the race has strongly advocated an effort to cut federal taxes and government spending. Circuit Judge Pigott, also advocates a program of conservatism. Troy Watkins, the former Natchez Mayor, is also pleaing for support on the grounds of his claimed honorable past public service. Charles Evers, of Fayette, has spent a great deal of his time criticizing the past policies of the third districts representative.

On the national scene, the Presidential campaign of 1968, despite the concern over the current developments in the Viet Nam war and the most recent Pueblo incident, has captured the attention of a greatly disturbed nation. Political campaigns, particularly those of presidential hopefuls, are of an extreme controversial nature.

There are, at present, four officially announced seekers of the White House. They are George Romney, Richard Nixon, George Wallace, and Eugene McCarthy.

Romney, the present Governor of Michigan, and former president of American Motors, and Nixon, the former vice president under President Dwight Eisenhower, and Republican nominee who was defeated by the late President John Kennedy in 1960, are both well-known Republican property. These men, whose political beliefs are considered to vary considerably have entered primaries in several of the 50 states.

Students Ignorant Of Genocide Menace

Are we as students at Hinds Junior College committing genocide without any knowledge of it?

Genocide is the elimination of a whole people or a nation by a systematic method. The method with which this term is used makes it extremely unstable, even fragile. However, the connotation we are using is applicable to the educational process along with intellectual curosity and its place in society.

In a sense we are committing genocide here on the campus of Hinds Jr. College. No high tribunal has yet heard the case nor is there any chance this will be done. If these high crimes are to be coveted, we the students and faculty are the only ones who can hope to see justice done.

Today our society is based on the effects of an industrial revolution that is slowly eliminating itself by cybernetics. However, this is not a forecast of the collapse of our economic system. Robert Theobold, noted socio-economist, recently stated that we are about to embark into a new revolution to supercede the declining industrial revolution. It is the full development of the "Knowledge Industries." That is the age of communication, McLuhanism, is upon us. Each and every year the education level of our citizens become more and more important toward the realization of this new society.

But yet, at some bastions of intellectual thought, the students are not concerning themselves with their emergence into society. No one seems to be aware or concerned for that matter about what part they will play in those new knowledge industries. Will there even be a place for the like of the students we have now? If by any chance we do not wake up to the fact that we must take advantage of all opportunities to become prepared. Certainly if we avail ourselves, even here at Hinds, to an education in all senses of the word, we can be prepared.

However, we cannot hope to be fully prepared by textbook and lectures alone. It takes an awareness of our society and the problems of it. Certainly the needed awareness does not come entirely from our texts but it is obtainable on all college campuses if the student desires it. If we do not accept with determination an attitude to become aware and concerned, then we will be committing genocide. We will be systemically eliminating the future we, as a people hope to play in a new society that is inevitable to exist.

The Daily Princeton, speaking of students in Mississippi, stated that they are the most unconcerned students, regarding social, political and economic issues, in the United States. Perhaps now is the time for us to emerge from our shell and accept our responsibility as being a part of the United States.

Certainly we have witnessed an apathetic student body in the past,

Southern Players To Stage 'Tempest' On February 27th

By JUDY JOHNSON

William Shakespeare's romance, "The Tempest" will be presented by the 'Southern Players' of the University of Southern Mississippi in the College Auditorium Tuesday, February 27 at 8:00 p.m. as part of a Junior College tour of Mississippi.

This winter quarter production of the Southern Players will be directed by Dr. Larrence Zillmer, Chairman of the Theatre Department there.

Popular Play

"The Tempest" was chosen for student production because of its popularity as one of Shakespeare's best comedies. This production also contains some of the best poetry of Shakespeare's mature years.

Richard Winterstein takes on the most demanding role of Prospero. Other performers include: Donna Lee Field, who is the elfin sprite, Ariel; Betty Morgan as Miranda; Tom Ash, as her lover, Ferdinand; and Charles Smith, Don Smith and Steve Burnham, who are the clowning Caliban, Stephano and Trinculo.

Roles Include

Roles as noblemen shipwrecked on the island in the tempest, are played by Larry Lambert, as Alonso; Gary Jones, as his brother, Sesbastian; Richard Hemba as Antonio, Prospero's wicked brother; and Tom Wickliffe, as Gonzalo.

Singing and dancing in the pageant of spirits are Sherri Wanger, as Iris; Rita Baker, as Ceres; Mary Brown, as Juno; and Mary Martin, a nymph. Completing the cast is Jim Bankston, who appears as a boatswain.

Set Design

Set design is by Professor Tom Tews, Technical director for the theatre department. The set, made largely of wooden platforms covered by styrofoam, gives the lightness to the set necessary since it will be transported to junior colleges throughout the state during the tour.

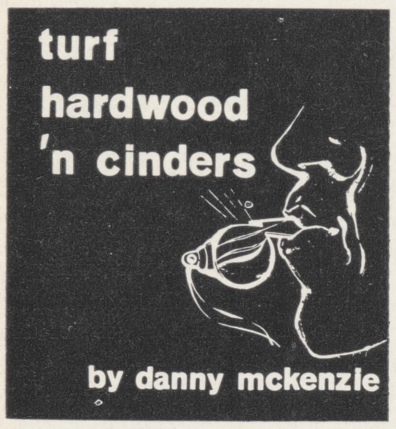
Make-up by Mrs. May Kate Tews, costumes by Elizabeth Patterson and Rosann Whalen and special music composed by Lee Holby will also add to the production.

Other junior colleges on the tour schedule include: Mississippi Valley State College, Itta Bena. February 28; Northeast Mississippi Junior College, Booneville, February 29; Wood Junior College, Mathiston, March 1; East Mississippi Junior College, March 4; Copiah-Lincoln, Wesson, March 5; and East Central Junior College, Decatur, March 7.

Script Edited

The script used for the show has been personally edited from the Globe text edition by Clark and Wright of the play first published in 1964 by Dr. Zillmer. Dr. Zillmer holds a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin, one of the top five graduate schools in the country in the field of theatre.

"The Tempest is generally considered to be one of Shakespeare's most appe'ing plays, written toward the end of the poet's life in his 'mellow period.'



Fairy Tale True?

Once upon a time, in the western land of sunshine and seashore, there lived one of the greatest basketball coaches that had ever fielded a team. He was recognized by his fellow mentors as not only being one of the greatest coaches, but also as one of the finest gentlemen in the game.

This coach was endowed with a great basketball team that made a practice of winning basketball games. They were almost obsessed with winning. This team was made up of men that were often placed in the "star" category, and rightly so, for they were truly ballplayers with far more than normal ability.

This team of stars was centered around their pivotman who was placed in the "superstar" category. He was a giant of a man and he could do things with a basketball that no man had ever seen. He was the ideal fellow to build a team around, except for one thing. This man was not of the Caucasian race or of the Mongolian race, and he was very sensitive of this. He felt that his race was not being treated fairly in the world of sports and that it was time that they were treated in a more just way.

This "superstar" decided that he would do something about this inhumane treatment. He decided to lead a protest and a boycott on the Olympic Games, in which he had not even been chosen to participate. He engaged the services of many of his friends of the same race and they spoke out on this unjust treatment quite vehemently. Many of his race that had been stars in these Olympic Games did not find favor in his statements and they made their feelings known to the public just as the superstar had.

The two groups kept right on talking about the unjust treatment and words got pretty hot and heavy between them. The superstar was so sure that he was the best basketball player in the country that he felt that it was perfectly within his rights to speak out on such a subject.

Then it came time for the superstar and his star cohorts to play a ball game against another team that was far above the average ball club. There was much debate over which was the best team.

The game was finally played before the largest audience to ever witness a basketball contest and the superstar's team lost, much to the delight of many. The super star was put down rather easily by another ballplayer of his race that had not said anything about any boycotts or about the way members of his race had been treated in the world of sports.

The superstar hasn't said much since that game.

RENFROE KNOWS

Fights Over Famed Mascot Causes Disposal Of Bozo

By DANNY McKENZIE

Why would the Hinds Eagles have an elephant named Bozo as a mascot? Well, that's not the way it all started.

In 1946, the welding department cut out an elephant that was approximately 15 inches high, 24 inches long and weighed 50 pounds to use as a display to draw interest in the Vocational-Technical school of Hinds.

Named "Bozo"

The elephant was promptly named "Bozo" and placed in front of Shangri-La dormitory where it stayed for almost a year without drawing much attention. The basketball teams (girls and boys) came from Copiah-Lincoln in Wesson to play a ball game and after it was over, they decided that they would like to have Bozo for their very own. So they took it.

There Bozo stayed for a short time until our basketball team brought it back to the Raymond campus after paying a visit to Wesson. Now it was time for Holmes to enter the picture. The school from Goodman came down for a game and they decided also that they would like to have it for their very own. So they took Bozo.

Northwest Swipes

A group of students went to Goodman and brought it back again to Hinds. Now it was time for Northwest to enter the picture. Northwest came down for a game and Bozo was used as a door stop to keep the doors open so fresh air could get into the gym. Upon leaving, the ballteam from Senatbia decided that they too would like to have Bozo for their very own. So they took it.

Now, we didn't go to Senatobia to get it; we waited for Holmes to get it for us. It seems as if there were some boys from Holmes that had been in Memphis, and on their way back to Goodman they spotted Bozo on the Northwest campus. Again the Holmes students took it and hid it on their campus.

Spies Help

The general consenus is that there were spies operating between Holmes and Hinds because we found out that Holmes had Bozo, and we immediately went after it. We didn't get it — this time.

The spies went to work on the Goodman campus and by some persuasive method had the students move the elephant into the open next to the highway passing by Holmes. Again the Hinds forces got together and went after Bozo and this time the Holmes spies notified them that we were after it. The two forces met in front of the Holmes campus and engaged in a battle that was so large that it blocked traffic on Highway 51. The Hinds students came out the winner, but not for long.

G. M. McLendon was president of Hinds at that time and he was notified by the president of Holmes of the tremendous fight that went on and the damage it had done both to the Holmes campus and to the Holmes and Hinds students. "Mr. Mac" then notified Coach Joe Renfroe to dispose of Bozo and he immediately did so.

"Bozo" Dunked

The general opinion around Raymond is that Coach Joe placed Bozo in the bottom of Raymond lake, but nobody knows for sure — except Coach Joe.

As for now, we will have to get along with our wooden Bozo, named Bozo IV. This is the third wooden elephant because the different fights over Bozo have caused the others to be destroyed. If tradition holds true to form, Bozo IV will not be around too much long. Let 'em try.

Camels Top Shangri-La I; Maintain Perfect Record

By BOBBY CLARK

Undefeated Southside Camels turned away the previously unbeaten Shangri-La I team, 35-29 and moved into an undisputed first place lead in the intramural basketball league.

The Camels after overcoming an early first period lead, pushed their record to 6-0 in the standings. Southside displayed their usual ball-control game and their tight zone defense to hold off a late fourth quarter rally of the Shangri-La team in which they tied the score at 26-26 with only 2:13 remaining.

The Camels completely dominated the rebounding in the game with Randle Neely, Bubba Kynerd and Billy Byrd controlling both the offensive and defensive boards. Danny McKenzie led all scorers with 19 points for Southside. Jimmy Reeves followed McKenzie in the Camel scoring with eight points. For Shangri-La Bo Smith and Larry Swales each hit for eight to lead their teammates in scoring.

Meats Win Twice

In other action around the league, the Meats continued to push the Camels for first place as they claimed two victories last week. The Meats turned away Eastside, 64-53 and Shangri-La II 48-24. In the first game, Wiley Aldridge continued to lead the Meats in individual scoring as he hit for 26. Randy Parker followed closely with 20 points. For Eastside, Jimmy Powers was held to his lowest output of the year as he could manage only 14 points. Sleeping Bear Wootton, Jerry Grantham, and Johnny Ragsdale followed Powers with 10.

In the Meat's victory over the Shangri-La II team Aldridge again led with 27 points. Glynn Bell followed Aldridge in the Meats scoring with 10 points. For the Shangri-La team Rudy Irwin was high man with eight points.

Shangri La I snapped the Yard Dogs unbeaten streak by taking a 57-52 win over them. The Yard Dogs led as much as 10 points in the first half but could not hold down the shooting of Larry Swales, Bo Smith and James Welch. Swales led all scorers as he hit for 19 and was followed by Smith and Welch with 17 and 16 respectively. For the Yard Dogs, Bill Pope was high man with 18.

Eagles Down Lions After Friday Loss To Holmes 'Dogs'

Hinds' Eagles downed the East Mississippi Lions 60-54 to snap a two-game losing streak on Saturday night following a Friday loss to the Holmes Bulldogs 67-62.

Paced by the hot shooting of David Wells and James Lyles, the Eagles never trailed the Lions as they notched their tenth victory of the season against five defeats.

Midway through the second half after Hinds had upped their lead to 45-33, the Lions began a closing rally which tied the score at 48 all and then with 1:30 remaining at 52-52.

Following the tied score, Wells hit a shot to start the Eagles on a spree of eight consecutive points to insure the victory. Wells topped all scorers with 31 points; while Lyles tallied for 20.

Hinds dropped a 67-62 decision to Holmes as the Eagles failed to post a victory for the third time in four outings.

Chip Angelo kept the Eagles in the contest through the first half as he scored 18 points. Despite Angelo's scoring Hinds trailed 33-32 at halftime.

Second half action saw the teams trade baskets until the last minute and a half of play when the Bulldogs, capitalizing on Eagle miscues, built up the winning margin of five points.

Angelo paced the Eagle scoring with 24 points; James Lyles followed with 18 markers.

Freshmen Join ASTRA; Project Plans Complete

By GAYLE BECK

ASTRA, Hinds service club for girls, inducted 20 new members at a meeting and reception held last Tuesday, announced President Vivian Jarvis of Brandon.

New members of ASTRA must have faculty approval, consent of the present members, and a 1.5 average before being inducted. The new freshman members include: Tommie Ruth Slade, Brandon; Marcia Herrington, Jackson; Shirley Collier, Vicksburg; Linda Coleman, Jackson; and Margaret Ann Dixon of Terry.

New Members

Other new members are Donna McKee, Jackson; Bonnie Massey, Brandon; Martha Swales, Jackson; Donna Drew, Jackson; Ann Sumrall, Crystal Springs; Karen Boswell, Jackson; Pam Price, Jackson; and Mickey Little, Utica.

Also chosen were Margaret Ponder, Johns; Linda Sylvester, Jackson; Lynn Small, Jackson; Stella Wedgeworth, Vicksburg; Brenda Wilkinson, Pelahatchie; Sarah Mahaffey, Mary Leo, Vicksburg.

Progressive Plans

"The present ASTRA members are looking forward to working with the new freshmen girls, and making progressive plans for a better ASTRA organization," stated Miss Jarvis, "We hope to elect some officers from this class to give next years club experience in carrying on the projects and activities of the club."

Plans of the club for the spring semester were announced by vice-president, Sherry Wright of Brandon. ASTRA members will attend a dress up supper every first and third Tuesday nights of each month in the cafeteria.

Shed Sale

The club will participate in a Shed Sale planned by their sponsors, Altrusa, March 23 in the Farmer's Market of Jackson. They will be in charge of operating a College Shop. A box will be placed in each girls dorm to collect items to sell at the shop and ASTRA will receive 50 per cent of the profits for their future projects.

During the week of April 1-4 ASTRA members will serve as the Hospitality Committee for the Fellowship of Christian Athlete's "Week To Remember."

Egg Hunt

An Easter egg hunt is planned for April 6 for one of the children's homes in Jackson. Another project planned will be the writing of a new constitution or revising the present by-laws.

Miss Wright stated, "We hope our projects will be beneficial to the Hinds student body as a whole, and also to the members of the club."

Politics . . .

George Wallace, the former Democratic Governor of Alabama, who recently announced that he would run, is no surprise to the American populace of observers. Wallace recently acquired the sufficient amount of voter's signatures to appear on the official California Presidential ballot. Wallace represents the newly organized, "American Independent Party," composed of a breed of people who merit the belief of strict Constitutional Government, a belief that both national parties seem to have neglected in their platform construction.

Senator Eugene McCarthy, of Minnesota, a former strong supporter of the policies of the Johnson Administration, who in recent months has campaigned for a so-called "Peace Platform" in hostility to the Viet Nam policy of the administration, is a formal challenger.

Of course it is too early in the game to report accurately the condition of American opinion, as people often change their minds as to the candidate they plan to back. The important factor is that Americans vote for the man who represents their beliefs rather than support a political party or machine whose interest is not the welfare of the people, but the perpetuation of their gains of power.

To support the man, and the principles for which he stands is a challenge to dishonesty and corrupt government policies.

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!

A film that is not only one of the best of the year but also one of the best seriocomic social satires we've had from Hollywood. Devastating and uproarious, adorned with delicious incidents and crackling dialogue, a lively, exciting experience through vivid cinema. Dustin Hoffman is nothing short of superb. Funny, outrageous and touching. 'The Graduate' is a sophisticated film that puts Mr. Nichols and his associates on a level with any of the best satirists working abroad today. Mark it down in your date book as a picture you'll have to see — and maybe see twice to savor all its sharp, satiric wit and cinematic treats."

Karate Match Set By Circle K Club For February 26

Tournament karate will be held under the sponsorship of Hinds' Circle K Club on February 26 in the Girls' gym.

Admission to the exhibition will be 25 cents. It will be held between the hours of 8:00 and 9:00 p.m. Monday night.

Hinds Student

Featured in the exhibition will be Hinds student Mike Lasseter of Jackson, holder of a black belt and instructor of the Jackson Oriental Self-Defense School.

Also participating in the exhibition will be members of the school

The event is being held to promote interest in a campus karate club Lasseter hopes to establish this year. Such clubs already exist on several of the state's senior college campuses.

Self Defense

Lasseter has expressed the opinion that karate, or other forms of self defense, should be a college requirement. In addition to this value, he calls karate, "a great means of getting in shape."

Lasseter has been studying karate since 1959 and by his own estimating has instructed some 2000 persons in the fundamental skills of oriental self defense. In addition to the school in Jackson, he has organized and taught a karate school at the University of Alabama.

Honors U. S. History Class Receives Lecture By Dr. Moore Of Millsaps

By JUDY JOHNSON

Dr. Ross H. Moore, head of the history department at Millsaps College, spoke to the Honors United States History Class, Thursday, February 15.

Dr. Moore speaks to this class each year and the topic of his talk was brought to the students using the approach of history as a true story. Dr. Moore used the life of Tom Paine to show Paine as influential in the history of three countries, United States, England, and France, at a time when their countries were important in history.

M. A. Riggs, class instructor emphasized that the purpose of the honors United States History Class is aimed toward those students who are most capable and best qualified to perform superior work. It is the aim of honors work to enable the best students to do the best of which they are capable.

This program is one in which the student as well as the instructor contributes. In doing so, the students are encouraged to examine evidence and reasons which result in specific answers as well as to examine questions themselves with respect to truth, validity, causation and interpretation.

but we can change. We can become concerned and express our concern.

In April we as college students will have an opportunity to express our concern for the state of the nation. Hinds will be participating in the National Collegiate Presidential Primary. This will afford over five million students a chance to let their voice be heard.

For years now the college student has slowly been rising in importance. We have been achieving a place where our voice can be heard. If we hope to continue in this direction we must prove that we are open minded and responsible and will not be hood-winked by any 19th century emotional appeals. This is indeed a great opportunity for use to be heard. Let's be coherent.

If we are to accept with any degree of hope, that we will be a part of this new society we must achieve a social, polticial and economic awareness. This primary can be a chance to do just that if we wish. Lets not let the past dictate to the future what attitude we will take.

We must cast aside our previous apathy. We have the opportunity to begin our foundation of preparedness for this society. We must accept the challenge at hand and with determination take full advantage of all the educational processes can offer us. If we fail to wake up, if we continue as in the past in an atmosphere of apathy then we have committed genocide. We have eliminated ourselves from that society by a systematic non-involvement.

Appropriations Approved In ASB Senate Meeting

By ED PAYNE

Appropriations headed the list of business discussed at the Associated Student Body senate meeting held February 20.

A small showing of senators at the offset of the meeting prompted Social Affairs Commissioner Bob McLeod to call for a quorum. A count was taken and it was decided that the required number of senators were present.

Colvin Reports

First order of business was a report by Southside Senator Clark Colvin on the progress of his committee to draw up a questionaire to be sent to the parents of girl dorm students. Questions would deal with the parents' ideas on dating rules, reps, and entertaining guests in dorm lobbies.

Colvin reported that the questions his committee had adopted were approved by Dean of Women Fay Marshall and action would be taken to send a printed version out.

In a discussion of old business, ASB President Bill cole clarified information on a student body treasury. At the last senate meeting Cole had introduced a taxation measure that had caused considerable controversy, leading him to veto the bill after it passed the senate.

Reading from last year's senate minutes, Cole brought to light the fact that although a revenue source was considered last year, no action was taken, Cole added, for such a revenue source.

Commissioner McLeod introduced and passed a bill providing for the senate to sponsor a Sadie Hawkins dance February 29. In another motion, McLeod received an appropriation of $25 for a reception to be held in May honoring all receipients of the "Girl of the Month" honor.

In a surprise move, ASB president Bill Cole introduced a resolution calling for the senate to "go on record as condeming" U.S. draft director Gen. Lewis Hershey's decision concerning Graduate student deferments. The motion was rejected until it could be presented in a written manner.

The Senate adjourned with the next meeting set for March 5.

Forest Hill Grad

A 1966 graduate of Forest Hill High School, Mrs. Kyle will complete her studies at Hinds with an Associate of Arts Degree and as a registered nurse.

Lack Of Press Freedom Due To Reader Apathy?

One of America's most basic freedoms and one cited most frequently in the constitution is that of freedom of the press.

Yet, a poll taken by the Freedom of Information Center at the University of Missouri ranks the United States not first in nations of the world in freedom of the press but number six.

The proposition was to rank the nations of the world by the degree of freedom accorded their press. A score of +100 was given for absolute freedom and a score of -100 was given for total shackles.

In ranking nations with freest press, the Netherlands was first with +81.25 followed by Switzerland, Finland, Norway and Sweden. The United States ranked sixth with a score of +67.75. Ranking last in the poll was Communist Albania with a score of -87.75.

Perhaps these earthshaking facts will draw a gigantic ho-hum from the reading public who thrive on the comic sections, horoscopes, and love and marital problem columns. Hard factual reporting along with interpretative writing was demanded by the countries that rate tops in freedom of the press.

The problem lies in the reading audience of newspapers. Perhaps, the United States reading public is not ready for this type of reporting. Draw your own conclusions.—JC.

Choice '68 Offers Voice

Presidential elections are the big news this year as candidates throughout the nation ready their platforms for the grueling campaign trail ending with the nationwide vote in November.

As speculation rises as to who the top contenders are, and primaries point the speculations on their way, the candidates banter around the top issues of the day while the voters form their opinions before the party conventions nominate the running men.

College students throughout the nation will have a chance to voice their opinions on the presidential races through a mock election entitled "Choice '68." This election will place before college students a ballot of 14 names containing the men who are now contending for the nation's top office.

A great deal of organization and planning has gone into making this election an accurate reflection of the opinions of the college students of today. If carried out effectively, on the organizational level, then this aim will be accomplished.

Yet, more important, if the college students who are asked to vote in this election take it seriously, then it can be a huge success.

Many college students do not realize the amount of power they possess through a massive vote of opinion. When utilized through proper organization, as in "Choice '68", the results could definitely have an effect on the political controlling factors who realize that college students will be the voters of tomorrow.

Let your voice as a college student be known when elections are held throughout the nation on the campuses of universities for the students' choice as president. Your opinion could weight heavily on the minds of the nation's voters.—JC.

SNOWY BREAK — Hinds students welcomed an unexpected holiday as snow blanketed the campus last Friday. Students celebrated with snowball fights, building snowmen and by just enjoying the change in scenery. Others enjoyed the opportunity to pelt friends with snowballs, and some took the 'chance of a lifetime' to honor administrative members, like Dean Rosser Wall at right, with snowballs. Mechanics Study Auto Development

By GAYLE BECK

Through classroom study and individual instruction, an Automobile Mechanics student at Hinds will learn modern methods of diagnosis, service, and repair of automobiles.

During an 18-month course he will study the history and development of the automobile also, under the direction of D. W. Lewis, head of the department.

23 Students

"We have only 23 students enrolled in the course at the present time, but if we could turn out two or three times that we might be able to satisfy the need," said Lewis.

While working in the department, complete with 50 to 60 thousand dollars worth of equipment, the future mechanic will be taught high standards of personal cleanliness, workmanship, and care of his tools and equipment.

Pay Varies

After graduation he will receive a certificate, qualifying him to work as an apprentice parts man, engine guilder for parts houses, service station operator, or mechanic, or even start his own repair garage. The pay scale varies for an automobile mechanic according to his location and with the firm he is employed.

He can, with additional experience and training, become a shop foreman or service manager. He may enter and will be qualified for a retail sales job with an automobile agency.

Trade Schools

Lewis has been with the automobile mechanics department at Hinds since it opened in April of 1946. He has attended several trade schools including Sun Electric and United Motor Service School.

"The auto mechanic has a bright future, and if the cars continue to progress, his future will be even better," conceded Lewis.

FCA Offers Challenge To Athletes

Once a college athlete stated, "I am a Christian because of FCA. I am a better athlete and a better person, I believe, because of FCA."

A group of athletes on the campus of Hinds saw a need for forming a Christian organization for athletes. The organization formed was the Fellowship of Christian Athletes under the direction of Walter Gibbes, Co-ordinator of the Vocational - Technical Department and basketball coach Troy Ricks.

Confront Athletes

The purpose of the FCA is to confront athletes and coaches, and through them the youth of the nation with the challenge and adventure of following Christ through the fellowship of the church.

The FCA is not an assembly of saints, but a fellowship through which ordinary people help each other become better men and better examples of what the Lord can do with a yeilded life. It is interdenominational and embraces both Protestant and Catholics. It is a nonprofit, inclusive organization financed by tax-free gifts from persons, foundations, churches, business and industry and other interested groups.

Kynerd Presides

Headed by Bubba Kynerd of Raymond, the Hinds group is one of three junior colleges in the nation to be affiliated with the national FCA. Twenty-one members form the club and have planned several projects for the spring semester.

"A Week to Remember" will be sponsored by the club April 1-4 with outstanding athletes coming to speak on campus. Bobby Shows of Jackson will open the week on Monday in the college auditorium, and Dave "Boo" Ferris, assistant athletic director from Mississippi State will speak on Tuesday. On Wednesday and Thursday Dave Simmons, a line-backer from the New Orleans Saints will speak.

Car Wash

A Big Brother Day, bake sale, car wash, faculty-student basketball games, visit to homes for the aged and churches and youth groups are also projects planned for the Hinds organization.

FCA is not a winter organization only, for a national conference is scheduled during the summer held in June at Blue Ridge, North Carolina. Boys have an opportunity to know and compete with the stars of the sports world and to hear them witness to their Christian faith. The young athletes also share their problems and experiences with their peers in "huddle" discussion sessions.

'Catch That Slob'

Almost a week has passed since those three inches of snow visited the campus and left just as quickly as they came.

The following is a chronical of some of the events of that day:

Most dormitory students greeted the wintry blast of weather that blanketed the campus with snow in squeals of delight. The squeals were coming from their cars as the students headed over the horizon for home with a happy-go-lucky 'I'm getting the heck out of here' smile on their lips.

Those without cars, or too stupid to use them, went about their merry way from room to room spreading the good news by plastering anyone asleep with a freshly made snowball.

One eception was part time drop-out Reihle Gemtup of Central, who upon rising and seeing the white particles floating to the ground exclaimed something to the effect that the sky must be suffering from a bad case of dandruff. He was last seen running out to rent an airplane so he could seed the clouds with Head and Shoulders.

On the campus grounds throughout most of the day the scene amounted to a frozen Viet Nam. Snow ball fights reached vicious heights and the game of 'Catch That Slob and Roll Him In the Snow' was quite popular.

Of course, it seems in the aftermath that some of that sort of suff got out of hand. It seems that after some of theshrdletaoitamttcT after the snow melted some of the

Senators' Absences To Provoke Action Warns McCracken

Senate Vice-President Barry McCracken has announced that judicial action will be taken against excessive absences of senators.

The ASB Constitution delegates to the senate the power of removal of any senator for three consecutive absences. If a senator is dismissed, the club or organization will be notified of it's loss of representation.

McCracken stated, "Senators in this category will be informed of their position this week and if they are not present at the next senate meeting, appropriate action will be taken to relieve a number of senators of their duties and responsibilities of their office."

In speaking of the matter ASB President Bill Cole remarked, "Public office is a public trust. It seems that quite a few senators have not accepted their responsibilities that go along with the job of representing their constituents to the best of their ability. We certainly hope that this deplorable situation will be resolved."

Election To Test Political Involvement

Political involvement of the student body is to be tested in the coming months.

A special student government committee composed of Ed Payne, Doris Fanning, Martha Womack, Bobby Clark and Bill Cole, has been formed for the purpose of organizing this involvement and student interest.

The occasion will be the participation by Hinds Junior College along with over a thousand other colleges in the National Collegiate Presidential Primary by Time Magazine.

This will be the first time that over five million college students will have the opportunity to present a unified voice on public affairs to the nation.

It is hopeful that Hinds students will not be content to remain apathetic and silent on the pressing issues of the day. Let us emphasize the importance of this opportunity.

We should not sell ourselves short on the role we as college students can play in the election of 1968. James Reston of the New York Times speaking about this opportunity said, "The politically conscious university students are potentially a very powerful political force in this country. Their intelligence and energy would be critical and in many places even decisive if they really got down to the hard work of helping the best candidate available.

"It all depends, however, on whether they want to dream or work." That is the key: do we want to dream or work.

Certainly, we have an opinion as to who we would like to see as President. However, we hope that the students of Hinds Junior College will be realistic and only support a candidate that has a constructive program for our country.

For years now the college student and his opinions have been rising in importance. We have been achieving a place where our voice can be heard. We cannot dream of what we could do but, instead we must work for what we can. If we hope to continue in this direction, we must prove that we are openminded and responsible.

In fulfilling this responsible and open minded attitude we must accept a logical choice for President in this primary. This logical choice can only be arrived at through the presentation of the candidates and the issues. It is hopeful that the students wil avail themselves to this opportunity and look at the candidate.

Our committee intends to present the candidates and the issues to the student body. Not only will the decision on a Presidential candidate be decided but the ballot will also contain various questions concerning numerous issues.

We indeed hope we can have an enthusiastic and energetic campaign on campus. If a student wishes to support and work for a candidate by all means contact a member of the committee.

Once again let us emphasize the importance of this opportunity for the students of Hinds to speak their minds. Lets prove for the first time that the majority of Hinds students are concerned.

Calloway To Serve As Choir Officer

Jackson Freshman Larry Calloway was recently elected vice-president of the Hinds Choir, which entitles him to the office of President next year.

In other activities by the choir, a concert is planned by the organization for March 1, with the University Singers from the University of Mississippi as featured guests.

The singers from Ole Miss will be accompanied by the Hinds Choir with the program starting at 1:00 p.m. in the college auditorium.

Vicksburg Cooper High School will feature the Hinds Choir and the Ensembles in their Assembly Program on March 23.

'Sprague' Showboat Opens For Season With Annual Drama

Hinds students are invited to attend the opening of Vicksburg's Mississippi River Showboat, The Sprague, set for another seasonal run beginning on March 1 through May 4.

Starting its 32nd season, the annual production of "Gold In The Hills," is described as a fast moving, "tongue in the cheek" melodrama. Performances are given on the world's largest old sternwheeler each Friday and Saturday.

The Dixie Showboat Players portray the characters as the production centers around audience participation. The old river show perpetuates a segment of frontier history along with songs from the old river boat era.

Reservations for the show may be made by writing Dixie Showboat Players, P.O. Box 1095, Vicksburg, or by calling Showboat Reservation Desk in the lobby of Hotel Vicksburg, phone number 636-2651.

Registrars Office Reminds Graduates Of Deadline For Degree Applications

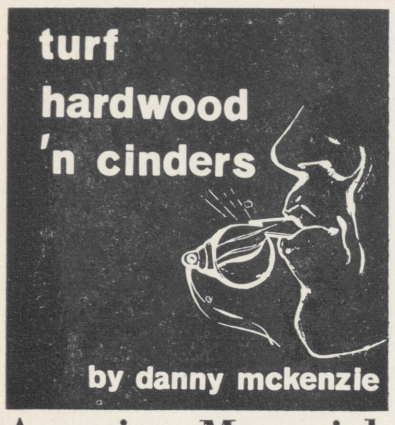
Students wanting to graduate with an Assocate in Arts Degree from Hinds are reminded to fill in an application form and return it with a $10 graduation fee to the office of the registrar no later than Friday, March 15, emphasized Mildred Herrin, Registrar.

An application form may be attained in the office of the registrar if students have not already attained one. The $10 graduation fee covers the cost for diploma, cap and gown.

Students receiving diplomas on Friday, May 31 are eligible for exemptions from their final examinations the week of Monday, May 27 through Friday, May 31, in all courses in which they have earned a "B" or better as a semester average.

Participation in Commencement Exercises is required for the receiving of a diploma. These exercises are scheduled for Sunday, May 26, at 11:00 a.m. and Friday, May 31, at 10:30 a.m.

Measurement for cap and gown, to be listed on the application, should be done carefully and should be reported in inches. Measurement should be made straight around the head at the top of the ears.



Amazing Maravich

Just finished reading the dictionary. Read it from cover to cover. Nope, wasn't doing it for English. Trying to find a word to describe Pete Maravich. There ain't one.

I haven't seen all the basketball players in the country, but there can't be another one that is as complete a player as this young man from LSU. There can't be anyone that can pass, dribble, shoot and play defense on the same level as Maravich; there just can't be.

You read a lot about his scoring but I'm here to tell you that ain't the half of it. He is undoubtedly the most amazing and most accurate passer in the game today. Take Johnny Unitas and put his talents on the basketball court and you might be close to Maravich's accuracy. Pistol Pete could throw a beach ball through a chicken-wire fence and never touch the wire.

When it comes time for this man to set himself up for a shot, he has more moves than a drunk go-go girl at a Lawrence Welk concert. Michaelango could not paint a more perfect picture of coordination and grace. He was cold against Ole Miss. Forty points cold. Seriously, he was cold, ice cold, and he got 40 points. Don't let anyone tell you that Maravich is a ball-hog, because he is far from that. He never, I mean never, took a bad shot, and he took 34 shots against the Rebels. You know why he didn't hit but 13 of them? There were at least two men, if not more, at all times hanging on him while he was in the process of shooting.

And if anyone ever tells you he can't play defense, you just slap them in the teeth. When he got through with the man he was guarding, the man had to have a road map to find his way off the court. I will admit that Maravich doesn't make a habit of hustling back on defense, but then again he doesn't have to. The man that he is guarding is so lost that by the time he finds his way to the other end of the court that Pistol Pete is there waiting on him.

Pete Maravich is not a "hot dog" on the court. The first layup he took against Ole Miss. he was tackled and knocked into the goal support and the wall behind it. He could have been hurt bad, but he never said a word, he just got up and walked to the free throw line and very solemnly hit his two free pitches.

One of these days in the near future when you are thumbing through your dictionary you will come across the word: "Maravich—someone or something who is greater than great, more fantastic than fantastic, more unbelievable than unbelievable, and more stupendous than stupendous."

Just give the young man from Baton Rouge two more years of college competition and about three years of professional competition and I will guarantee you that old man Webster will have to make room in his dictionary for a new word.

Eagles Defeated By Perk After Win Over Jones

By DAVID BOONE

It will be Hinds against Mississippi Delta and Northeast against Perkinston in the opening roud of the Mississippi Junior College State basketboll tournament to be held here on the Hinds campus this Saturday and Monday nights.

The Eagles failed in their attempt to capture a second consecutive south division crown at the South JC tourney at Jones but still came away with their biggest goal, a place in the State playoffs.

Hinds won over Southwest 103-84 in the semifinals of the weather delayed tourney but fell to Perkinston in the finals 63-62.

The South tourney had originally been scheduled for Thursday through Saturday nights but the freak snow storm which hit south Mississippi Friday forced postponement of the final two rounds.

Hinds, which was seeded no. 1 in the tourney, played what will rate as perhaps its finest game of the season in topping Southwest.

After an extremely slow start Hinds managed to open up a 32-30 lead with 7½ minutes left in the initial half only to see Southwest slowly come back to trail by only 47-43 at the break.

Hinds stepped up the tempo and raced ahead to a 69-50 lead with 13 minutes left in the second half and went on for its big win with a collection of second team players seeing the majority of the remaining playing time.

Hinds placed five men in double figures in displaying the balanced scoring attack so necessary for a winner.

James Lyles with 32 points and Dave Wells with 27 markers proved to be the two big guns.

Others included in the double figures list included Warren Rowe and Chip Aneglo with 15 each and Buddy Patrick with 10.

Against Perk, Hinds could never seem to be able to find the right combination, losing the heartbreaker.

Chip Angelo led the Hinds scoring with 25 points.

He was named captain of the 1965 Central football team and was selected honorable mention All-Big Eight for his performances there.

snowmen around campus turned out not to be snowmen at all but frozen students.

In those first few hours, students who really didn't give a darn were asking the question, "Are we going to have classes."

Doctor Mayo was out of town and no one was quite sure who to turn to.

First the information came over the radio that classes would not be held. Next came the rumor that classes would be held. Then came word that dorm students would have class, but commuter students would not.

Later word came that if anyone showed up for class, class would be held; if no one showed up for class it would not be held; If Polar Bears invaded the campus classes would be held, but if the Red Chinese invaded classes would not be held—unless there was an earthquake in Lone Hole, South Dakota.

By this time the snow had already melted.

Students To Attend 'Scope XI' Meeting On USM Campus

Four students will represent Hinds at the Eleventh Student Conference on Paramount Events named 'Scope XI,' to be held April 18-20 at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Attending from Hinds will be Sophomores, Bill Cole, Jackson; Martha Womack, Utica; and Chuck Cuendet, Vicksburg. Freshman Doris Fanning, Clinton, will complete the delegation.

'68 Elections

"The '68 Elections" is the theme for this year's conference which will be attended by college and high school students throughout Mississippi.

Scope XI will feature the Presidential election of '68, "paramount to everyone and the future of our nation." This marks the eleventh time the Student Government of Southern has endeavored to present a paramount issue of the day.

Analyze Policy

Scope XI will attempt, through noted speakers and discussions, to provide an appreciation of the complexities of United States foreign and domestic policy and the importance of formulating opinions of these policies.

Meetings will be held in an informal seminar to survey the '68 elections. As defined by the organizers, Scope is an attempt to grasp the problems rather than to solve them.

Authorities Speak

To guide the discussions, authorities will deliver addresses, and officials will serve as discussion chairmen and advisors.

Each round-table discussion group will consist of approximately 12 student delegates, co-chairmen, and a recorder.

The purpose of the seminar is to "help promote a generation of responsible leaders in national and international affairs by the serious exchange of ideas between students over a period of years and to boost a long-range effort to promote enligthened responsible citizenship through free discussion of the crucial issues of our time."

State Choral Festival Set On Hinds Campus

Shelton Serves As Guest Conductor For 11 Participating Junior Colleges

By JOANN NEAL

Eleven junior colleges from all over the state will arrive on the Hinds campus Saturday, March 9, to participate in the annual Mississippi Junior College Choral Festival, announced Choir Director Leslie Reeves.

All Mississippi junior colleges have been invited, and to date, ten, other than Hinds, have accepted. Those participating include Copiah-Lincoln, Holmes, Perkinston, East Mississippi, Northwest Mississippi, Northeast Mississippi, Jones, Pearl River, Itawamba, and Mississippi Delta.

Shelton Conducts

Guest conductor for the festival is Travis Shelton, Associated Professor of Music at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas.

Shelton, who received his education degree in Music Elucation from Teachers College at Columbia University in New York, has written several articles for the Alabama Music Education Journal and a series of articles on Choral Music for the Texas Music Educator.

Choir's Perform

The day's schedule begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. and calls for morning and afternoon rehearsals in the auditorium. During this time, each choir will be given an opportunity to perform three individual selections, to be chosen by each choir's director.

A formal concert will be held Saturday night at 7:00 in the college auditorium. During the first half of the program, each choir will have an opportunity to perform one number. Hinds will be represented in this area by the "Clefs." The second half of the program will consist of a mass performance.

Selections Include

Selections to be presented are: "Ezekiel Saw De Wheel," Norman Lubnoff; "The Last Words of David," Randall Thompson; "Edel weiss," Richard Rodgers; "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs," Darl Graun; "Lacrymosa," Wolfgang Mozart; and "A Song in the Wind," Houston Bright.

The public is invited to all activities of the day, and no admission will be charged. As in past years, a record will be made of the concert and will be available to the public in approximately one month.

Final Date Slated For Grad Forms

All students eligible for graduation are reminded that the final deadline for filing an application for an Associate in Arts Degree is Friday, March 15, according to Miss Mildred Herrin, Registrar.

The $10 graduation fee covers the cost of the diploma, cap and gown.

"It is necessary that these applications be filed as soon as possible, and no later than March 15, so that we can order the diplomas," stated Miss Herrin.

Finger Of Scorn Points To Unappreciated Labors

(This editorial is printed so that students at Hinds and those at other schools may better understand some of the problems connected with the publishing of a college newspaper.)

Profs can sit crosslegged on the top of a desk; dean's list students can let down their guard; student body presidents can fraternize with the masses.

Only an editor is required to be pontifical always.

Only an editor is supposed to know everything that happens, so it is taken for granted that he already knows it, and nobody ever tells him anything; and at the same time snap decisions for each political impasse; only an editor is required to keep his nose out of politics, meanwhile keeping tab on the strength of each separate lineup.

Profs have their apple-polishers who ask questions after class; dean's list students get their quarterly report; student body presidents hear complaints in Presidents Council meetings.

Only an editor has to guess.

Only an editor has to grope blindly along, trying to put out a paper for a student body who will never tell him what they like and don't like, who will squawk audibly when they are mortally and irreparably wounded, who never thank him when he says anything nice about them or censors anything nasty, who have to be tracked down, cornered, and beaten insensible before they will so much as give him a news lead.

Profs have the satisfaction of seeing their teachings put into practice; dean's list students are an inspiration to their successors; student body presidents can point with pride at year's end to long rows of achievements.

Only an editor never accomplishes anything.

Only an editor has to endure the spectacle of 999 of his 1000 loyal readers, each and every week, turning immediately on receipt of the paper to the Finger of Scorn, ignoring everything else in the issue, to find layouts on which he and his staff have spent hours of work, completely unappreciated; to feel his editorial campaigns which he has planned for months, which are his only method of criticism of his school and of society, coldly ignored.

Profs get to sit on the stage; dean's list students don't have to attend every class; student body presidents get to introduce visitors.

Only an editor is idiot enough not to want to trade places with any of them.

And, when all's said and done, only an editor has the satisfaction of knowing that his thousand words a week are written down in letters that can never be erased; of feeling something in a way which must have immediate and everlasting effect; of knowing that, if he knew how to use it, he has the whole state for his audience; of sensing that he is doing a job for the students which no one else could do in quite the same way, and last, but not least, of being sure of a staff, that, no matter how much he is forced to abuse them, overwork them, deny them or reward them for their work, will be driven back for more by pure love of literary effort.

Only an editor would gripe about it.

Tourist Attractions Need Upgrading

By GAYLE BECK

Summer will be here in only a few short months and once again families and young people will be choosing that vacation spot. Why not choose Mississippi? Students on the HJC campus were asked to give some suggestions that they could make for improving the tourist influx into the state.

These are the suggestions:

TERESA TISDALE — Tourist information centers should be formed; there are not enough of them. They could have places on the coast for the younger set, so they don't have to be 21 to go somewhere.

BUBBA KYNERD — Pro-exhibition games in the stadium, definitely. We should also play-up the old homes, and display the beauty of the civil war period.

BYRD

DIXON

RONNIE KING — More industry, recreation, and state parks. We must show through advertising that Mississippi can be a leading state where people can come to vacation. The climate is also good.

PAT DEAR — More advertising would bring people. We especially need more for the Natchez Pilgrimage.

LAURA ROGERS — Maybe something outstanding, like a "Six Flags." We need to make the other states realize that we are not as backward as they might think.

PERRY

ROGERS

BILLY BYRD — I believe we could get more visitors to the state if we could have pro-football and basketball games in the stadium, because people follow the teams and if they like Mississippi they will come back.

JANE HOPKINS — On the Ross Barnett Reservoir there should be places where tourists can go to rent sail boats and other types of enjoyment features. People who visit the reservoir would love to enjoy the pleasures that it has to offer.

LOUIS ALDRIDGE — It is all right like it is, but we could clean-up some places like the coast. Bring in horse races and other forms of entertainment, and more people will be inclined to visit in Mississippi.

DONNA FOSTER — There needs to be more attraction such as a large amusement park to attract more people. Something that would attract all ages like 'Six Flags Over Texas' does. Something like this on the coast or Mississippi River area would be perfect.

DEAR

KING

RANDALL PERRY — Develop more historical sites as other states have, as the homes of famous people. Historical tours of the state could also be established.

MARGARET DIXON — If we built up the sites that we have now and advertise them more, and maybe have some spectacular events here more people would come.

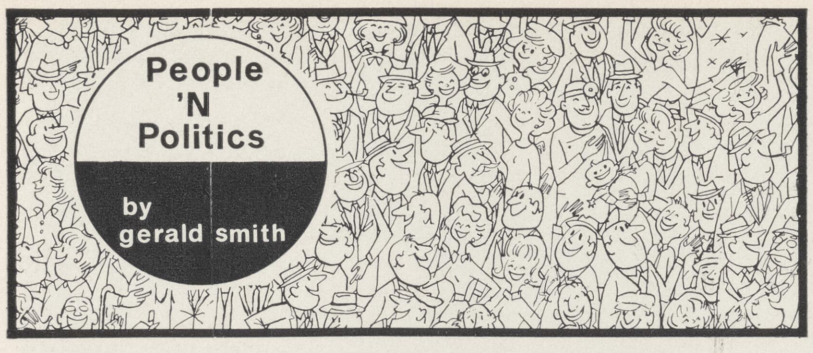
BECKY DORSEY — On the coast have recreation, a boardwalk or amusement park and more of what we do have. Also clean up the coast area.

ALDRIDGE

DORSEY

JOANN NEAL — They need to build a causeway out to the islands off the Gulf Coast. This would attract needed tourists dollars to the state, and keep Mississippians at home. By constructing a causeway to one of the islands on the coast and then tieing them all together, I believe that Mississippi could have a resort area and the tourist attraction equal to that of Florida.

DAVID HILKERT — Some worthy entertainment in the bigger cities so tourists would consider stopping in them. Perhaps the people of Mississippi could take a more liberal view toward people from outside the state.



Bloc-Vote Narrows Choice

Political frustration is the prevailing situation in Mississippi at the present time. The eyes of a somewhat partially interested, prejudiced, and, concerned nation lies on and awaits the results of the March 12 run-off election between white conservative, Charles Griffin, and Negro leader, Charles Evers.

This is the first case, since the Civil War Reconstruction period of nearly a century ago, that any Negro candidate has received a substatial vote in any national or statewide election, even though there have been several challengers throughout the twentieth century. Indications point that an Evers victory is almost impossible. All odds point toward former Congressional aide, Griffin, who received the largest portion of the split vote. The victory of Griffin depends solely on the support of conservatives who preferred the other candidates in the first balloting.

Evers, who lead the ticket of seven men, with behind him an almost solid bloc of Negro and so-called "civil rights" advocates, immediately questioned the required run-off election law. This state law, which requires a run-off election for the two highest candidates when one has not a majority, is a 1964 law that defines this requirement for a special election as applied to a regular election. For those who may question such a law, remember, in a Democracy, the Majority rules.

On the national scene, Secretary of Defense, Robert McNamara, officially resigned, with the newly appointed Defense Secretary, Clark Clifford installed. Hopefully, the new secretary will initiate a stronger stand for American Victory than that of previous weak policies.

One new major development has taken place in Election '68. Governor Romney, a considered major presidential hopeful of the Republicans, has officially resigned from the race. He credits his decision to his loss in primaries against Nixon, whose political philosophy is considered to vary considerably from his. Spectators everywhere conclude that Romney's withdrawal is an endorsement to his close friend, Governor Nelson Rockefeller, of New York, a typical eastern liberal. Many people believe that Nelson Rockefeller would be a most serious challenge to the Johnson-Democratic establishment, whose doctrine, attitude, platform, and philosophy differs little from the Rockefeller legend.

In the weeks and months ahead, there will be other major developments in the Presidential Race, which will signify the formation of the summer conventions.

Miss Pace Attends Nursing Meeting For AA Program

By GAYLE BECK

Miss Eunice Pace, head of the nursing department, attended the annual meeting of the Council of Associate Degree Programs of the National League of Nursing.

In the meeting held February 29 - March 2 at the Hotel Somerset in Boston, the entire program was centered around the theme, "Action."

50 States

Delegates from the 50 states and surrounding islands attended forums, lectures and reports on research and projects. Miss Pace commented that it "was good to exchange information with people in other states, and gain information valuable to our department."

She further states that problems were discussed, as the scarcity of qualified teachers for all the new junior college programs, and the lack of students passing the exam given for registered nurse degrees. The members felt that the State Board Exam had not kept pace with nursing as it is being taught today.

Plans Set

Plans were made at the convention for workshops to be held in cities throughout the United States, and acknowledgement was made of the growth of the departments in the nation from 218 to 323 in the last year.

Miss Pace reported, "Accreditation was our main concern. I now feel we will be allowed an alternate route to this by accreditation through the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

We are a new program and have not yet met the requirements for this accreditation, but hope to in the near future."

Man Holds Inability To Control Future

The snow two weeks ago left nearly as quickly as it came, but it was actually quite a significant event. Although at first glance the significance might appear to be that hundreds of students cut classes and played in the snow all day, a deeper significance of the snow can be found if one thinks beneath the surface.

The snow came on Friday, February 23, and transformed what would have been an ordinary day of classes into a most unusual day of frolic even for those few diligent dorm students and even fewer commuters who did meet their classes. No one really expected a snow which would imobilize the commuters and send dozens of dorm students scurrying home; We dare say everyone prepared for Friday as usual, many studying for tests following day or writing papers to be handed in, barring the unexpected — which came.

Snow blanketed the area, routine bowed out, and a new type of day occurred in our midst. And through the occurence showed us many things about ourselves which may be highly undesirable, such as our lack of basic desire to attend classes, we can also find good in the event.

The deeper significance of the snow might be found by viewing it as an example of man's inability to control his future, or to know what he will be doing the next moment or day. The poet, Robert Burns, said, "The bes-laid schemes o' mice an' men/Gang aft a-gley, . . ." Also, one far wiser than we, King Soloman, instructs us in Proverbs 27:1: "Boast not thyself of to morrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."

Most of us tend to get so involved in our daily lives we become slaves of time itself. We have to read this VETERAN INSTRUCTOR — J. B. Patrick, history teacher noted for never using notes in his lectures, is a native of Learned, and has been at Hinds for the past 20 years. Photo by Harris.

J. B. Patrick

History Instructor Finds 'Greatest Joy In Work'

By GAYLE BECK

There is an instructor at HJC who has been late to class only once in a 20-year history, who never carries notes or books to class and still lectures 50 minutes, and who takes an interest in the student and treats each one as a mature adult.

These are only a few of the characteristics of J. B. Patrick, American history instructor, that make him one of the most admired teachers on the campus.

Alabama Grad

Patrick began his teaching career immediately after receiving his B. S. degree from Millsaps College and has spent the last 20 years at Hinds. He now holds a Masters from the University of Alabama.

Patrick commented that the thing he liked most about teaching was "meeting some of the nicest people on earth."

Not only has he served as a teacher on the campus, but once he earned credit in botany and zoology one summer between sessions as his own teacher.

Aviation Instruction

The history teacher served as an aviation instructor at the San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center in Texas during World War II, and later working with the Veterans Administration.

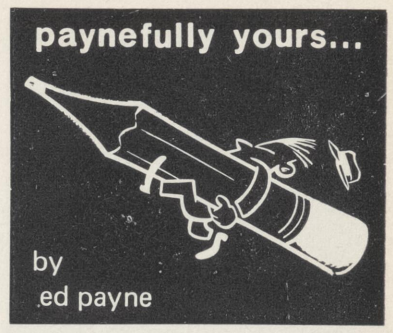
Before coming to Hinds in 1947, he was employed with Forest Hill High School. He presently lives in Learned, Mississippi.

When asked what he particularly liked to do in his spare time he immediately answered, "take it easy and fish." Aside from this hobby, he takes time each day to feed his 15 cats, and jokingly states, "When my students don't make all A's, I beat my cats."

Happy In Work

Patrick believes that "The greatest happiness in the world can be found in work, it is the only antitoxant for human woe."

An old friend of Patrick's commented, "There is not another teacher held in as high regard and esteem by faculty and students alike as J. B. Patrick."



All Alone At HJC

Recently an incident which various sources had attempted to "hush-up" came to the attention of this columnist and he feels compelled to take a stand.

Therefore, in the interest of informing the student body, the following true story is presented. It is taken from the last three entries in the diary of student Barney Buckwad. It is best told in his words:

"Friday — It's about time. Thought this week would never come to an end. Five days have I hit the books and five days have the books hit right back. Now I can get the hell out of here.

"Trouble. It's two-thirty and my car won't start. Going to send it into Raymond — think I'll just spend the weekend on campus rather than trouble my folks.

"'Four o'clock. Never seen anything like it. Streams of cars racing down college drive as if it was the final lap of the Indianapolis 500. Spending a weekend on campus will really be a new experience.

"Went to supper. Three students were there. All of them said they were going home tomorrow. The grill is closed, the library is closed, Raymond is closed — what am I going to do?

"Saturday — I must remain calm. Everything will be allright. If only I could talk to someone, anyone — even Willie. The lounge is closed and I think the proctor is in Jackson throwing a drunk. I'm so desperate for something to do I may have to read a textbook. And its only ten-thirty in the morning.

"Thought I saw someone this afternoon. Ran up and threw a wild embrace — only it was a tree. My eyes are beginning to play tricks on me . . .

"Beginning to doubt if I can hold out. Losing all sanity. Tonight I had a two hour conversation with the dogs that hang around outside the cafeteria. The funny thing is, I could have sworn they were answering me.

"Sunday, — Anyone, anyone . . . ANYTHING! Just please TALK TO ME!!

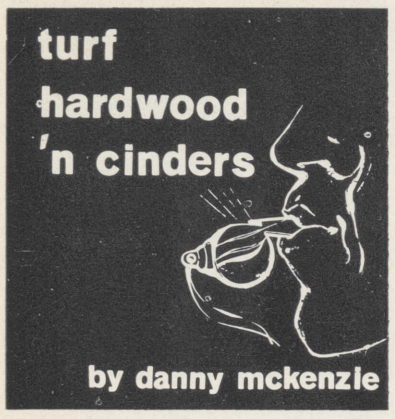
"Talked for three hours with the flagpole.

"Discussed Gerald Smith's column with an earthworm.

"It's not . . . not long . . . now. People must . . . be coming . . . back to campus . . . soon. But don't think . . . don't think I can last . . ."

Thus ended the tortured story of Barney Buckwad. He was found dead in a restroom. His throat was cut when he thought he had seen another human. It was a mirror.

An administration member who prefers that his name not be used stated, "Yes, the Barney Buckwad incident happened. It is no use denying it. Usually we have at least three students to stay over the weekend, thus making the time bearable. That weekend Barney happened to be the victim of cruel fate. Gosh but it must have been an awful way to go."



'Leave It Alone!'

It's nice to see that someone is taking the coaches into consideration when it comes to changing the rules of college basketball.

In a recent poll taken by the Beaumont, Texas Enterprise, 630 coaches were asked how they felt about a three-point play being introduced in college basketball. On 65 of the ballots, the comment space was filled in with, "I like the game the way it is. Leave it alone." Now if the folks who change the rule will just pay attention to the men who know the game best, everything will be cool.

I sure was glad to see where the men who pick the different All-American teams aren't as blind as I thought they were. Pistol Pete has made three All-American teams that I know of and if everything follows accordingly he should make about ten more.

Sporting News, Sports Illustrated, and Associated Press picked him to their All-American teams and rightly so. He has to be the greatest ball-player in the South. South of the North Pole, that is. By the way, he does have one fault, his socks don't stay up.

Spring training has started for the major league baseball teams and this year has been called the worst spring training, weather-wise, in many a year. It seems like the temperature has been down in the 30's and 40's and the percipitations has been up just about that high in inches.

The managers are complaining because the players who are overweight can't shake that extra poundage. Most of the players are complaining because it is so difficult to get a solid hit in the cold air. When you hit one off the handle in cold weather it feels like 89 Vietnamese are sticking bamboo splints through your hands.

The Cincinatti Reds, who last year, according to baseball critics, had the best pitching staff in the majors, are in camp without four of their starters. The Reds front office might ought to start shelling out the coins if they want to continue their run for the flag, that they had going last year before they tripped and broke a leg.

Uncle Wilford just got back from his vacation in Florida and he has come up with his pennant picks for 1968 season. His choices: Pittsburgh will win the National League since they acquired some help for their ailing pitching staff and in the American League it will be the Detroit Tigers who were in the thick of the race last year until the next to last day. I for one ain't about to argue with that man, you know how he is.

Intramural basketball on the Hinds campus is going hot and heavy and interest is beginning to build with the playoffs slated to begin in only two weeks. The Southside Camels, whom I am a bit partial to, are currently the only undefeated team left in the league, but that will make no difference when the tourney starts.

Eagles Fall To Northeast In State Tourney Finals

By DANNY McKENZIE

Hinds Eagles failed to gain their second consecutive state junior college championship as they were turned away by a hot-shooting Northeast Tiger team, 81-64.

Northeast jumped off to a quick 5-1 lead and never relinquished it as the Eagles failed to gain the hot hand that has kept them in the running for the league title this year.

Hinds was troubled by fouls throughout the entire game as Jimmy Lyles found himself with four miscues against him before the halftime intermission. Lyles, along with Dave Wells, Pat Fortenberry, Chip Angelo, and Buddy Patrick, the entire Eagle starting unit, were forced to leave the game with five personals.

The closest that the Eagles could come to overtaking the new state champs was with 1:09 left in the first half when Lyles hit on a jump shot to bring Hinds within one point at 30-29.

After trailing 34-29 at intermission, Patrick hit a free toss to put Hinds within five points. The Tigers then outscored the Eagles 8-1 in the next minute and placed the wraps on the title.

The difference in the game was the shooting percentage of both teams, as the Eagles suffered their coldest night of the year from the floor and could manage to connect on a mere 22 of 77 attempted field goals for a 29 percentage. Northeast hit on 30 of the 56 shots that they attemped from he floor for 54 percent.

Lyles led the Hinds scorers with 21 points, being followed by Angelo with 13. Wells and Fortenberry chipped in 11 and 10 respectively to round out the double-figure scorers for the Eagles.

Wells, the leading scorer for the Eagles over the year, was named to the first team South All-State squad. Angelo was picked for the honorable mention South team.

ASB Qualifications Of Student Prexy Debated In Senate

By ED PAYNE

Major action in the ASB Senate meeting of March 5 centered around a proposal to amend the Student Body Constitution concerning requirements to run for the office of ASB President.

A sparse gathering of senators was on hand which prompted Senate President Bruce McArthur to remark that action is being taken against senators with three or more consecutive absences. McArthur also urged senators to take more of a part in all activities and debates.

Debate senator Paul Reihle introduced legislation for a student activity board to be placed in the grill and to be kept up on a weekly basis. Day student Bobby Clark had the bill amended to state that copies of all senate bills would be posted on the bulletin board.

Parlimentarian Alvin Woods called for a suspension of rules to propose a change in the ASB constitution dropping the requirement that candidates for the post of ASB President be dormitory students. The amendment was met with quick opposition from several senators, most of whom agreed that the post demanded more availability than a commutor student could offer.

After some minutes of argument pro- and con-, the legislation was referred to the Judicial Committee. The next Senate meeting is scheduled for March 19.

book by day after tomorrow, study for a certain test for 10 o'clock, work a specific time each day, eat three meals at regular times, be in the grill between classes, sign out of the dorm after 3 P.M., or catch the bus before it leaves us and so on and on. All these things are good and seemingly necessary. However, life goes on even when these things cease.

Seldom do we stop to realize what life is all about, so busy are we carrying on the surface activities. But life is more than this for those of us with a purpose for living; there is a race to be won and a Life greater than our own to be shown to others. There is a glorious seriousness to life which supercedes all else.

The Friday of the snow emphasized for us that we do not know what a day may bring forth. Therefore, let us not be so involved with living that we forget what life actually is.

Plans are now being made by the club for numerous fund-raising projects to send Judy Webb to the National Convention in Washington, D. C. as a representative of Mississippi on Saturday through Monday, June 8-10. Accompanying her will be club sponsor, Miss Maybelle Furness.

New Pre-Med Club To Elect Officers

Hinds newly formed Pre-Med Club has scheduled its second meeting for March 12, with plans to view a film along with hearing the reports of the nominating committee.

Officers will be elected by the club after the nominating committee, made up of Will Mayo, Sammy Fox, and Marianna Gatewood makes its recommendations. The committee was appointed at the clubs first meeting in February.

Debaters Cop Ninth Win At Magnolia Speech Meet

Hinds' debaters copped their second consecutive trophy by taking first place in the Magnolia Speech Tournament held at Mississippi State College for Women with an overall record of 9-1.

Bill Cole, Jackson, and Bobby Clark, Raymond, of the affirmative team compiled a perfect 5-0 record; while teammates Barry McCracken, Jackson, and Chuck Cuendet, Vicksburg, went 4-1.

Defeat 'Bama

Clark and Cole defeated University of Alabama, Loyola University, Freed-Hardeman, Alabama College, and MSCW on their way to posting their unblemished record.

Cuendet and McCracken downed Auburn University, University of South Alabama, Pearl River Junior Colege, while suffering their lone defeat at the hands of Millsaps.

17 Wins

In the year of 1968, Clark and Cole have posted 17 wins against only three defeats for a winning percentage of 85%. They have won their last 14 debates covering the last three tournaments. Over the same tournaments, Cuendet and McCracken have won 12 out of 15 debates for a winning percentage of 80%. Through the four tournaments of this year the team has placed first in the last two, one second, and reached the finals in the other.

Debate coach Fred Brooks accompanied the team to MSCW and acted as a judge. Paul Reihle, Jackson, acted as alternate and participated in the oratory contest.

On March 28, the Hinds debaters will attend the Pearl River Junior College tournament to be held on that campus. This will be a four round tournament in which the Hinds team will be gunning for their third straight first place title.

Fees Due Monday

Room and board fees in the amount of $65, will be due Monday, March 11 payable in the Business Office, announced Grady Sheffield, Business Manager.

Identification cards will be necessary for all students to show at the time of payment, if the student pays by check.

Registrar Reveals Schedule Of Plans For Summer Term

By JOANN NEAL

Hinds opens its 50th summer session June 10, beginning two five-week terms, announced Registrar Mildred Herrin.

The first five-week session will be from June 10 - July 12. The second session will last from July 15 until August 16. During the 10 week session a student may earn 12-14 hours. A five-week session will earn him a maximum of six to seven hours.

Room and board expenses are $65 for each five-week period. Fees are $30, out-of-district tuition, $10, and out-of-state, $25. Miss Herrin states, "All students who attend Hinds at present must fill out a new application for the summer session."

The summer bulletin may be picked up at the registrar's office after March 15. The new course numbers go into effect with the summer session.

Miss Herrin reminds all students that the new course numbers will all be three digits and they should check the descriptive titles of the course. The new course numbers will appear in the new HJC catalogue, which will be out soon.

Nurses To Observe Appreciation Week On Hinds Campus

By JOANN NEAL

Nurses throughout the nation are being honored this week, March 10-16, which is Nurses Appreciation Week.

The second week in March was proclaimed as tribute by President Dwight Eisenhower during his administration. It was established to honor Jane Delano. Miss Delano, whose birthday is March 12, is responsible for the establishment of the nursing service of the American Red Cross.

Nurses associations are using this week to show the merit of the nursing profession. Future students are now being recruited to the various training centers of the nation.

Hinds Jr. College is one of eight junior colleges in Mississippi which offer a course in nursing. Hinds nursing students, who are future honorees, are commemorating the week by making posters for distribution. Freshman nursing students presented the faculty members of the nursing department with roses as a salute to their profession.

This week members of the various nurses associations will be featured on the "Missisippi Morning", a local television show, and stories on the state training centers will appear in local papers.

Instructor Denton Represents Hinds At Southeastern College Art Confab

Art Instructor Mrs. A. L. Denton will represent Hinds at the 1968 Southeastern College Art Conference set for March 13-15 in Columbia, South Carolina.

Only college and junior college teachers from the colleges of the southeastern district of the United States are allowed to participate in this seminar.

An art exhibition by a member school of the association will highlight the conference.

"Art History" is the theme of the conference which will find the attending college instructors being lectured by professional artists and sculptors.

SECAC will be held on the University of South Carolina campus with President John Benz in charge of the conference. Participating teachers will be from the fields of art and the humanities.

College Personnel To Meet Students

Representatives from Mississippi State College for Women and William Carey College will be on the Hinds campus next week to answer questions about entering their institutions.

On Monday, March 18, the MSCW representative will be in the foyer of the Student Union Building at 8:00 a.m. and on Tuesday, March 19, the Carey Representative will be in the foyer to discuss any phase of their curriculum with interested students.

Winning Season Results Through Student Support

Tennis and track have taken over prominence in the varsity sports scene as the basketball team finished its season rating second in the state after nearly taking the crown for the second straight year.

Student support of the varsity athletic events, such as basketball, helped to make our team a winning squad. With such support for the Tennis and Track teams, an outstanding showing can be expected.

The tennis team last year recorded high records with the boys team winning the state trophy and the girls team bringing in the second spot in their rankings. Outlooks for the track team's success this year in state meets are high with returnees and starters in training now for opening contests.

Winning seasons can only be recorded in these events with an active support from the students. Through participation in and spirit centered on these sports, Hinds can again gain a winning combination.

Support these sports — their winning or losing depends largely on the interest supplied by the student body.—JC.

MEA Backs Legislation

Mississippi teachers will make recommendations to improve their profession as legislation takes major emphasis at their annual meeting of the Mississippi Education Association in Jackson.

Legislative proposals originating in the lawmaking branch of the association, the delegate assembly, will probably hinge on the progress made by the Mississippi Legislature.

This annual meeting of the state's teachers is noted by all for its importance in announcing to the state the position of Mississippi educators toward advancements in improvements of our school system.

The MEA has voiced its approval for Governor John Bell Williams' proposals toward changing and improving the present system. Through both the unanimous approval of the state's administration and educators for the proposals, indications point toward a general revamping of the present educational system.

Aside from the business side of the convention, teachers also have the chance to become acquainted with others in their profession in the state. Out of the approximately 16,000 teachers who are members of the association, teachers can obtain skills and methods used by instructors in their varied fields in Mississippi.

Entertainment and noted speakers mark the high points of of the teachers convention as the educators take a break from the daily grind of classrooms, students and mounds of paperwork. The break affords Mississippi teachers with a chance to take a look at their profession from a professional viewpoint and to note the needed changes that should be made.

Through conferences such as the MEA, with varied meetings, attended by a majority of members, and with legislation proposed by wise members, Mississippi cannot help but to progress to a height of excellence in education.—JC

Students Tell Achievements At Hinds

By GAYLE BECK

This week's question was directed to the sophomores at Hinds. Several students were asked what benefits they had received from going here and if they had accomplished what they had set out to when they originally enrolled.

These are the answers:

LINDA MASON — Yes, I believe I have accomplished my goals, because I have met people and this has helped to further develop my personality. I have learned how to become a better person by being with other people. I have learned to study.

RICKY RUEBSAMEN — When I came here I came to get the feel of college life and get in the swing of things, because I didn't know what I wanted to do. Now I have decided what I want out of life.

RONNIE HARRIS — To be honest I must say I haven't accomplished what I set out to do. I've learned to study more and how to study in the right way.

JEFF RICE — I've increased my education and met a lot of people. Yes, I've accomplished what I came here for — an education in electronics.

BRENDA IVY — Yes, I have definitely gained something from my two years here. I have gained friends, furthered my knowledge in my major, gained experience, but more than that I've gained a closer relationship with God through BSU.

DEFOORE

CRAPPS

GLENDA BARNETT — Yes, I have accomplished what I set forth to do and it has prepared me in my field of study. Most of all I have met so many nice people and made friends that I will never forget.

MARGARET WHITE — I have gained. Before coming I didn't have close relationships with people and now I've learned to be close friends with people my own age. I've learned to branch out and make my own decisions.

CHUCK CUENDET — I would say I have fallen somewhat short of the academic goals I set for my self at the outset of the school year. Having recently moved from Chicago I have learned that the reports about the people in the South that reach Northern people are very misleading. I have also learned by being a debator that a wide education is very advantageous and Hinds is a good place for such an education.

MASON

DONNELL

LYNN DEFOORE — I've gotten to meet a lot of people and become close to a lot of them. I intended to make better grades, but I didn't. Being a member of the 'Steppers has helped me to learn to work with other people and work under a leader.

COX

HARRIS

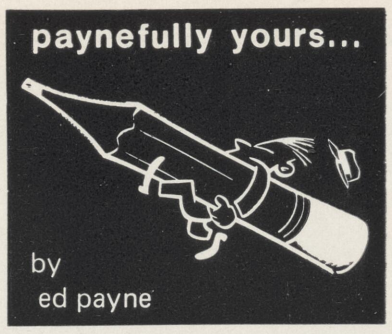
DORIS COX — I came here to prepare to go to a senior college and I have done that. I've learned a lot about people, probably more from learning how other people think as from my courses. I've furthered my high school studies and learned a few other things.

JOE DONNELL — Since I have been here I have enjoyed it because I met a lot of nice people and the teachers are very nice.

WOODY CRAPPS — At HJC I have made many friends with faculty and students. I have accomplished my purpose because I have truly found the purpose for my life and the field I want to go to after here. Hinds is great and I would recommend it to anyone.

MYRA MAYS — I have learned how to live with people and better understand the way they feel and except them as they are. I set out to major in secretarial science and now I know what type work I want and feel that I am capable and qualified to hold that position.

TOMMY ROAN — By coming to Hinds I was able to choose a vocation in life at a low cost, but with a high degree of excellent teaching that will be of great benefit when I go on to a senior college next year.



Ching Fling Chu

A new addition to the Hinds campus is the Karate Club which was recently founded and is enjoying quite a bit of student interest.

Never being one to overlook a chance for making a quick buck, yours truly has founded his own school of oriental self-defense. Here is an excert from an ad I plan to place in comic books from coast to coast:

"LET ME MAKE A NEW MAN OUT OF YOU! Discover Ways You Have Never Imagined To Protect Yourself!. Turn your hands, feet, and arms into weapons of self-defense so that you will FEAR NO MAN!!!"

So says famous Ching Fling Chu Yellow belt holder Fred E. Catt.

Its true, all you panty-waists out there, with the secrets of Ching Fling Chu — meaning, rather loosely translated, "Way of the Chicken Hearted" — you will be beyond the harm that could be done you by bullies, deliquents, hoods, or your girl friend!

I have spent three months in the remote mountains of Watahole, Nebraska, learning the most forbidden secrets of this art. Now this knowledge can be yours within minutes at a cost of only ONE QUARTER DOLLAR.

You will receive a complete kit including: my book, "Ching Fling Chu and You"; a life-size model of Ted Mack; a styrofoam brick that you can break to the amazement of your friends; and a coupon entitling you to one free Chinese TV dinner.

Remember, there is a special edition of my book printed on florescent paper for those of you who wish to read it in the privacy of your own closet.

With Ching Fling Chu you will marvel as YOUR OWN BODY becomes your protection. Here are just two examples:

As you are walking home from a Wally Cox film festival, you are suddenly surrounded by six blood thirsty hoodlums from the old men's home. AN ORDINARY MAN MIGHT BE HELPLESS, but with the aid of Ching Fling Chu you can drop to your knees in the "Wong Link" position, confidently interweave your fingers and with a POWERFUL THRUST lunge forward and beg for mercy!

Or suppose you have just stepped out to buy some buttermilk, when eight F.C.A. boys begin passing remarks about your knobby knees! As they slowly advance, YOU REMAIN CALM. Because you have received training in Ching Fling Chu you have learned to, with your own FEET, tear up the sidewalk and be miles away and still running before the hoods know what happened!!

Do not delay a MINUTE LONGER, sent in that quarter today. Start on your way to becoming a master at the art of Ching Fling Chu!

You owe it to your family and loved - ones to know how to defend yourself. You owe it to YOURSELF to be secure in the knowledge that no matter what the situation, you can avoid it!

Hi-Steppers Always Try 'To Surpass Last Show'

By GAYLE BECK

When you pause to watch the precision, drill, talent, and beauty of a Hinds Hi-Stepper performance, do you ever stop to think about those hours of practice spent each week to master those rouines?

Do you ever stop to realize that this group has been watched by crowds of thousands throughout the United States?

15 Years Old

Since the drill team was founded fifteen years ago, they have been on the move each year representing their group and the student body at Hinds. The year of 1968 so far has been no exception. From the glamour of a Mardi Gras Ball to the simplicity of a local variety show 108 girls have performed old standard routines as well as those designed especially for the occasion.

Under the direction of Mrs. Anna Bee and traveling with the Eagle Band under the direction of Al Rowan the year began on January 16 in the Inaguration Parade. Leading the parade, they were honored with a ten minute television spot.

Serve As Ushers

Later that day they served as ushers at the Inaguration Ball held at the Mississippi Coliseum. This was a first for the Steppers and one of their major events.

The next performance took them to Florence to appear in a half-time show at the Ole Miss and Southern freshman basketball game. It was a benefit game sponsored by the Lions Club. Performing standard routines, the group makes several trips like this a year.

Wearing cowboy hats and boots the precision team entertained a crowd of 6,000 at the annual Dixie National Livestock Rodeo in Jackson, February 10. This was the first performance for the Hi-Steppers at the rodeo.

Appear On TV

Once again they appeared on television, this time for the March of Dimes Tele-Rama performing with Gary Collins and Mary Ann Mobley.

Mardi Gras and the Crewe Carrolton Ball beckoned the 'Steppers next for their eight consecutive appearance. One of the most glamourous events of all performances, this trip has become one all members look forward to each year.

The only group to be asked to appear a second time they were watched by 7,000 people. Special costumes to depict the gaiety of the season were worn by the Hi-Steppers.

The opening of the Lewis Grocery Company in Indianolo saw two performances of the group. A crowd of 10,000 was on hand to watch. This was also a first for the Hi-Steppers.

State Hospital

Two days later on February 27 they traveled to Mississippi State Hospital in Whitfield to perform in their annual Talent Show. The latest appearance was that Little Red School House in Jackson.

Mrs. Bee commented on the many Hi-Steppers performances, "We try to give the best performance no matter whether for the Little Red School House or 10,000 people. Each time the 'Steppers try to surpass the last show, and they feel that the main joy of performing is feeling like you are giving other people enjoyment."

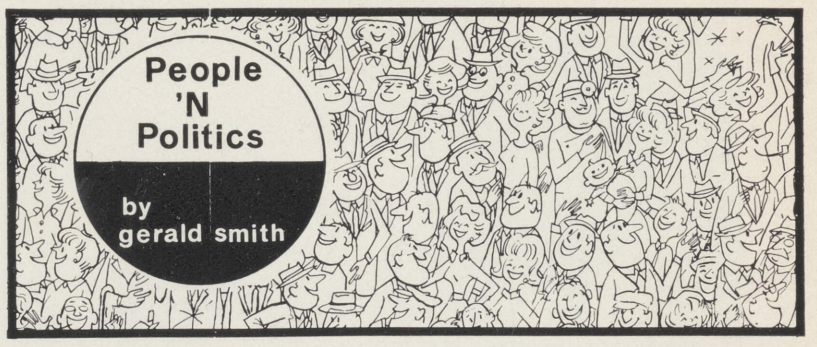
For the Hinds Hi-Steppers no crowd is too large, no distance too far, and no event too important. This is only the beginning of another year of events which bring to Hinds and to the members of the group a satisfaction in a job well done.

ASB Sets Film

Hinds Associated Student Body will sponsor the movie, "The Cardinal," set for Monday, March 18 at 7:15 p.m. in the college auditorium.

Admission for students to the showing will be 25 cents with proceeds from the movie going to the ASB.

Nominated for two Academy Awards, the movie stars Carol Lynley, Romy Schneider, Tom Tryon, Jill Haworth and John Saxon.



Griffin Begins Congressional Mission

Charles H. Griffin, a product of the typical southern small town, and a seasoned administrator of congressional duties, now returns to the nation's capital as a freshman member of the U. S. House of Representatives.

Elected in a landslide run-off special balloting to fill the vacated seat, Griffin will serve as the Third District's Representative until the June General Election, where he will meet possible opposition.

In Washington, Congressman Griffin will join his fellow 434 colleagues in an effort to carry on the nation's business in the service of his constituents and countrymen.

As experience prevails within this man, his interpretation of the duties and responsibilities attached to his position should not be difficult. Griffin should be well-enough acquainted with the Mississippi Delegation to work in harmony and unity to assist and promote effective representation for the state of Mississippi in the national congress. In the hope of honorable representation, Griffin will become, not a mere province of the Democratic Majority caucus, but will remain self-steered in his making of decisions.

Governor Williams recently attended the National Governor's Conference in Washington where the Governor's of the 50 states met with President Lyndon B. Johnson, as did Governor Williams, also, last month. The purpose of the meeting, previous to the annual conference, presents somewhat of a mystery to the people.

Perhaps its purpose was in accord with the best interest of our state and its people, with revelation of the elements involved in its course unecessary. Hopefully, the success of these meetings was in the formation of a better relationship and understanding of problems among the ranks of governorships and the national government.

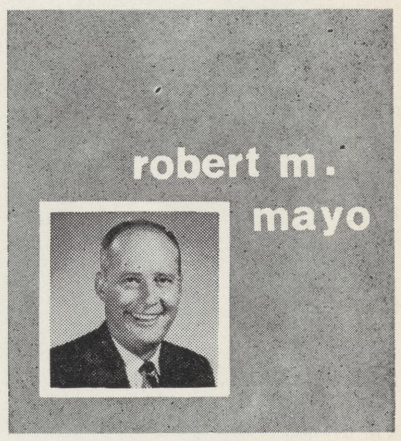
The state legislature, in its third month of activity, has approved an accumulation of aproximately 24 bills and laws. The largest portion of these acts seem to be of little wide concern, with the approval of the Governor's Education Proposal, perhaps the most major approval.

Qualifications for future aspirants of the office of Justice of the Peace are now more complicated, in accord with mandatory high school education requirement recently passed by the legislature. However, the law will not affect those present office holders. The only previous education requirement for J. P.'s is that they attend a brief training session before attaining the elected local office.

On the national front, the early stage of the Presidential Election of 1968 continues to progress with a variety of mysteries for the millions of spectators. The Democratic establishment of Massachusetts was recently overrun by sympathizers of the McCarthy platform. The name of Senator McCarthy will replace the assumed name of President Lyndon Johnson and the regular Democratic slate of electors pledged in his behalf in the old 'Bay State'.

Ex-Governor George Wallace, whose wife, Lurleen, the present Governor of Alabama, is in the stage of hopeful recovery from her third cancer operation, continues his fast-moving campaign, with a recent effort in the northwest. His extreme efforts could easily result in throwing the election into the U. S. House of Representatives, which is the provided alternative of the constitution when no man receives a majoriy.

Richard Nixon, according to promient polls and surveys, still leads other potential candidates for the Republican Nomination. Nelson Rockefeller, another popular hopeful, concludes that the only way he will except the nomination, is by draft.



To The Editor . . .

The provocative editorial in last week's Hindsonian deserves an answer. This column will be devoted to that purpose.

At the outset I wish to state I feel a kindred spirit with the editor. The same feelings of frustration plague the college president — the "grass is greener in the other pasture" feeling at times, the not so subtlety felt pressures from students who want more work and less responsibility, the obvious needs of faculty and staff for better salaries, living conditions and teaching environments, parents who want their offspring to make better grades but without their having to personally "lower the boom," pressure groups who want their pet theories taught in the classrooms of all colleges, and, in short, all the multitudinous problems of the growing, expanding college community inhabited by more than 2300 ebullient, energetic young red-blooded American students, 130 dedicated, talented and sensitive teachers, plus a company size group of people who clean buildings, prepare food, repair buildings and equipment, keep a fair size ranch operating, plus a large meat processing plant.

In the vortex of this bustling and rapidly changing community sits the president who attempts to give direction, leadership, cohesiveness

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE — Learning the techniques of electricity through practical training receives major emphasis in the 18 month General Electricity and Wiring Course. Wiring, Electrical Courses Teach Through Experience

By JOANN NEAL

Established in 1946, the General Electricity and Wiring Department of Hinds has grown from a small organization into a functioning unit of craftsmanship.

The purpose of the course taught by this department is to teach the student how to wire electrically a home or how to make industrial hook-ups. He also learns how to work with certain types of electrical distribution systems.

Harris Instructs

Instructor of the course is Robert Harris. Prior to taking this position at Hinds two years ago, Harris was in charge of all electrical fields for Yazoo City.

At present there are 20 students enrolled in the 18-month course, which includes four divisions of study: Principles in General Electricity, Electrical Planning and Installation, Advanced Electricity, and Industrial Electricity.

Field Work

The student's range of study is not confined to the classroom only, however. Field work in the shop and on campus is required to give the student actual experience. This enables him to adjust to the working conditions that he will later meet.

Students in this course are responsible for the wiring and maintenance of all buildings at Hinds. Most of the line work on campus, after initial installation, has been done by the General Electricity and Wiring Department.

Many Careers

Upon graduation, the student can enter several fields including maintenance, construction, and sales. He may pursue any of a wide range of careers—electric distribution checker, motor analyst, draftsman, engineering aide, technical writer, and many others.

Future plans of the department call for development in adult education fields. At present, applications are now being taken for a course which will be taught one or two nights a week, beginning in the next several weeks.

New Developments

The purpose of these courses will be to upgrade and study new developments in the electrical fields in relation to electrical distribution and modern utilities. Also included will be the instruction of safety measures in hooking up modern appliances.

"Fundamentals of safety are always stressed," stated Walter Gibbes, Vo-Tech director, "since, as it is often said, an electrician makes but one mistake."

Berry Retires

12-10. Can you believe it? That's what North Carolina State beat Duke University by Friday in basketball. 12-10. Now I love to see a team stall the ball that knows how, but 12-10 is just a bit ridiculous. In the second half, leading eight to four, North Carolina State held the ball 14½ minutes without taking a shot. Can you imagine, 14½ minutes without taking a shot? I'd rather go up to grill and watch lettuce fall out of my cheesburger.

The greatest pass receiver of all time retired this past Saturday. Raymond Berry of the Baltimore Colts decided to hang up his cleats and go into private business in Baltimore. With Berry, pass-receiving was no longer an art, it was a science. The game of football will be missing a lot next season, without this man.

I, for one, would like to express my congratulations to the Hinds Eagle basketball team for going as far as they did in the state tournament. For a team that had only three returning lettermen off last year's championship squad, I think that they proved themselves to be more than just a run-of-the-mill ballclub. The sophomores shouldered the load like true champions and the freshmen and new members gave the 110 per cent that is so necessary to be a winner.

Mickey Mantle, the human roll of adhesive tape, signed his sixth $100,000 contract to play baseball for the New York Yankees. He says that this could very possibly be his final year in the world of baseball, but I imagine that as long as the Yankees can afford the adhesive tape that he will be around, making Egyptian mummies look like well-dressed young men.

The track season has begun but Richmond Flowers and Jim Ryun haven't set any world's records — yet. Just give them time and they will have more world's records that Carter has little pills.

Bob Gibson, leading pitcher for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, started the season off in fine fashion. In the first exhibition game that he pitched in spring training against the Mets he hit Tommy Agee in the head with his fast ball. Agee, who is reportedly in fine shape after the mishap, was the first batter that Gibson faced since the World Series.

Missionary Speaks To Student Body

By GAYLE BECK

Bruce Olson, missionary to the Motilone tribe of Indians on the Colombian and Venezuelan borders in South America, spoke to the student body in a special assembly this morning.

Sponsored by the St. Augustine, Texas, First Methodist Church, Olson is known as an apostle to this aboriginal tribe and is an honorary member of their tribe.

Despite threats to his life by the Motilones and disease, Olson has been working with the people since 1962. He has spent many months teaching methods of farming and medicine.

A native of St. Paul, Minnesota, Olson holds a degree from the University of Caracas in Venezuela in ancient languages.

Andy Gallman, President of the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist organization, commented that Olson "was asked to come to our campus because we wanted everyone to hear about him and from him, because miracles still happen — his life is one."

Accompanying him on his missionary tour, which began in January of 1967, are two members of the tribe. For one of these natives this tour has been his first visit to civilization.

Today the villages of these people are no longer the same as they were the day Olson first arrived. New roads, medical clinics, houses, and other improvements have been constructed in the area due to the encouragement and influence of Bruce Olson.

and purpose to the educational process. It is some job, but like the editor, I wouldn't trade it for any other — except just possibly that of an editor.

Then, instead of worrying with administrative routine, frustrating, nagging, unsolved problems and unmet needs, I could write about the outstanding acomplishments of some fine groups of students who will be tomorrow's community, state and national leaders.

Let's name a few. Our champion livestock judging teams, our debate team that makes a habit of bowling over college competition including many senior colleges, talented dramatic students, musical groups and choreography groups that entertain thousands to thunderous applause each year, a basketball team that came within a few goals of being state champions again — these people make the job easier. Hinds students, faculty and alumni keep piling up honors too numerous to recall.

Oh yes, I almost overlooked the honors gathered annually by the Hindsonian which is published by a most perceptive group of students headed by a demanding and knowledgeable editor.

One day, my boy, when you, Ed Payne, Danny McKenzie and several others of your harrassed, overworked and unappreciated staff are gathering news in the far corners of the world or are trying to interpret what Washington politicians are saying or autographing a best seller, I will look up through bifocals from my cluttered desk, lean back from my chair, and brag long and loud to some hapless visitor or young teacher about knowing you when you were still wet behind the ears and laboring without fanfare or applause in putting out one of the best college papers in the business.

Burns Announces Plans Of Formation For Amateur Radio Club On Campus

Plans are being made towards the formation of an amateur radio club on the Hinds campus, announced drafting instructor William B. Burns.

The club would be affiliated with the American Radio Relay Club and will be for those students wishing to obtain an amateur radio license.

If enough students show interest in establishment of the club, equipment will be bought and space will be made available for a club station on campus.

Burns urged all students with a serious interest in becoming amateur radio operators to contact him in the drafting department of the Vocational-Technical Building.

Burns added that the project had already been sanctioned by both state and federal governments and that Jackson radio clubs might provide assistance once the club is established.

THE HINDSONIAN

VOLUME XXIV — NUMBER 18 | HINDS JUNIOR COLLEGE, RAYMOND, MISSISSIPPI | APRIL 1, 1968

PARDON ME, SECURITY — Stepping on the Hinds Security Truck and nearly missing Chief Bud Appleton, was the 80 foot creature that terrorized the Hinds campus last night. Before being captured by a group of girls from Main dormitory, the creature had wreaked untold damage on Central and Shangri-La dorms. Photo by Harris.

Creature Stages Raid On Dorms Last Night

Monster Attacks President's Office, Dean Wall Relates Seige On Building

Terror stalked the Hinds campus last night as screams of pain and agony heralded the entrance of a pre-historic monster that left destruction and injury in its path.

Entering the Hinds campus from the East, the monster passed Soutnside dormitory, was seen peeping in windows on the third floor of Greaves and demolished half of Central and Shangri-La dorms.

Damage Totals

Damage in the two dorms was estimated by Dean of Men Rosser Wall as amounting to well over $1.75.

Alert security forces, under the guidance of Chief Bud Appleton, tracked their quarry past the east side of the campus where it came to an abrupt halt in front of the Administration Building.

Scared Stiff

Chief Appleton was heard to comment, "Well, if there ain't a cow in Texas, I was scared stiff in my boots."

The gargantuan creature was attracted to the Administration Building by the lights that were burning late in the President's office and that of the Dean of Men.

Wall Says

The events that followed the monster's rampage were hazy but according to Dean Wall, who at the time was lecturing a group of enthusiastic boys, were as follows:

"Yes, I remember as the monster passed my window, because I dropped a stack of ID cards. The thing was headed for Dr. Mayo's office, who was working on a report to the faculty. As the boys that I was lecturing and I watched, the monster had just reached the light burning in Dr. Mayo's office when suddenly, well gosh, it looked like 4,000 girls from Main came screaming at the monster, hollering, 'It's a man, a real live man'."

Later according to Dean Wall's narative, the screaming mob of girls dragged the helpless creature back to their dorm. Officials today, are helpless to confiscate the creature, because nowhere in the 'Hinds Honey' book is there a ruling on girl's keeping monsters in their rooms.

At Northside

Security Raids Housemothers' Party

Evell Lyles and T. V. Roan, Hinds campus security officers, raided a Hinds housemother's Dr. Pepper Party held behind Northside bricks Sunday, March 31.

The housemothers involved were Annie Vernon Liddell, Wilma Freeman and Carolyn Kimball.

Roan seized some papers in that raid that resulted in the dismissal of the Hinds housemothers. The contents of these papers revealed evidence that the housemothers were engaged in a deceitful attempt to make Helen Keller Dean of Women.

Lyles explained that the raid came as a result of his over-hearing Carol Crockett state that the dorm mothers had their radio on after 9:30 p.m.

Lyles recalls that he thought this to be a little suspicious because the three housemothers had always stressed the importance of abiding by the rules. The housemothers also stressed the importance of setting a good example because of the people looking at Hinds, through the actions of its faculty, students, and administration.

Lyles and Roan overheard what seemed to be, at first, a discussion of the various personality problems witin the dormitories. However, after listening more closely, it seemed more suspicious.

Mrs. Liddell, head resident of Northside, recalled seeing Jack Daniels the week-end before. Mrs. Freeman, resident of Westside, asked how the Old Crow was doing. (She never did like him!) Mrs. Kimball, head resident of Main, recalled reading "Bloody Mary" during her week-end in the dormitory.

Just as the security started to spring the raid, Mrs. Liddell let out a Rebel Yell after swearing loudly that she was seeing a Wild Turkey fly across the room.

Roan stated, "I would not have reported them, but they didn't invite me to join their 'little group'."

Marha Womack, WASB President, stated, "We would have been good to our housemothers, if they had let us, however, the noise was just too much, and we couldn't study."

Miss Fay Marshall, Dean of Women, was asked what could be done now that all three housemothers had been dismissed. Miss Marshall's reply was, "Plenty."

HJC Debate Team Advances To Finals In Annual Bawahi Invitational Tourney

Hinds' debate team has advanced into the finals of the Bawahi Invitational Debate Tournament, being held in Katangawi, South Africa.

The team, composed of Bill Cole, Bobby Clark, Barry McCracken, Paul Reihle, and Chuck Cuendet won prizes including a used witch doctor, blow guns autographed by Bawahi Chief Eatemup, and an albino elephant.

The only upset suffered by the Hinds' team was when debate coach Fred Brooks unfortunately ventured too far into the surrounding jungle and was eaten by a lion. The lion is reported in satisfactory condition.

Cole and Clark scored preliminary wins over South Sahari Tech on the topic "Resolved: The United States Shoud Cease All Military Aid to Red China."

Judges ruled a technical penalty on South Sahari when members of their team began throwing spears at Cole while he was making his final argument.

Commenting on the tournament, Chuck Cuendet remarked, "We feel we have really accomplished a unique achievement, especially since none of the team members can speak the native language." When asked, the natives stated that they could not tell the difference.

The next scheduled tournament is the Siberian Open Debate and Yak Wrestling Tournament. Members of the team are now soliciting funds towards the purchase of a dog sled for transportation to the Siberian Tourney.

Appleton Arrested For Socklessness

Bud Appleton, head of campus security, was arrested by a student yesterday for appearing in the cafeteria without socks.

The student, who asked not to be identified, made what he termed a "student arrest." He commented, "I was merely doing my duty as a responsible citizen of this campus."

Appleton's ID was taken away and given to Dean Wall, who returned it with a warning because it was a first offense. Appleton returned to his regular duties today without comment.

Hinds President Robert Mayo stated, "Although it is unusual, the arrest is valid. The usual disciplinary measures were followed and I assure the student body that justice prevailed."

Snow Slated

Hinds Associated Student Body will sponsor another snow before the Spring Holidays, set for April 11-17, according to ASB President Bill Cole.

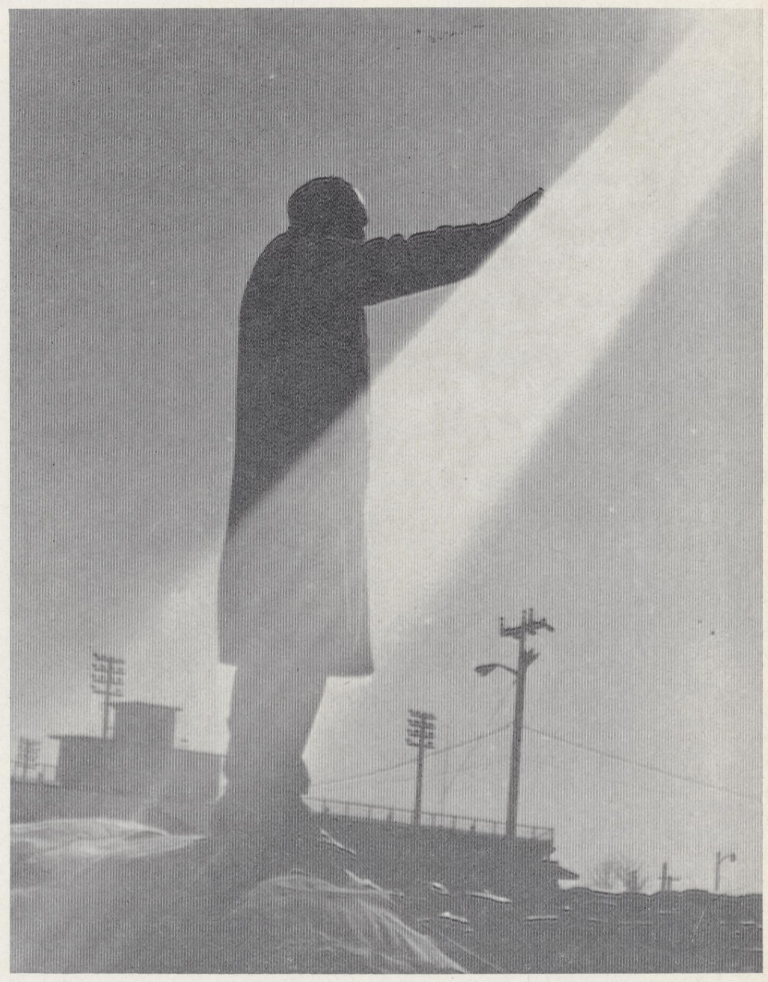
"Because of the good response to the other two snows," said Cole, "we feel that we cannot let a good thing go unnoticed."

Mrs. Riggs Adds Two Magazines

Mrs. Virginia Riggs has announced the addition of two magazines to the reading facilities of the college library beginning Monday, April 1.

These two magazines include "Playboy" and "Cavalier". The magazines are being donated by the owners of Joe's Bar and Grill.

"We appreciate the interest shown by Joe's Bar and Grill in our students by furnishing these two fine magazines. I sincerely hope that our students will take full advantage of their availability," stated Mrs. Riggs.



SWAMP GAS? — Choir Director Leslie Reeves received a strange response as he raised his hand for the choir to begin a performance behind the Student Union Building. Reeves says the strange light was a reflection from a disk-shaped object hovering above the Union Building. Security officers say that it was swamp gas from the lagoon. Photo by Harris.

'Roaming Romeos' To Perform On TV

"Ted Mack, here we come" has long been the motto of the internationally infamous HJC dance and drill team, the Roaming Romeos.

Well, they finally made it. Sunday, April 7, the group will perform on national television for the Ted Mack Amateur Hour. They will compete with many other acts and will be rated by the television audience.

History Teachers

The group, which is composed of the faculty members of the history department, was formed in 1913 to give its members something to do during their many hours of spare time. (The fact that Hinds did not open until 1917 gave them plenty of time for preparation).

Their first major performance came in 1914 when the Roaming Romeos became the only group asked to appear at the opening of the Panama Canal. The performance never took place, however, for two members caught malaria and one fell into the canal. Although they all survived, the group was too small to perform without them.

Globe Travelers

In the years that followed, the group traveled to every corner of the globe. In 1925, they toured Africa, performing for many of the tribes, and running from the rest.

The Roaming Romeos are the only ones to be asked back a second time to the National Hog-Calling Festival, which is held annually. They have appeared consecutively for the past ten years, and last year were awarded a plaque for their ability to perform under the trying circumstances.

Director of the group is A. L. Denton, who is also Dean of Students during his spare time. Of their success, he said, "We have been waiting for this opportunity for a long time. The only way from here is up."

Halford Announces New Style Changes For Lit Magazine

Cecil Halford, editor of Hinds' proposed literary magazine, announced today that drastic format changes would be made in order to spark interest in the magazine.

Stated Halford, "Yup. We've extended our deadline for contributions for over a month now with little results. Thus far the only material submitted is a short story entitled 'The Day Daisy the Purple Cow Croaked'."

From now on, Halford announced, entries will be accepted only if they deal with subjects of general interest to Hinds students. "Like sex," Halford suggested.

Judges of the material will include Hugh Hefner, Terry Southern, and the entire second floor of Central dormitory.

Social Affairs Commission Announces Selection Of April 1 'Girl Of Month'

Hinds Social Affairs Commissioner, Bob McLeod announced the April 1 "Girl of the Month" in an oratory at the Tuesday, March 26 senate meeting.

The "Girl of the Month" award is a new feature sponsored by the Hinds Social Affairs Commission. The girls are chosen on the basis of academic work, citizenship, and popularity.

One girl will be chosen for each month of the school year. After the selection of Miss May, 1968, there will be a reception for all the "Girl of the Month" honorees.

The girls will be selected by two members of the administration—staff, faculty, and students.

"We have chosen a girl for this month whom, I'm sure you will all agree, is an inspiration to us all through out our daily lives. When you see her, its an experience you can't quite forget," McLeod commented.

McLeod stated, "I have gone to school with this girl all through high school, and I know what a fine person she is. I thought after graduating from high school that we would never meet again."

"However, fate has brought her to grace this campus for the past year, one month, six days, six and a half hours, and 34 seconds."

McLeod continued, "When I think of a girl capable of being a Hinds "Girl of the Month," cold chills go up and down my spine, just like when you finish a meal in the Hinds cafeteria."

McLeod also continued, "It is so much fun being around her that you really just get the feeling that you want to get away from her for a while."

McLeod stated that his next oratory for the "Girl of the Month" award would be at the first senate meeting in May.

Aldridge Sets New Mile Mark At Slippery Rock Track Meet

Louis Aldridge, Hinds freshman from Jackson Murrah, set a new world's record for the mile run in the third semi-annual Slippery Rock Invitational Track meet with the astounding time of 3:51.8.

Aldridge, usually a very reserved person who does not have much to say, was evidently overjoyed by the fact that he had broken Jim Ryun's, the University of Kansas great, existing world record.

When asked how he felt after his record breaking performance, Aldridge exclaimed, "Y ou wouldn't believe it!" All the reporters agreed that they porbably wouldn't and they left. Aldridge again set out in his mile run pace, this time to catch the reporters and not to set another world's record.

Aldridge was asked how he managed to run the mile in such an outstanding time after an injury-plagued year of competition. "The pace that was set for me in this race by the other runners was tremendous and I knew that if I was going to win this one that I was going to have to suck it up and get after it."

A sports writer from Hinds was asked by other reporters how he managed to set the record. The reporter, who knows Aldridge quite well, answered. "The only difference that I noticed in this performance and his previous performances is that he ktp his mouth shut and probably didn't have as much wind resistance."

'Gidget' Movie Set For HJC Showing

Hinds Associated Student Body will sponsor the movie, "Gidget Takes a Trip," on Friday, April 2, in Dean Rosser Wall's backyard.

Admission for students to the movie will be 25 cents and three Dr. Pepper bottle caps, with the money going to the ASB and the bottle caps going to Mrs. Margaret Kimball who collects them.

The film stars Madeline Fritze and Fred Foxwad and includes special guest appearances by Lolita Luvlust and Charlie the Tuna.

Filmed on location in scenic Desolation, Montana, the movie was nominated for several awards such and the Field and Stream Magazine Film Critics Award.
Critics Award.

"We hope everyone will come out and see the film," commented WASB President Martha Womack, "Because we need the money."

'Feel At Home'

Dean Of Women Tells Change In Girl's Rules

Changes in the girl's rules for the 1968-69 term have been announced by Miss Fay Marshall, Dean of Women.

Miss Marshall stated, "On my recent tour of college campuses at the University of Chicago, the University of California at Berkley, the University of Texas at Austin, and the University of Mississippi, I was impressed with the freedoms girls were allowed and I feel some of these would create a better atmosphere at Hinds and make our women students feel more at home."

Soph Rules

Rules for the sophomores include one late night a week with a 3:00 a.m. curfew, a 12:00 midnight curfew Monday through Thursday nights, and on Friday through Sunday nights a curfew of 12:30.

The freshmen students curfew will be 11:30 every night of the week. Second semester each girl with a C average and parent's permission will be allowed one late night a week with a curfew of 1:00 a.m.

Wear Slacks

Both groups of students will be allowed to wear slacks to class, leave campus at any time provided they have signed out, smoke in any building on campus except the library, enter any of the boys dormitories until 10:00 p.m., and the girls may have any overnight guests they would like in their own room one night a week.

Miss Marshall noted that these were the most liberal rules to ever be enforced on the Hinds campus and that the changes would be tried for only one year. She stated, "If we find that the changes are not ideal we will have to resort to the old victorian, prudish, present way of life."

Install Bars

In a speech made to the faculty concerning the changes, Miss Marshall revealed, "It has been suggested to me by the matrons of our girl's dorms that a bar be placed in each of the dorms, provided the girls pay for their own drinks. However, no rulings have been made on this to date."

Later at the faculty meeting President Robert Mayo stated, "We are very proud of our Dean of Women for making these changes, and the administration feels these rules will increase the enrollment at our college and give a better atmosphere for studying. These rules will also help us lose the reputation of a convent."

Replacement Made For HJC Cafeteria After Student Riot

Business Manager Grady Sheffield announced yesterday that nationally famous "Joe's Bar and Grill" will replace the cafeteria on the Hinds campus.

The old cafeteria was destroyed by fire last week in a student riot. The riot started when Ahleat Anything, a transfer student from Pango Pango, found a horse collar in his soup.

Sheffield explained that the cafeteria had received, instead of a truckload of prime beef, a load of horses consigned to a glue factory. "They were cheaper," Sheffield said, "so we kept them."

Joe's Bar and Grill became famous after an attack of food poisoning killed 73 people who ate stale crackers while waiting for their orders to arrive. Another man died of starvation in the grill the same day.

Joe's Bar and Grill will be completed in time for the 1970 summer session. Until then students are urged to bring their meals from home.

The final date for qualifying for the officies was Wednesday, April 3. ASB Election Commissioner Wally Byrd announced that those having completed the requirements to seek the offices include Bobby Clark of Raymond, Paul Reihle of Jackson, and Alvin Woods of Bolton in the ASB race and Sherry Baker of Jackson and Stella Wedgeworth of Vicksburg in the WASB election.

To be eligible for office all candidates must have attended Hinds for two regular semesters, have maintained an overall 'C' average, and have obtained a good conduct from either the Dean of Men or Dean of Women and presented it to Commissioner Byrd by registration day.

Senate Amendment

Due to a recently approved senate amendment, candidates do not have to be dormitory residents, but must agree to reside on campus during their term of office if elected.

Commissioner Byrd stressed the fact that rules limit campaign expenses to $25 and that an expense sheet will be required a few days after the election.

Duties of the ASB president include selection and removal of senate commission chairmen with senat approval, submission of important executive proposals to the senate, veto power over senate actions, and responsibility to attend all senate meetings and be responsible for all student executive actions and activities.

College Buys Land To House Faculty

Grady Sheffield, College Business Manager, has announced the purchase by Hinds of some five and one-half acres of land to be used in making additions to faculty housing.

The land, situated south of the campus, is the remainder of the section of property originally bought by the college to build the Park Circle faculty housing area.

Sheffield stated that the land will be used to construct ten additional homes, with work to begin in the month of May. The land was purchased from W. D. Smith of Raymond at a price of nine thousand dollars.

Hinds Loses Best Friend In F. M. Greaves Death

Hinds Junior College lost its best long-time friend last week.

Frank M. Greaves was a giant of a man; he was tall in stature, but that's not what we're talking about. He was a giant of a man.

Hinds Junior College is now in its 50th year. Frank Greaves had been more closely associated with the growing institution than any other single man. For more than 35 years he served on the Board of Trustees. For more than 20 of those years, he was President of the Board of Trustees.

Through his eyes he watched the college mushroom from a tiny, struggling campus of four buildings to the mighty, growing, bustling community it is today.

He didn't just watch, though. Frank Greaves was a man who saw things that needed to be done and did them. At 85, he was full of energy and enthusiasm. He was constantly alert to the needs of Hinds, and was not slow in showing his enthusiasm for the realization of its needs.

He supported all of the college's programs with equal vigor. He wanted the college to grow, and grow, and grow, as he and the Board, year after year, rendered decisions to allow Hinds to fulfill its manifest destiny for the people it was geared to serve.

One of his favorites was the Hinds Hi-Steppers. He traveled with them across the United States, showing the vigor and enthusiasm of a 25-year old man, even at the age of 85.

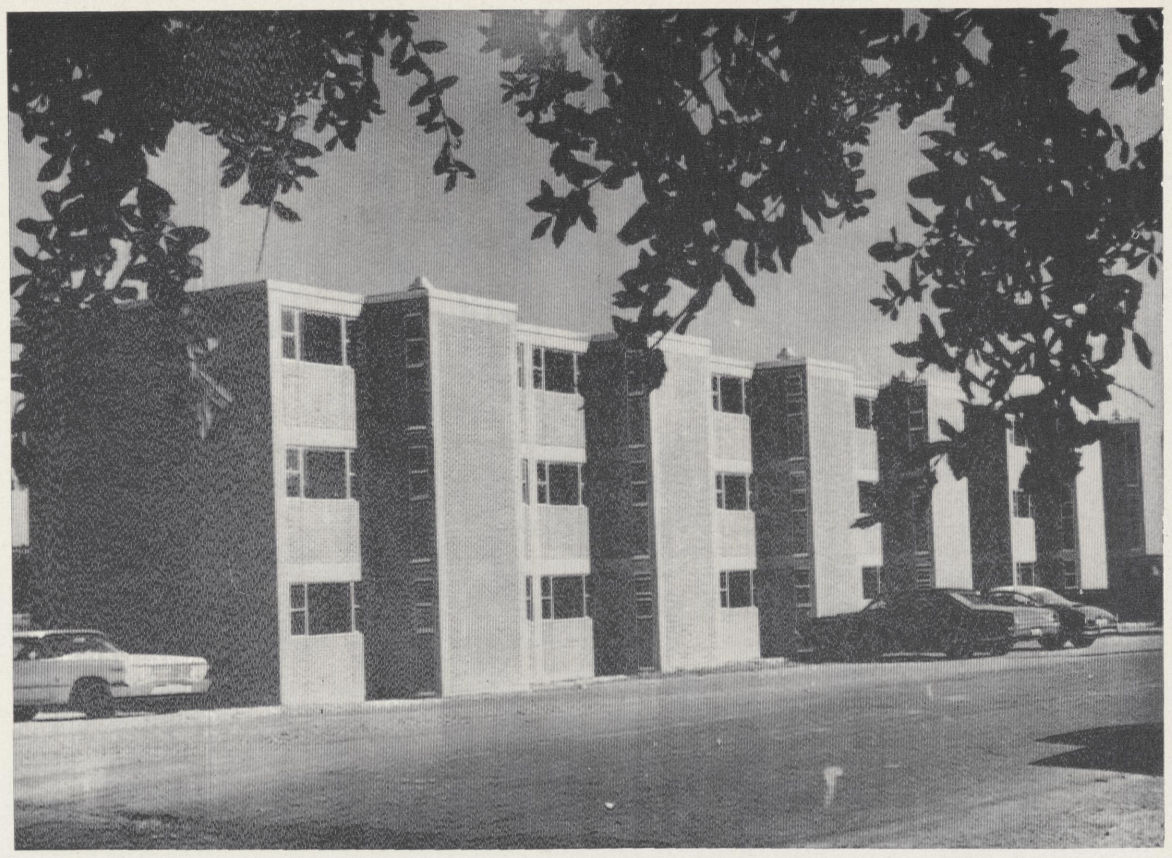
Humbleness is a rare virtue; but the word was placed in the dictionary to describe men like Frank Greaves.

Mr. Greaves was a man of personal financial wealth; yet you would never have known it and many didn't. But Mr. Greaves' wealth was not best seen in dollars and cents. His great wealth was in the great respect and admiration his fellow man had for him.

Frank Greaves was truly a man of God. He walked in the footsteps of the Christian life and you knew it because he lived a life that was exemplary of the man he was.

Hinds' Board of Trustees will look back now and be even more grateful that a great monument on the institution he gave a great part of his life to serve was named in his honor shortly before his death. Last May, Frank M. Greaves Hall, the men's dormitory was christened in his name. It will stand in the sands of time as the college continues to grow, as a monument to a great man — so aptly and appropriately named in honor of a man who had been a large part of such growth.

Frank M. Greaves has left this earth to be with the Master. He has left us here, but he will not soon be forgotten. A part of him is in Hinds Junior College and the memory of him will live on in the annals of the institution he served so well.



MEMORIAL TO GREAVES — Standing as a monument to F. M. Greaves, president of the Hinds Board of Trustees for 20 years, who was killed in a car wreck last Friday, is F. M. Greaves Hall, which was dedicated to him in May of 1967. Pictured below with Greaves, (right) is G. M. McLendon, who served as president of Hinds for 27 years that Greaves was on the board and both are shown at the dedication of G. M. McLendon Library. Serving for more than 35 years on the Board of Trustees as a member and officer, Greaves was well known to students and all for his concern for the college and the welfare of its students.

Experience Told

After having spent a week off the Hinds campus vsiting the campuses of two excellent young junior colleges in Texas, I feel the urge to use this column in reporting to our faculty and student body my experiences and reactions.

The first and most pronounced impression one gets from such an experience is the terrific impact the junior college movement is making in many parts of the country and on all segments of our socio-economic order. I visited two new junior colleges. One was in its second year of operation and located in temporary quarters on an air base in a metropolitan setting in a fairly large Texas city. The enthusiasm of board members, administration, faculty, students, and parents for this budding young institution is contagious.

Bank presidents, top flight profesional people, industrialists and just plain citizens were talking about "our college" and supporting it with their talents, energies and material wealth. Some of the plans were truly breathtaking. Of course, a few wealthy well-wishers who get caught up in this new community college movement can open many doors of opportunity to large segments of American youth who have neither been touched nor challenged by the conventionally established, expensive, ivy covered liberal arts colleges. After having been dined, entertained and indoctrinated in an exclusive country club setting by the industrial and professional tycoons of this city, my pride in being a part of this relatively new educational program received a considerable shot in the arm and caused me to resolve to return to my fifty year old campus and bring with me some of the enthusiasm that I caught from these men who habitually referred to the college not as "X Junior College," but as "our college."

Then on to another quite different type institution in an entirely different setting but whose board, administration and staff was possessed of the same enthusiasm and desire. The buildings were new; the campus was freshly seeded with not a sprig of grass in evidence. The population was approximately 50 per cent Latin American with a very high illiteracy rate among this segment of the population and a correspondingly low earning capacity and family income.

Here again, while being entertained in the finest homes of the wealthy aristocracy, I found the same pride in "our college." The new, shiny equipment, the latest and best in teaching aids and the frantic hurrying to process and catalog large crate of books were indications to the visitor that a group of students were thirsting for knowledge and an opportunity to compete for the better life in our highly competitive society and a group of dedicated teachers who had resolved to give their best to these students whether their home was a Mexican shack down by the

The Mississipi scene is fairly quiet following a long, hot summer, a mild autumn, and a freezing winter of political frustration. Winter didn't come early, Rubel was left in the rubble, Bodron and Evers are stuck with their same old jobs, and NOW President Johnson has shocked the whole nation with his announcement not to seek the Democratic nomination for President. Mississippians can now turn their political thoughts to this development and it's affect on the peculiar '68 Presidential election.

A silent thought of wonder pondered the minds of Americans and the whole world as President Johnson climaxed his Viet Nam television address with the announcement of his decision not to seek or to accept the nomination of his party. He stated that his decision came out of his desire to see America united in an effort for peace. Before announcing his decision he made a plea for negotiation with North Viet Nam officials as he announced a halt in bombing.

Without doubt, this announcement became a most shocking development in American political history. A bewildered news media viewed the President's decision with almost speechless conversation, reminding Americans that a new political picture prevails the stormy political scene. Time will prove the reasons for the Presidents pulling out.

The Democratic battle is now left between two U. S. Senators, Minnesota's McCarthy and New York's Senator Kennedy, both were criticizing the Johnson administration. It is highly possible that vice-president Humphrey will now enter the race to defend the Johnson faction.

Weeks previous to the unexpected announcement of President Johnson, the highly publicized New Hampshire primary took place with McCarthy leading the Democratic slate over Johnson. Former Vice-President Nixon led the Republican ticket, which indicated that he would most likely win the Republican nomination this summer. Nixon sentiment has grown vigorously with all prominent surveys showing him far ahead of any other Republican potential. Nixon, the only formal Republican contender, recently won a sweeping victory in the Millsaps College Mock Presidential Republican primary.

Other Republican potentials include Illinois Senator, Charles Percy, a former Bell & Howell executive, who defeated an incumbent Democrat in 1967; California Governor Ronald Reagan, a conservative, and former movie actor; and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, a liberal who defeated conservative National Review Editor, William F. Buckley in his election as mayor in 1965. Senator Jacob Javits, an extreme leftwinger of New York, desires strongly to be nominated for the Vice-Presidential spot.

Frankly, the Republicans so strongly fear oblivion, that they are afraid to nominate an ultra-liberal, as they expect to capture conservative votes throughout the nation, particularly in the west and south. This is a major reason Nixon is the front-runner among party leaders, who are making special efforts to secure Nixon as the Republican nominee. In the hope of a clear cut choice for President, the Republicans will find the need to nominate a constitutionalist, such as Governor Reagan, or maybe some other conservative personality with ability to lead a great country. The Democrats offer no such candidate.

Circle K Club Completes Major Repair Work At Haven Hall

Members of the Circle K Club recently completed major work on their annual Single Service Project, which was repair work at Haven Hall, a Jackson home for the retarded.

Under the direction of Project Chairman Steve Trigleth and James Flemmons, both freshman from Jackson; and Bruce McArthur and Tommy Roan, both sophomores from Jackson, the club combined a food drive and the profits from a record sale to complete the project.

Paint Rooms

Major work at the home centered around the painting of five large rooms which constitute the main portion of the facilities.

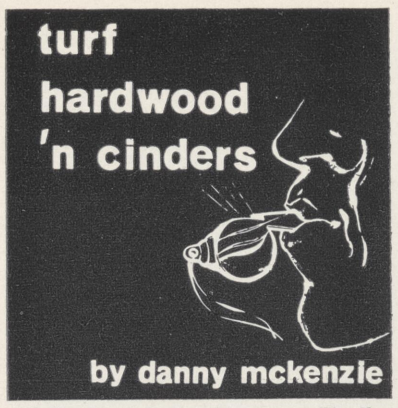
Moving outside the club painted and repaired trim on the main building, boarded up the garage and installed shelves in it, and is now in the process of building a covered patio on the side of the building.

Repair Furniture

Club members also repaired and painted lawn furniture and repaired and built a roof over the main wheelchair ramp, then painted both of the wheelchair ramps.

Completing work on the exterior of the building, the club built and painted a fence in front of the home, erected a sign for the institution, and dug out the drainage facilities in the rear of the building. Plans are now being finalized for the construction of a barbecue pit to be erected alongside the patio.

"Our purpose when agreeing to take on this type of project," stated club president Jerry Corns, "was to, in some way, help the children by improving their surroundings, so that they could progress in a brighter environment. From seeing the final results, I believe that our club has achieved its goal."



$100,000 Tape Job

It's the time of year again when the sporting goods salesmen move in and make their killing. It's spring training in the major league baseball camps.

There will be one sporting goods company that will make so much money that they will have to use a truck to haul it away in. That is the company that sells adhesive tape to the New York Yankees.

In case you didn't know it, the Yankees have an Egyptian Mummy playing for them under the name of Mickey Charles Mantle. He has been playing for them for the past 17 years and for the last six, he has been paid over $100,000. That isn't bad for a ballplayer who has only one leg, and there is some doubt as to whether or not he has one complete leg.

Mantle's right leg is what the doctors refer to as 100% disabled. This means that if they had to operate there would be nothing to operate on. He has already had four operations on his right knee alone. The scare on his right knee would make Frankestein's face look similar to a young boy with a case of acne. He's got so many scars on the knee that it looks like the First World War took place there.

Now his left knee is not in near about as bad a shape as his right. He has at least 50% ability left in it. His right leg has to be wraped from toe to the top of the thigh. His left leg is in such good shape that it only has to be wrapped from his ankle to the bottom of the thigh.

And yet Mickey Charles Mantle does not complain. The Yankees decided that last year they would move him to first, a position that he had never played before, not even in the little leagues of Oklahoma, his home state. So the man with only one and a half legs goes out and plays 144 games with the same carefree attitude that he has played with all his life. Now he knows full well that if he gets hit by a runner going full speed down the first base line that it could mean the end of his career, but he plays anyhow.

As he was experiencing one of his worst years at the plate last season, the ballplayers around the league saw fit to choose him to the All-Star team of the American League. Mickey Charles Mantle expressed some doubt on his belonging on this team but when he came to bat as a pinch-hitter in the game all doubt was removed from his mind as he received a five minute standing ovation from the thousands of fans that had come to see him. He struck out but he looked like the greatest ball player in the world doing it.

Mickey Charles Mantle probably is the best ballplayer in the world. Especially for having only one and a half legs. Mickey Charles Mantle is the best ball player in the world simply because he does not need any legs to play on. He plays on pure and simple guts. Spell it any way you want to and it still comes out guts. Mickey Charles Mantle is guts.

Candidates Named For ASB Offices At Senate Meeting

Announcements for candidacy in the upcoming ASB and WASB presidential races highlighted the ASB senate meeting of April 2.

Four candfidates gave brief speeches to the senate gathering after Elections Commissioner Wally Byrd had urged all senators to see that all students "come out and vote."

Campaign Clarified

Social Affairs Commissioner Bob McLeod asked Byrd for a definite statement on possible rulings prohibiting campaigning near the voting area. Byrd replied that no signs would be permitted on the Library and signs on the Student Union would have to be removed the day of the election, April 10.

Candidates appearing before the senate included Bobby Clark, Paul Reihle, and Alvin Woods in the ASB race and Stella Wedgeworth for the WASB office. Sherry Baker, another anounced candidate for the WASB post, was not present.

Resolution Passes

The senate passed a resolution commending the Hinds debate team and a recommendation that the Administration "look into the possibility of the Hinds team attending . . . competion with schools across the nation."

A motion by Stella Wedgeworth to set up a commission to examine girls' rules and amended by Bobby Clark to be a standing committee of freshmen was passed unanimously, completing the senate meeting.

Six Delegates To Represent Hinds At Mississippi Intercollegiate Council

Six delegates from Hinds will attend the Mississipi Intercollegiate Council to be held April 26-27 on the Delta State College campus at Cleveland.

Delegates are Stella Wedgeworth, Vicksburg; Martha Womack, Utica; Doris Fanning, Clinton; Bill Cole, and Bob Clark, Raymond.

One of the major issues of the session will be the organization of a Mississipi Intercollegiate Junior College Council, which will be incorporated in the MIC.

Bill Cole commented on the new council, "As of yet Hinds has not become a member of the MIJCC, and the results of this meeting will determine our membership."

The MIC, composed of senior and junior colleges throughout the state, is organized to promote the physical, social, and spiritual well-being of Mississippi's system of higher education, and to alleviate some of the pressing problems facing the colleges and universities today.

Debate Team Wins First; Sets Tournament Record

Hinds debate team copped its third consecutive first place trophy on Saturday by winning the junior college division of the Pearl River Junior College Invitational Debate tournament.

In bringing back the first place trophy, this season's debater's topped the previous Hinds record for most tournaments won in a single year.

Bill Cole, Jackson, and Bobby Clark, Raymond, paced the team's winning effort by being victorious in three of their four debates. Alvin Woods, Bolton, and Barry McCracken, Jackson, debating negatively won a single debate against three defeats.

Teams Include

Debating on the Hinds 'B' team, Clark Colvin, Jackson, and Paul Reihle, Jackson, won three of four contests; while Billy Gowan, Jackson, debating with a Pearl River teammate failed to garner a win.

Teams composed of Clark, Cole, Colvin, and Reihle, received awards of excellent in debate. Cole, Clark, and Colvin received excellent citations for individual debating.

Clark and Cole scored a win against the winner of the senior college division, Millsaps. On the year this team won 25 of 35 debates for a winning percentage of 72%. In the last four tournaments they have compiled a record of 17-1.

Slow Start

This year's debaters started slow as they suffered early season losses in tournaments held at Auburn University and at Mississipi State. In their third tournament of the year Clark and Cole reached the octofinals of the Millsaps tournament. At the Gulf Coast Debate tournament the team placed second overall while Clark and Cole began a 14 debate winning streak which lasted until the Pearl River tournament.

In the Mississippi Junior College Debate tournament held at Hinds the team scored an 8-0 sweep to claim the third consecutive MJC trophy. Following this win the Hinds debaters placed first at the Magnolia Speech tournament at MSCW with an over all record of 9-1.

For their efforts this season the debate team received an invitation to the National Junior College Debate tournament to be held May 1-4 at Miami-Dade Junior College.

railroad tracks, a middle-class three-bedroom brick home in the suburbs or a rambling ranch house with oil wells silhoueted in the background.

One thing that struck me about this young, dynamic institution was that it was both a melting pot and a catalyst for the varied social and economic structures of this community. In the years ahead the educational and cultural opportunities available in and through this institution will make that community a better place in which to build a factory or to build a life.

With age and maturity such as our institution enjoys comes the risk of taking too much for granted, of assuming that these advantages will always be here provided by somebody and that after all this is what we deserve from life. This is not true. The rapid changes and new discoveries in new industrial techniques and the new and increased demands being placed on community colleges should be a challenge to our fifty-year-old institution to think young and vigorously and to be aware that every few years we, because of these changes and demands, become a "new" institution. This is a challenge to all of us, both teachers and students.

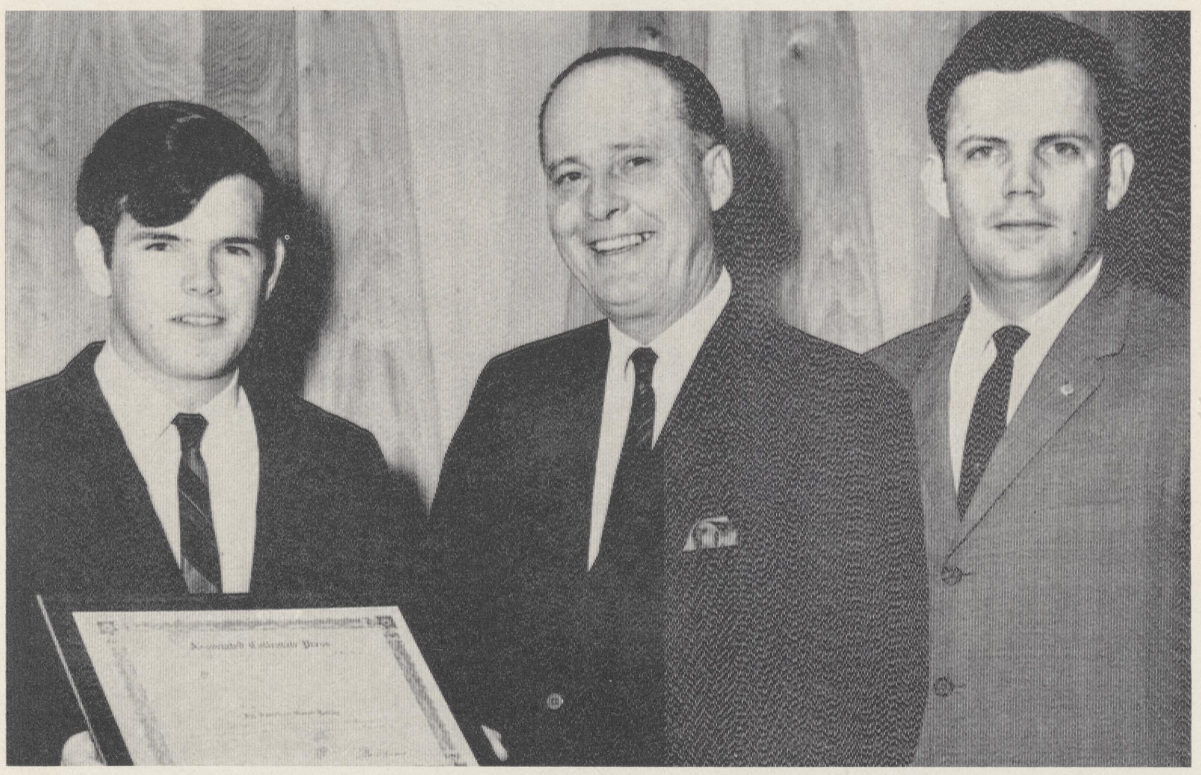
Hindsonian Wins 'All - American' Rating



ALL-AMERICAN PAPER — Hinds campus weekly newspaper, "The Hindsonian" has been presented the highest award a college newspaper can receive—the "All-American" rating by the Associated Collegiate Press. Presented to the top newspapers in the country, the award is the first for any Mississippi junior college. From left, Editor Jack Coppenbarger, President Robert M. Mayo, and Advisor Ralph Sowell, Jr., view the award certificate. Photo by Harris.

Associated Collegiate Press Confers Top National Award On Hinds Paper

"The Hindsonian" has been awarded the "All-American" rating by the Associated Collegiate Press, the nation's prestigious collegiate newspaper bureau.

The All-American award, considered the highest award a collegiate newspaper can receive, was given the Hinds paper by the bureau, which rates newspapers from the 50 states.

The rating, according to Director Fred Kildow, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, represents "a Superior rating and is reserved for the top publications in the United States."

Hindsonian advisor Ralph Sowell, Jr. said, "It is dificult to convey the real significance of this award. It is recognition which Hinds could hardly ever expect to receive, because of the category in which we are required to enter. We compete in a category which includes all the weekly junior college newspapers in the country, regardless of enrollments."

Among other colleges having newspapers receiving the rating, for example were: Los Angeles City College (enrollment: 18,000); El Camino Junior College, California(enrollment: 14,000); and Miami-Dade Junior College of Miami, Florida (enrollment: 23,000).

Hinds became the first junior college paper in the State of Mississippi and one of the rare few in the South to receive the coveted award. "The Hindsonian" has, in past years, received the top rating given by other press associations, including the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and the National Newspaper Service, as well as being the perennial winner of the general excellence award given by the Mississippi Junior College Press Association.

The "All-American" award to the Hindsonian completes the list of top awards that can be awarded a college newspaper.

"Special credit," Sowell said, "should be given to Editor Jack Coppenbarger and his staff for giving hours of service, concern, and aggressiveness to make the paper tops in the nation. News editor Judy Johnson, photographer Charles Harris, assistant editor Ed Payne, sports editor Danny McKenzie, feature editor Gayle Beck, and staff advisor Bob Hodges should be given special recognition for a job well done."

Elections Give Students Right To Express Opinions

Today is one of those days when a certain faction of students express themselves in a manner which has set this country off and above from the others in this world.

Today, you can vote.

Big deal, huh? Well, today is that day when that certain faction of students that do express their known prerogative can control their own destinies by choosing their leaders and letting their opinions be known.

Today is that day when the free thinking students of Hinds keep democracy alive by supporting one of their major freedoms and perpetuating the American voice.

Yes, today is the day for those seldom seen students, who sit silently by and watch the government operate, to raise their voices and today is the day that these seldom seen students override those who are the loudest and do the least.

And finally today is that day when, if you do not choose to express your constitutionally given right, then you kill it, by simply ignoring your duty.

This big election that your vote counts so heavily in, is the balloting for ASB president and WASB president.. The candidates for these offices have been campaigning hard for the past week, and the platforms are made, waiting for your approval or for your dissent.

Last year in this same election, the voter turnout was so small as to be termed "ridiculous" by some election officials. This year, we are hoping that students will conscientiously uphold their duty by voicing their opinions.

If the democratic system of government on the Hinds campus is to hold true, and if the majority is to rule, then you, the student are expected to do the simple act of voting. Will you? — JC.

Remember Six Mistakes

Easter holidays mean many things to many different people. To some, it is that necessary break away from school to recuperate; to others it is the chance to bring yourself closer to the true spiritual meaning of the holiday.

During this season, it is wise to re-evaluate yourself in relation to those around you and the impression you make on them. Are you living up to the ideals set by Jesus Christ, who died for our sins, and for whom we observe this season.

The Roman philosopher Cicero, over 2000 years ago, outlined six mistakes by which mankind could use to guide it's ways. These mistakes have lived through the ages, and fittingly, in this season, could change your own life.

Those six mistakes that man most commonly made are:

1. The delusion that personal gains are made by crushing others.
2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.
3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we cannot accomplish it.
4. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences.
5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind, and not acquiring the habit of reading and studying.
6. Attempting to compel others to believe and live as we do.

Certainly, all of us have made these mistakes at one time or another. During this Easter season, it is fitting that we reexamine our faith and beliefs and then make attempts to better ourselves. —JC.

'Regular Assembly'

Students List Major Platform Planks

By GAYLE BECK

In view of the recent campaigns for the top ASB offices, students were asked to state items they would have on their platforms if they were a candidate for the positions.

The answers include:

LINDA MASON—I would advocate better cooperation between the students, senate, and administration. I feel the girls on campus are more mature than the administration thinks, and I would try to get more lenient girls rules. I would also try to look into the prospects of having a catering service at Hinds.

JERRY CORNS—Rights for girls, later date nights, especially for the sophomores, better student relations between the clubs on thecampus, and cooperation of the officers of the senate would head my platform. Officers of the clubs should work together for activities for the students. These activities, as homecoming, should be planned by the student, so the faculty will not have to.

PAULA WILLIAMSON—Reasonable, yet less strict rules should be found for the girls. I also think that we ought to have a regular assembly that students would be required to attend. I would try to promote better school spirit.

ERWIN PEYTON—I would try to see that the library hours were extended to 10:00 p.m. on week nights.

LYNN SMALL—If the library and grill were open on the weekend more students would possibly stay on campus and this would boost school spirit, which I am for. I also like the idea of general assemblies.

SHARON REID — The library should be open on Saturday. My main item on my platform would be to organize and print a complete and explicit girls' rule book.

ED PAYNE — Basically, I would advocate a policy of bringing the administration and student body closer together, so that the student government could operate at peak efficiency.

BEN ARDAHL—I would like to see a little better food in the cafeteria. I would like to see sidewalks that don't collect water every time it rains. I would try to start a campaign to see the book store come down to a nice reasonable price on everything.

CLARENCE HAMILTON — My platform woud be to better the campus and the student body by bringing programs that are educational, longer hours in the library, films, better plays, and work and study for each student.

MARY FRANCES McCULLY — My platform would consist of improving relations between students, and administration, more clubs, and more lenience from the administration for the senate.

LINDA GEOHAGEN—As some colleges do I would like to have facilities for students to be able to study together maybe in the library, student union building, or in the dorms without being disturbed.

ASB Cake Raffle

Today is the big day; time for that yearly happening: the ASB elections.

It is on this day that we humble students are faced with the task of choosing who will lead us throughout the coming school year, so naturally the election is top-most on the minds of all Hinds students.

With this firmly in mind, I set out early this morning to test the sentiments of the campus. To get my own sampling of student political opinion on campus, I have devised my Payne Poll.

First on my list of places to check was the grill where I quickly encountered a typical student to question.

"Why hello there typical Hinds student. I am making a survey of student political feeling on campus. Could you tell me what qualities you look for most in an ASB president?"

"Huh?"

"My good man, surely you know of the Associated Student Body."

"Oh, student bodies. Heck yes. The bodies of some of the students around here are really something. Get a load of that girl over there . . . va va va voom."

"The ASSOCIATED Student Body."

"Bet your sweet life I'd like to get associated with her. Could you introduce me?"

Maybe, I reasoned, this wasn't a typical student. With a stout heart the Payne Poll moved to the library where a cute young co-ed was sitting at study.

"Good morning young lady. I was wondering if I could ask you a few questions about interest in the ASB elections."

"Gee golly, I'd love to help you out because I believe in fully participating in elections, in carefully studying the candidates, their platforms, and their records. A person has to know what's what in an election, its our duty to the democratic system."

"Well," I responded in a relieved voice, "That's some encouraging news."

". . . and that's why I've decided to throw my support behind George Wallace."

This, I had decided by now, was a bad day for a poll. Obviously all the really interested students were out there casting their ballots or urging friends to the voting place. With this in mind, I now headed to the Hindsonian morgue to check out the real picture of an election day as it had been captured in a year of the past.

After a bit of a search I found such an issue and it's story on election day:

" . . . ASB election returns for this year were the highest ever as students cast their ballots for the candidate of their choice. A flock of over 23 students jammed the polling place resulting in some delays by officials swamped by the unexepected turnout.

"Only one major incident marked the otherswise successful election. This was a protest lodged by seven students demanding a recount of the ballots, claiming that they were under the impression that they were signing up for a cake raffle when they voted.

"Election officials, however, ruled these ballots valid resulting in a Chocolate Upside Down Cake capturing third place in the contest."

As I look up with tear filled eyes I notice that it is 4:25 p.m. and the polls close at 4:30 p.m. The heck with it, its too far to walk.

Students To Participate in 'Choice '68'

On April 24 Hinds students will be afforded the opportunity to cast their ballots for who they would like to see as President of the United States.

Students are now beginning all across the nation to take an active part in the campaign of 1968. Perhaps the most important conclusion to be drawn from the first 1968 primaries are not related either to the candidates on the issues. It is something much broader. Namely that effective, articulate, expression of political opinion by students, combined with their active participation, in the political process, can significantly affect the outcome of elections and the shape of American politics.

One of the more amusing side effects, depending on your sense of humor, of Eugene McCarthy's impressive showing in the New Hampshire primary, has been the rather adulatory reaction of the press to the Senator's corps of energetic and intense "ballot children." Originally written off as somewhat pathetic idealistic, McCarthy's student army earned their abundant laurels by helping engineer the first stunning upset of the 1968 presidential campaign. As a result, the well-scrubbed, respectible, and quietly effective "Student Volunteer" suddenly became the darling of the press.

Youth Back in Fold, gushed endless editorials. Democratic Process Works! Nihilism of the New Left Refuted! Generation Gap Bridged! As the New York Times stated eloquently, what other papers expressed garishly, "Senator McCarthy has managed to persuade great numbers of concerned youth that it is possible to make effective protest against existing American policies and practices by traditional democratic means."

This endless journalistic game of lumping all students into one sort and grotesquely misleading generalization thus continues. The archetypal collegian, it now appears, is no longer the student leftist with his picket sign and smouldering draft card. The "average" college student right now, today, is the "concerned" college student — the student whose faith in democracy is slowly but surely being reaffirmed through electorial triumph and later of hard, determined work.

The idealistic gleam of such a student portrait will go far, no doubt, towards re-establishing middle class America's faith in its gold plated youth.

Choice '68, the National Collegiate Presidential Primary, is functioning with a somewhat more spirited, preconception in mind — that, in fact, students do care and do what their opinon registered in a resonable, effective manner. This is the opportunity that is offered to the students at Hinds. We must wait and see if they are willing to accept it.

Fees Due Monday

Room and board fees, in the amount of $65, will be due the business office Monday, April 22 for the third six week's period.

Identification cards will be needed by the student at the time of payment for identification purposes, if the student plans to pay by check.

Student Receives Honor By National Who's Who

Mrs. Wilnelmina Porter, Hinds sophomore from Vicksburg, was recently named to the listing of Who's Who of American Women.

Mrs. Porter is president of the Mississippi Extension Homemakers Council, and also of her local club. She is presently serving as secretary to the National Council.

Scotland Meeting

As a Mississippi representative, Mrs. Porter attended an international meeting of the Extension Homemakers Council in Edinburgh, Scotland. Later, she was a U.S. representative of the National Council to an international meeting in Dublin, Ireland.

Mrs. Porter's local club is responsible for the establishment of the Association for Mentally Retarded in Warren County and the Warren County Safety Council. She served on the Mississippi Women Cabinet of Public Affairs of the Mississippi Council.

Five-Diamond Award

The Five-Diamond Award, the highest award given by the Extension Homemakers Council, has been awarded to Mrs. Porter for her services. In 1962, she was named Woman of the Year by the Progressive Farmers Magazine, for her service to rural women. She also holds the title of the "Chicken Cooking Champion of Mississippi."

This past summer, Mrs. Porter was in charge of the statewide activities for the "Women for Winter." "The most exciting part of my work during the primaries," stated Mrs. Porter, "was to see the interest the young people took in the activities. They were always actively involved. I believe that they will be the salvation of the United States."

At Hinds, Mrs. Porter is a member of Phi Theta Kappa. Although she has not chosen a major, her interest lies in social studies. "People often ask me if it isn't difficult for an older person to come back to school," says Mrs. Porter. "It is, for they must learn to study again. However, they can."

WILHELMINA PORTER

Wall, Riggs Attend Meeting In Texas

Rosser Wall, Dean of Men and Virginia Riggs, head librarian, attended a conference sponsored by the Department of Audio Visual Information in the Astra-Hall, in Houston, Texas, March 24-27.

This conference included the display of equipment devoted entirely to the use of educational media and instruction.

An excess of 500 companies displayed booths for all types of audio-visual equipment. The conference stressed the importance of using the audio-visual forms of education for instruction because of the amount of material students must learn.

Wall stated, "This conference was the best and most informative conference that I have ever attended. This was due partly to the excellent planning."

Miss Doris Fanning Chosen For "Girl Of Month" Award

ASB Elections

Presidential Hopefuls Tell Platforms

Reihle Dedicated To Serve Students

St. Joseph graduate Paul Reihle builds his platform for ASB president around "programs of coordination, communication, and cooperation which can unite this school and produce an unmatched vitality in the students spirits."

At St. Joseph, Reihle was Vice-President of the Senior Class, Vice-President of the Band and was chosen as Rotarian of the Month. He received a drama award, was a recipient of the Vaughey Scholarship, a member of the Junior Classical League and is an Eagle Scout.

Class Favorite

At Hinds, he is a Freshman class favorite, President of the Newman Club, Senator from the Debate Club, a member of FCA and Secretary-Elect of the Circle K Club.

He is also a member of the IRC, the Eagle Band, Co-Chairman of the vespers committee, a delegate to Mississippi Youth Congress, and is a Pre-Law Major.

Unite School

In stating his plans for the race, Reihle stated, "I believe that programs of coordination, communication and cooperation can unite this school and produce an unmatched vitality in the students spirits. I have based my platform on these three words — coordination between student government and administration, communication betweent students and teachers, and the cooperation of all of us.

"These three words of my platform spell — an action student government equaled by none.

"I am a candidate dedicated to the purpose of serving all students to the best of my ability."

Woods Advocates Book Exchange

Alvin Woods, basing his campaign for ASB President on experience, stated, "To direct the student work of a school this size and bring about an acceptable goal, — the man elected must have experience — experience counts."

Wood's platform is centered around the organization of a student book exchange, reorganization and improvement of assembly programs, the inauguration of a sound system of communications on campus, and the investigation of the possibilities of selling stamps in the school post office at a nominal cost.

Social Events

Other plans are the sponsoring of at least one social event on campus per week and the studying of the possibility of making the girl's rules reasonable.

"I seek this office not for the honor, but for the responsibility and privilege of serving my fellow students, and helping them to make the coming year the greatest of our schools history," Woods stated in his campaign.

"I can't promise to be the best student body president HJC ever had, I can't promise to change the girls rules, I can't promise to improve school spirit, but I can promise that I will work hard, I will seek God's guidance, and I will do my very best."

Woods, a pre-law major, is a graduate of Raymond High School where he served as student body president his senior year. He has served as state president of the Future Farmers of America, a member of the National Future Farmers of America Leadership Committee, and chairman of the 1965 state parliamentary law team.

At Hinds Woods serves as a senator, parlimentarian of the senate, and a member of the debate team. A delegate to youth congress, he received a superior rating for parlimentary procedure.

Clark's Platform Favors Activities

ASB Presidential candidate Bobby Clark bases his platform on seeking "an active student government, backed by an active student body, supported by able and cooperative relations with the administration."

A graduate of Raymond High School, Clark was selected to the Hall of Fame, editor of the paper, a student council representative for three years, member of the Beta Club, member of the tennis team for four years, and an Eagle Scout.

At Hinds, Clark is a Senator, member of the Debate Team, and winner of four superior awards; a delegate to Mississippi Youth Congress, a delegate to Mississippi Intercollegiate Council, a member of Phi Rho Pi, member of Westminister and a member of the FCA.

In announcing his candidacy, Clark stated, "In the two major areas of this campaign, the girl's rules and activities on campus, I have strived through the Senate to advance these parts of the campus life at Hinds. I authored a bill to require the student government to sponsor at least one activity per month and amended a motion to establish a standing committee composed of Freshman to study and make recommendations to the administration concerning problems and changes in the girls' rules.

"I believe that realistic improvements can and should be made on the Hinds campus next year; however two things are needed. First we must have a united student body and secondly we must cooperate with the administration. With a united effort and an adult approach we can and will make progress."

Wilford Going Nuts

Uncle Wilford is now in hog heaven now that the official baseball season has opened. He jumps around and beats his head on the wall just waiting until I get out of school this year so we can go see some games. I don't know why he won't go by himself — you know how uncles are. Especially those named Wilford.

He still thinks that the Detroit Tigers and the Pittsburg Pirates will meet in October in the World Series and I must agree with him. The Tigers were beat out on the last day of the season last year for the American League Pennant and the Pirates have acquired great help to their pitching staff with the acquistion of Jim Bunning as a starter and Dave Wickersham as a reliever.

The Pirates ended with an even 81-81 record for the 1967 campaign and they are counting on these two pitchers to win at least 30 more games for them. That should put them in a good position to knock off the St. Louis Cardinals, who still can't be counted out of the race in the National League.

I still like the Baltimore Orioles for the simple reason that they have more clowns on their team than any of the others in the junior loop. With pranksters like Boog Powell, Moe Drabowsky, Paul Blair and Frank Robinson, the Orioles might not win the pennant but I'll be willing to bet they have more fun throughout the 162-game schedule than any of the rest of the clubs.

Writers seem to think that either Roberto Clemente or Matty Alou, both of the Pirates, will take the batting titles in the National League, but personally I can't count out folks like Orlando Cepada of the Cardinals and Henry Aaron of the Atlanta Braves.

Speaking of the Braves, they received quite a shock when they learned that they will have to play without the services of one of the most popular players in their organization, Rico Carty. Carty has been hospitalized with pneumonia and will be unable to participate this year. Carty has been one of the leaders for the Braves in the hits department ever since he came up three years ago. He finished second in 1965 and third in 1966 in the batting championship race. He fell off a bit last year hitting only .299 but there are quite a few players around the biggies that would like to get their average up that high.

All in all, it should be a pretty tight pennant race in both leagues and I guarantee you that Uncle Wilford will never let me forget it if the Tigers and the Pirates win it in their leagues. I don't know why he won't go on and leave me be. He acts like a New York Mets fan sometimes.

Clansmen Sign Dave Wells To Basketball Grant-In-Aid

Hinds standout forward, Dave Wells, Provine sophomore, has recently signed a basketball scholarship to play next season with the Belhaven Clansmen.

Belhaven head coach and athletic director Charles Rugg, in announcing the signing of Wells, expressed pleasure in securing the services of the 6'3" sharpshooter, terming him, "one of the best junior college players in the state," and "the kind of boy we are seeking in the Belhaven athletic program."

21 Point Average

Wells averaged 21 points per game and nine rebounds per contest as a forward for the Eagles this season, runners-up in the state junior college competition. As a freshman at Hinds, the 190-pounder tossed in 10 points per outing as the Eagles won the state tourney.

Although used as a forward in high school and junior college, Rugg indicated that he will use Wells as a guard, possibly teaming him with another Provine grad, Larry Waltman, a sophomore at Belhaven.

Prep Career

Wells' prep basketball career presents a quite interesting story as he had never participated in varsity ball until his senior year at Provine. Wells had, however, led his Boys Club team to a state championship and he was asked to try out for the Provine Ram squad.

Wells responded with 15 points per game and was named to the All-Murrah and All-Forest Hill Invitational Touranments teams in playing a key role in Provine's 19-5 season.

Softball Begins

Bill Oakes, Director of Intramurals, announced than any students interested in organizing a soft-ball team should have a list of players in his office by Thursday, April 11.

Action has already begun for the seven teams that are currently in the league but Oakes urges any students who would like to form a team to do so by his announced deadline.

At Hinds, Cole is vice-president of the Senate, member of the Hinds State Championship Debate team, delegate to the Mississippi Youth Congress, delegate to the Mississippi Intercollegiate Council and a member of Phi Rho Pi.

"Through experience we can have an effective student government, and a united student government," remarked Cole. "With a unified voice from our student government we shall be able to accomplish more for the good of all. We can only accomplish our goals of the future through experience in the past."

McLeod Promotes Efficient Senate

Freshman Bob McLeod of Jackson, cites a platform of "school spirit, club activity, improved administration - student relationship, better government and service to students" as his basis for the office of ASB president.

Born in Hazlehurst, McLeod was educated in the Jackson Public Schools. As a graduate of Central High School, he was a member of the National Thespian Society, Glee Club, Chess Club, Annual Staff and participated in Spring Musical Productions.

While at Hinds, McLeod was vice-president of Lendon Players first semester, treasurer of Phi Beta Lambda, member of Circle K Club, and candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Division One of Circle K International. He is a member of Calvary Baptist Church.

"If I am elected, I will carry reasonable requests of students to the administration and I will promote requests of the administration to the students," stated McLeod. "I will always have the best interests of the students and school in mind and I will strive for top efficiency in the Senate."

Rimes Proposes Student Activities

Larry Rimes, candidate for Associated Student Body President, bases his campaign on a "better student government and more student activities."

A graduate of Florence High School, Rimes participated in track, football, baseball and was a member of both the paper staff and annual staff. He was a member of Beta Club, an honor student and was elected "Best All Around Boy."

At Hinds, Rimes is a member of the Wesley Foundation, Engineering Club, and was elected as Freshman Favorite. He is majoring in Engineering.

"I think the students at Hinds Junior College should have the opportunity to enjoy more student activities," stated Rimes. "If I a melected this is one of the major programs for which I will work."

An Editorial

Students Faced With Decision

As ASB elections draw near, choosing the right candidate for this most important job is once again facing the students of Hinds.

An ASB President must set the pace in student government and work to make the daily humdrum of campus life a more meaningful and worthwhile experience.

Various campaigns have been carried out with promises of more student activities and privileges for the students than ever before. These promises can only be kept if the students elect a capable and able leader who will work with the faculty and not against the best interests of the students.

For that reason the ASB President must be chosen carefully and dliberately. The students of Hinds must be represented by a leader who will listen to the demands of the students but not be mislead by them. He must present only reasonable and needed changes to the faculty for approval. Only an honest leader can represent the students effectively for he is the link that holds the faculty and students together.

ASB President is not a prestige position; it is a position of leadership and hard work aimed at making Hinds a better place of learning. An unwise leader can only serve to hurt the aims and destroy the relationship of student to faculty understanding.

The students should look at the candidates from an objective point of view and then choose a leader from his leadership capabilities and not from his popularity standing. No one can tell you how to vote; only you can make that decision and only you can put an able and willing leader at the head of the student body. — ENA.

Guidance Counselors, Teachers Meet At Hinds To Study Vo-Tech Programs

By ED PAYNE

Guidance counselors and teachers are meeting on the Hinds campus this week to acquaint themselves with the most recent occupational opportunities, training facilities and programs available.

The seminar, which lasts April 23 through April 25, is being sponsored by the Ford Foundation Project for junior college teacher training, located at Mississippi State University. Also cooperating are the State Department of Education, Division of Instruction and Vocational Division; and Hinds Junior College.

Invited to attend the seminar were some 27 counselors and teachers from high schools throughout the Hinds Junior College district of Hinds, Warren and Claiborne counties.

Tours Planned

Included in the week-long program are tours, panel discussions, and talks for the participating counselors and teachers.

Speakers at the seminar include Dr. Robert M. Mayo, President of Hinds; Dr. Harold J. Morris of the Ford Foundation Project; Curtis Summerlin, Assistant Supervisor of Guidance Services, State Department of Education; and Joe McDaniel, Guidance Supervisor of the Vocational Division of the State Department of Education.

See Industries

Tours are being conducted to such places as the major industries of Vicksburg, Vickers, Deposit Guaranty National Bank, and Magna American of Raymond.

The visiting administrators and educators will also be made familiar with the facilities of both Hinds and Utica Institute.

Stated Dave Colston, Co-ordinator of Team Teaching on the Ford Foundation, "The Purpose of our seminar is to acquaint high school counselors in the Hinds Junior College area with vocational and technical facilities at Hinds and vocational opportunities for students in the Hinds Junior College area."

New Voting Record Set In ASB Primary Ballot

When some 700 students at Hinds chose to participate in the first go-round of Associated Student Body elections they won the rather dubious honor of setting a new voting record for the school.

Be it remembered that total enrollment at our school is near 2500, which means that about one fourth of the student body cast ballots. To carry this a bit further, the largest number of ballots received by one candidate was approximately 350.

The students who will be representing you next year, Alvin Woods and Stella Wedgeworth, had a hardy one eighth of the student body caring enough to make a trip to the student union and cast a ballot.

For a student to claim that he was unaware or unable to vote, he would have had to been blind, deaf, lame, and illiterate — or simply not have cared, to have a valid excuse.

It has been said many times, but it is still true, that a representative form of government is effective only so long as people take an active interest in it.

Think about this the next time you have a gripe about Hinds.

Active Clubs Lead Hinds

Organizations on the Hinds campus have probably done more toward publicizing Hinds this year than ever before in the 50-year history of this school.

By being active in all phases of work and receiving statewide and national recognition, these progressive organizations have been successfully setting a forward motion for the outlook of the state's junior colleges. From debate, community service, sports to publications, Hinds has led all others for superior work.

In the area of sports, the Hinds basketball team came within points of becoming the state champs for the second straight year; the varsity debate team has won more tournaments than any other squad in the college's history and the Circle K club won several first places at it's district convention and placed in nearly all others.

Also, the Distributive Marketing Club took several state awards; Phi Beta Lambda placed an officer on the state level; the Hindsonian won the highest rating available to a junior college paper and brought home the trophy for the fourth straight year as the state's best junior college paper; and these are just a few of the honors that organizations have taken.

This list does not include honors that individual Hinds students have won for activities in organizations outside the school and does not name the organizations that are forming on the campus from students eager to participate and help Hinds to better it's image through service and achievement.

It is easy to see why Hinds has continually set the pace among he junior colleges of Mississippi for outstanding academic as well as extra-curricular activities. Yet, it is not every junior college, or senior college for that matter, where you will find a group of students who would willingly set aside activities to help promote an improved image for their school.

Each of these activities, whether in service or sports, shows the pride that these students have in their school. These students deserve all the praise and honor that they can obtain for helping to make Hinds the finest junior college in the state.

Unique Course Teaches Repair Skill

By DAVID HILKERT

Office Machine Repair students at Hinds are probably the only people in the college who realize they are enrolled in a very unique course: the only one in the state.

The course is designed to teach the skills needed to be an outstanding repairman, salesman, supervisor, or general inspector of office machine assembly work.

Office Machines

Emphasis in the course is on the functions and adjustments of all standard office machines, as well as cleaning, repairing and estimating costs of repairs.

Students use and work on live operating equipment (mostly from the Hinds campus), so they may experience problems common to those of an actual job.

Proper Techniques

Early in the course the student learns the main functions and applications of the various parts of office machine equipment. The latter phases of the course are designed to develop proper workmanship habits and techniques for repairing and servicing manually and electrically operated office machine equipment.

Throughout the entire course, however, a continuous problem solving atmosphere is evolved in the shops.

Mechanical Aptitude

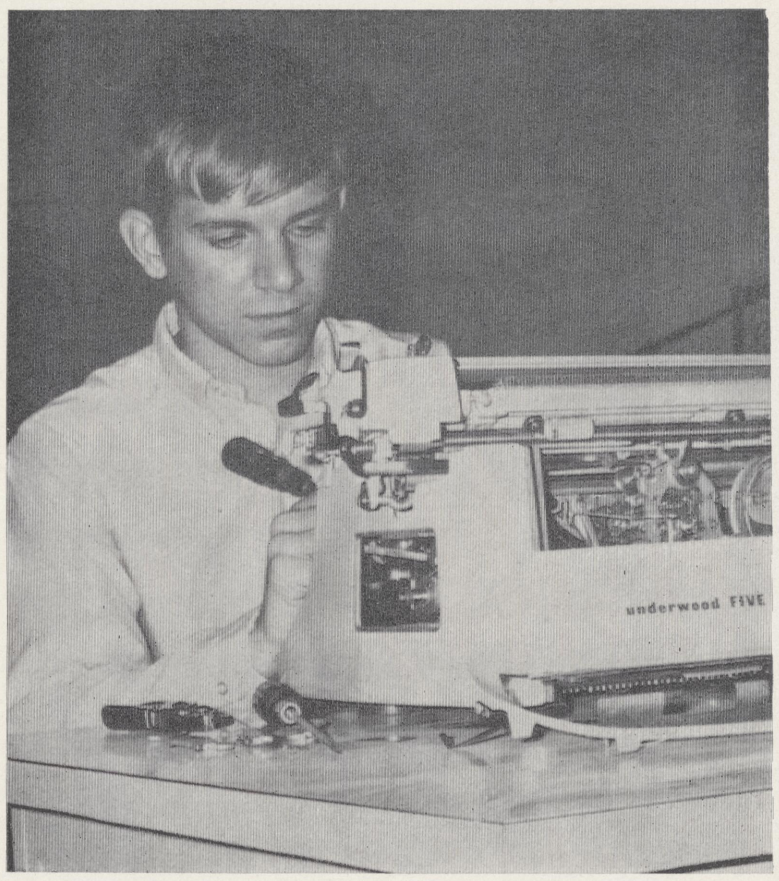
The course is open to anyone with a high mechanical aptitude and a good high school record. "Anyone with a high interest along mechanical lines or a background in electronics could positively benefit from this course," said instructor C .E. Kynerd.

Completion of the course could prepare one for careers as assembler, assembler helper, inspector, tester, foreman, machine adjuster, dealer, salesman or troubleshooter.

Eventually every office machine needs repair, and this requires a constant need by office supply companies for servicemen.

Beginning salaries for qualified office machine repairmen range from $4400.00 to $5600.00.

Four courses are offered under the curriculum of Technical Office Machine Repair. The first of these is Basic Principles in Servicing Office Machines; Advanced Office Machine Maintenance; Electrical Office Machines, and finally Office Machine, Service and Managemen. Each of these courses emphasize theory, principles, and the technical side of maintenance.



TYPEWRITER REPAIR — As part of the Hinds Office Machine Repair course students work on machines from the campus and surrounding area. The course, the only such in the state, is aimed at students who hope to hold positions as repairmen, salesmen, supervisors, or general inspectors of office machines and is taught by instructor C. E. Kynerd. Photo by Harris.

Student Government Limitations Seen

Congratulations. For the first time in history, a record number of students ventured out in perfect weather to cast over 750 votes in the recent ASB elections.

Perhaps this is the first time in history that so many of the students woke up to take any interest. Certainly, the fact that we were providing three excellent candidates from which to choose added some of the voter appeal.

This election was not anything new to many people on campus. Last year the campaign much resembled this recent one.

After looking at this recent campaign and the events of the year, we have some confessions to make. Last year, we also came before you with some rather idealistic ideas and platform planks.

We had high hopes for our student government and felt that by us all working together these ideas could materialize. After a year in office we have learned a great deal about the workings of student government with the major thing being the limitations.

Only by the student realization that limitations do exist and a curtailment to some degree of over-expectations can we achieve a progressive student government. We must be realistic. We know many things sound as if they are our salvation but deep down they can create only despair and more problems. We must look for acceptable solutions with a maximum of advantages and a minimum of disadvantages.

Our campus is no different from all the rest as far as student discontent when campus elections roll around. And as the incumbent you must accept the blame. This year may have criticized the student government of its actions and inactions. The issues remain the same even in this election; student book exchange, cafeteria and more entertainment. We are not going to take up space to defend or attack any of these.

However, we would be more than happy to explain the situation in each case to anyone who writes. All of these sound fine and good but the students have not even scratched the surface of the problem or the solution. We must admit we looked into these areas and found that more problems would be created in other areas if we attempted to do anythng about them.

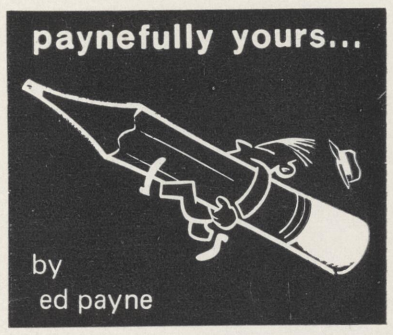
We looked for a solution that is to the best advantage of the student. At the present, the answer is the status-quo. If by doing this we are to be called a failure, then we did indeed fail.

This column is not going to attempt to repudiate any segment of the student body. We do not intend to blame anyone for the negligence of not knowing the function of our student government nor its limitations and actions. However, it is clearly obvious that many do not. Our student body is no different from the voters of Mississippi and the nation.

It is human nature that we tell people what they want to hear. But, we believe it is time for a turn to intelligent voting by telling the voter the truth and not trying to sell him on an idea that is virtually impossible from realization. In the end the person, who does this promising can get burned. We hope that this does not happen. We hope that the student government under the new leadership will seek new dimensions.

This can and will be done with a student awareness of its limitations and the problems of the campus. Hopefully, a realization of the full potential of the student government will result in future years put only with a change in the atmosphere.

We indeed had plenty of controversy this year along with quite a pit of criticism of the student government. Next year is a new year, let us begin anew. We wish our new president good luck because he will certainly need it.



Paper Tiger

Perhaps you have noticed that the Hindsonian has captured a number of awards, both on a national and state level, during the past few weeks.

The staff has really been delighted with all this but still are interested in how the students feel about the Hindsonian. Once again the Payne Poll — remember it? — has come to the rescue.

"The thing that impresses me about the Hindsonian," stated David Dimwitt, who is working on a doctorate in pool shooting, "is the quality of your paper. Matter of fact back home in Chicken Roost, Mississippi, its more popular than the Sears-Roebuck catalogue."

Actually I have a major camplaint against your coverage of the news," declared Henry Hotblud. "For example, take your coverage of the Hinds Honeys, its entirely too complete. Yuk, yuk, yuk."

Engineering student L. Austin Leftfeld felt much could be gained from reading he Hindsonian. "Yes, I find that I can use the Hindsonian for very constructive purposes — mostly the construction of paper airplanes."

Seeking a feminine opinion of the paper, we asked Nancy Looscrew if she read the Hindsonian. "Heavens no. I think you can get a rep for doing that in our dorm. Let me check the rule book . . . "

So much for destructive criticism.

Commission Slates Student Reception For 'Girl of Month'

Social Affairs Commissioner, Bob McLeod has announced that the "Girl of the Month" reception will be held Tuesday, May 7.

The girls selected for each month will be present for the reception to be held in the Student Union Reserve Lounge from 7:30 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.

The girls to be honored at this reception will be: Miss September, Vivian Jarvis; Miss October, Jean Buffington; Miss November, Brenda Pickens; Miss December, Judy Johnson; Miss January, Sherry West; Miss February, Judy Hand; Miss March, Jeannie Brown; and Miss April, Doris Fanning.

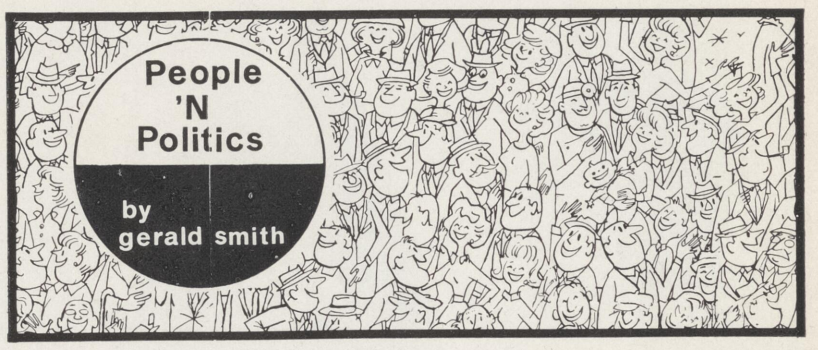
"All students as well as faculty and staff members are urged to make plans to be present for this event. We hope that everyone will want to meet and get to know these girls selected for this monthly honor," stated McLeod.

Under the sponsorship of the Social Affairs Commission headed by McLeod, this was the first year that the honor was bestowed on Hinds girls.

Each of the girls honored by the award were sophomores who were chosen on the basis of popularity, citizenship, and academic work.

The girls were selected by two members of the administration, staff, faculty and students.

"We feel that all of the girls selected have truly been deserving of the honor and have displayed throughout their years at Hinds the qualities we felt the 'Girl of the Month' award represents," concluded McLeod.



Johnson Faction Backs HHH

In Mississippi, the political scene remains fairly dim. Most Mississippians are strongly concerned over the tax increase proposals which have for several weks, and will still confront the legislature in the weeks and months ahead. The legislature has been confronted with numerous important decisions.

A recent amendment to the 1890 Mississippi Constitution was proposed. This amendment would make it possible for a newcomer into the state to possess the right of franchise in state elections after residing in the state for only two years instead of the present four year requirement. In order for this proposed amendment to gain ratification, it must first win approval by two-thirds of the legislature, and then be approved by the voters of the state in a statewide referendum.

In June, voters of the state will vote for United States Representatives in each of the five congressional districts. The deadline for candidates to announce in this Democratic primray was a couple of weeks ago. All incumbents have opposition for this primary.

On the national scene, the shock of President Johnson's announcement not to seek or accept nomination by the Democratic Party is still suffered by political observers everywhere. It is the belief of many, that President Johnson is merely bluffing, and that if he were to be drafted by the convention delegates that he would accept the nomination.

The recent Democratic Governor's Conference was held, with the majority of the Democratic Governors lending their support to a merged HHH-Connally ticket. All Governors, with the exception of Governor John Bell Williams of Mississippi and Governor Lester Maddox of Georgia pledged their support to the Democratic nominees regardless of whom they may be.

Vice President Humphrey, still unannounced for the Democratic nomnation, seems to have captured a great deal of support from the Johnson faction. According to prominent surveys, Humphrey is the front-runner for the nomination over both Kennedy and McCarthy.

No Politics!

There has been much said, and I have been one of those who said it, about the refusal of some of our best basketball players to participate in the Olympic Games and represent the United States.

It appears that it would not have made any difference if they had tried out for the games because the committee that selects these players to represent the USA does not seem to have our country's best interest in mind.

How could they have the best interest of the nation in mind when they leave off our team such proven players as Pete Maravich of LSU, Wesley Unsled of Louisville, Don May of Dayton, and Tom Boerwinkle of Tennessee? The whole trials reeked from the odor of politics. There is absolutely no place in the world of sports for politics.

Listen to the evidence that appeared in George Lapides column in the Memphis Press-Scimitar. Mr. Lapides had recently talked to Mike Butler of Memphis State who is also one of those that received a somewhat unjust treatment at the Olympic trials.

"Mike didn't make the U.S. Olympic team and he's extremely disappointed about that. But he's even more disappointed at the way the team was chosen and that some other great players — namely Pete Maravich — were not picked either. 'It's really a shame, some of the things that went on at the trials,' Butler says. 'Great, great basketball players didn't have a chance to make the team.'

" ' I honestly do not think it is fair to ask someone to try out for the team and then not give them a fair chance to make it. I'm not saying we don't have a good Olympic team, you couldn't have picked a bad one among those players. But some of the best players were left off. I honestly think I'm a better basketball player than a few of those who were picked. And Maravich, believe me is the greatest. It seems to me that the boys from the South just didn't have a chance from the beginning,' Mike summed up.

" ' When I played, I played real well, Butler adds. 'But the Olympic committee and Coach Henry Iba didn't see enough of me to determine what kind of player I was.' "

Butler doesn't sound like a crybaby talking to me. He sounds like he has a legitimate beef.

When a sophomore first-team All-American (Maravich), and when a two-year second team All-American (Boerwinkle), and when a two-year first team All-American (May) and when a three-year first team All American (Unseld) can not make the Olympic team, something other than basketball ability must have gone through the judges minds. This had to be politics and again I say, there never has been, there is not now, and there never will be, a place for politics in the world of sports.

Elected Tuesday

Paul Reihle To Serve As New Senate Prexy

Jackson freshman Paul Reihle was elected to serve as President of the Associated Student Body Senate for the 1968-69 academic school year in voting at the ASB senate meeting April 30.

Three students were in the running for the office of senate president. The three, nominated at last week's senate meeting, were Louis Aldridge, Mrs. Edna White, and Paul Reihle.

Surprise Move

Aldridge pulled a surprise move by withdrawing from the race and throwing his support behind Paul Reihle.

This year's senate president, during the tabulation of ballots, spoke to the two remaining candidates asking the winner to "work with the President of the ASB, to work during the summer to help coordinate the functions of the student government."

Thanks Senators

In accepting next year's senate presidency, Reihle stated, "I would like to thank the senators for their votes and to ask that we all work together."

Then senate also passed one bill and went on record as approving another measure.

Punch ID's

Other business during the meeting included the passage of a bill by Billy Carmichael calling for the punching of ID cards during elections. The measure made this action mandatory to vote and ordered that space be provided for the purpose.

Alvin Woods asked that the senate go on record as approving a measure to build a rodeo arena on the campus for rodeo activities to be held in during the future.

Woods, who was recently elected as next year's ASB president, also asked the senators to make suggestions for students who might serve as commissioners for the coming school year.

'Steppers To Sponsor Three Night Pageant

Miss Hinds Contest To Take Place In College Auditorium On May 21-23

By ED PAYNE

Auditions are being held for the three night Miss Hinds Pageant which will take place in the college auditorium May 21-23, starting at 8:00 p.m. each night.

The first two nights of the contest will be devoted to choosing 12 contestants, six each night, to participate in the finals, May 23.

'Best Contest'

"By holding the pageant on three nights we hope to have the biggest and best contest Hinds has ever had," stated Pageant director Mrs. Anna Bee. "It will also allow more girls to participate in the competition, thus giving the judges a better selection," she added.

The girls will be judged on swimsuit, evening gown, and talent categories all three nights. The judges of the contest, whose identities will not be revealed, will come from outside the Hinds district.

May 10 Deadline

Deadline for signing up to audition for the pageant is May 10. Forms may be obtained at the Public Relations Office in the Student Union Building. Insight To Plan Required For Challenge Of Students Challenge yourself. Now, that sounds pretty menacing, doesn't it. It's really quite simple. Challenge yourself.

First of all, challenge yourself academically. Three weeks of classes remain in this semester of school. The natural tendency of students is to let down and glide through the remainder of school, resting on their laurels earned in the earlier part of the term.

The average student daydreams of things other than that dull history or math class, yearns to be away from the "gibberish" of Tennyson, cringes at the thought of learning the schizoid tendencies of a particular person — and sees himself far removed from the monotones of the instructor.

The challenge is missing.

And then there is the student who is a good deal ahead of that other fellow who plans to let these final weeks slip carelessly by in a daydream and ease his way out of college. This new fellow is way ahead of him, yes sir. He's been gliding since the start of the semester, and he's plenty good at it.

He has mastered that advanced art of professional daydreaming — that person that is so good at it, that he can be deeply ingrossed in another world, and still convince the teacher that he hears every word and grasps the deepest meanings without so much as giving the hint that his mind is anywhere but there between his ears.

He's pretty cool and way ahead of his chum . . . yet, there is always that little lingering thought in his mind, that one day in the near future, he is going to have to get down and do those book reports, learn that memory work, remember to get those different parts of the inside of the cat learned for his zoology class . . . yes, that day will have to come.

His challenge is there. But he's cool enough to ignore it.

These two types of students are playing their cards in a conformative manner, even though they sincerely believe that they are being individualistic in delaying, and setting aside for tomorrow. They are playing their cards against high odds: the draft, a lower economic strata, and a depressive feeling of failure . . . but they are playing their cards.

Their challenge is there, though they may not realize it.

Oh, yes, there, is one other type of student that fits into this cross-section.

This one is a little different.

This student daydreams occasionally, but does not make a habit of it. Believing in doing things in advance, rather than rushing to catch up, this particular student is caught up in his school work, and is in no worry over whether an incomplete in some course will mar the record of marks, or whether a failure to complete some assignment will keep him from graduating.

Yes, this student believed that by setting a goal for himself, the work would come easier to him, and the problems would be simpler to solve. The rocks in the road to success for this student were pebbles, because he had insight enough to plan first.

This student saw his challenge and met it. There was no need for frantic searching in the few short weeks before the semester ended. The goal was set, and the long journey was made; but for the student who had planned and labored as the problems arose, the journey was not unenjoyable.

Yes, your challenge is there, and yes, there is three weeks of school left. But is there time enough for you? — JC.

Over Vietnam Concern

Students Rebuke 'Class Cut' Protest

By GAYLE BECK

Last Friday, students in some colleges and universities voiced their concern over the Vietnam war and our involvement in it, by cutting classes. This organized protest was even sanctioned by some college administrators and teachers.

Students on the HJC campus were asked if they approved of the teachers and administrators actions, and if they believe that the students who supported this move accomplished anything and if so, what?

BUFFINGTON

BLACKBURN

These are the answers:

GERALD SMITH — No, I don't think teachers should have voiced approval. Students should not have cut classes because there is a time and place for everything. I do feel more students should show concern for our boys in Vietnam.

MYRA MAYS — What is cutting classes doing to stop the war in Vietnam? Teachers and administrators are not over there fighting, so how can they endorse cutting classes for something they may not know anything about. If the students keep on they could be kicked out of school and drafted and then they will find out what it is all about.

JUNIOR THOMPSON — Yes, they accomplished something, but cutting classes was not the right thing to do. Teachers and administrators were right because they showed people they too wanted something done about the war.

KENNY SWENSON — Student body and teachers were right, but they only hurt themselves by cutting classes. To cut classes was ridiculous.

SHERRY WRIGHT — I don't see how they could have acomplished anything. They could have expressed themselves in another way. It is important for them to express their feelings, but I don't see what cutting class had to do with it. I don't see why teachers condoned it. It doesn't make sense.

CANDLER BLACKBURN — The teachers were right in what they were doing. We may be the next ones to go fight or serve our country. The students want something done. They know it is a war and men are losing their lives fighting against communism. Some of the students were really concerned, and some did it just because it was something to do. It was an act to show concern.

WARREN ROWE — I don't think teachers should condone cutting classes, however it is an important issue. The idea is good, but I don't think they gained anything, they just defied school policies. They should express their concern in different ways. What they did, did not effect the feelings of the students.

LIPSCOMB

SMITH

JEAN BUFFINGTON — I don't feel the students gained anything. They were only hurting themselves by their act, but they did show they care what is going on. It is up to the student to decide whether to cut, it is his loss. Yes, the teachers should condone it if that is what they wanted the student to do.

THOMPSON

WRIGHT

GARY KNIGHT — Our chief concern here is education. Demonstrations are not good, but we do have a right to express our opinion. Teachers were wrong, they were defeating their purpose as a teacher. We have a right and a duty to show our concern, but another means should have been chosen. They were probably looking for an easy way out. They only defeated the purpose of college.

JUDY LIPSCOMB — No the students are paying for school and when they cut they are losing money. It was a foolish act. I don't see how any teacher could condone it. They should be concerned about the students getting an education. What they did didn't prove anything or show their concern.

place in the progress of the college. It seems time to make the student an integral part of the college. This is the job of the student government which can with the needed funds provide the activities to make the student an important part of the school.

However the student government is helpless in this area unless it has the funds with which to operate to its full potential.

The inferior status of the student has no place in a modern college. Perhaps in relation to our sister junior colleges we have not become modern in all areas.

Will we continue to attend an archaic college in new buildings? The question remains unanswered for now but the answer is there. We only need the realization of our full potential and resources to step into this century.

SUMMER FUN — Hinds students may now enjoy the nine hole golf course which is open to their disposal and will be able to use the boating and swimming facilities which will be opened May 18. Popular Spot

Raymond Lake Offers Summer Fun

By GAYLE BECK

Spring and summer mean golf, skis, boats, and swimming to most young people. HJC students are no exception, and now they have at their disposal a beautiful 36-acre lake and a nine hole golf course.

Raymond Lake is a popular spot this time of year. Provided for the college's recreation, it was built in the late 1930's by the WPA and was used then entirely for fishing. Although fishing is still available, most patrons prefer the sun and skis.

Course Open

G. A. White, caretaker of the lake and course stated, "The golf course is open now, and the swimming and boating area will be opened on May 18."

Admission fee for the lake is 10c for children and 25c for adults, however Hinds students are admitted free with their identification card. Dock fees for boats will be 50c during the week and $1.00 during weekends and holidays. This includes payments for three passengers and an additional passenger is charged an extra 25c.

Golf Rates

Golf rates are 50c during the week and $1.00 on weekends and holidays. Here again HJC students will be admitted free.

White commented, "With the opening of the area I would like to encourage all students and visitors to take part in this recreation. I would like to encourage them also to take care of the facilities because they do belong to them, and to learn how to handle the equipment."

Roomy Lodge

Adding also to the lake area is a roomy lodge for eaing and sleeping. It was added some years after the lake was built by the Jackson Optimist Club. Until 1948 it was used by the club as a boys' camp during the summer months.

Eventually the lodge was turned over to Hinds County. In the early 1950's Hinds' President Geo. M. McLendon, saw the possibility of creating a recreational area, not only for Hinds students, but for the people of Hinds county as well.

Blue re-admission forms are now available in the Registrar's office for those students interested in attending the summer term, said Miss Herrin.

Annual Presentation Slated For Tuesday

Editor McNair To Make Dedication In Assembly At Auditorium May 14

By JUDY JOHNSON

Dedication of "The Eagle" Hinds campus yearbook, in the annual formal assembly, has been scheduled for Tuesday, May 14 in the college auditorium at 9:15 a.m.

During this assembly, "Eagle" Editor Ginger McNair will present the first copy of the book to the person to whom the annual is dedicated.

Immediately after the assembly, students may pick their annuals up in the Public Relations office. Students must present their ID cards when they come for their annuals.

Fifty Years

The theme of this year's "Eagle" is "Fifty years . . . Hinds in Motion." The book contains 208 pages, which is an increase of 24 pages over last year's 184 page yearbook.

The annuals will reveal the name of the girl chosen as Most Beautiful on campus. The book includes the most color ever to appear in the "Eagle."

McNair Edits

In charge of this year's "Eagle" were: Ginger McNair, Editor; Beverly Nations, Assistant Editor; Charles Harris, Chief Photographer; Janice Becknell and Flora Jo Rives, Class Editors responsible for 22 pages composing the Freshman and Sophomore classes.

Danny McKenzie, Sports Editor, is responsible for 28 pages; and Judy Johnson, Organizations Editor, responsible for 30 pages. Sherry Webb served as a staff member.

The other 98 pages are contained in the Introduction, Table of Contents, Dedication, Faculty and Administration, Vo Tech, Features, Dubious Achievements, Student Directory, and Editor's Message pages.

Contains Directory

Sponsor, Ralph Sowell, Jr., noted that "This year's book features a Student Directory not included in the "Eagle" in recent years." This list includes the names of all studens enrolled at Hinds during the 1967-1968 school session and the city from which they come.

The annual was published in Dallas, Texas by Taylor Publishing Company.

New Cheerleaders Named By Sponsor

Newly chosen cheerleaders for the 1938-69 school year were officially announced Friday, May 3, by faculty sponsor and physical education instructor Mrs. Susan Dean.

Four football cheerleaders include: Barbara LaNell Campbell of Jackson; Vicki Downing, Raymond; Delores Morgan, Clinton; and Brenda Wilkinson of Pelahatchie.

The basketball cheerleaders chosen were Karen Newton, Cheryl Keifer and Susan Stevens, all of Jackson.

Three freshmen will be elected in the fall to serve with the sophomore cheerleaders. Two freshmen will be elected also at that time to serve as basketball cheerleaders.

Cheerleader Tryouts Show Lack Of Student Interest

Tryouts were held last week for girls to fill the positions of sophomore football and basketball cheerleaders for next year. Usually an election follows these tryouts.

Things will be different this year.

Out of approximately 2500 students attending Hinds Junior College, seven girls signed up to tryout for the position of cheerleader for next year.

Now, there are seven positions open; four in the football season and three in the basketball season. Additional cheerleaders, the freshman counterparts of the squad, are elected next year. Isn't it remarkable that exactly four girls signed up for the football positions while exactly three girls signed up to be basketball cheerleaders.

It is quite ridiculous to think that out of the large number of students attending Hinds, only seven would have the interest to sign up to srve as a cheerleader and to represent our school.

Whether the students know it or not there are definite advantages in being a cheerleader.

First of all as a cheerleader you would represent Hinds at athletic functions, and help to bring about a little spirit, something that is quite defunct at the present time.

Next you would be helping to promote the image of Hinds by showing the huge (sic) amount of school spirit that this school has and by exhibiting it to the public.

Lastly there is a good deal of honor and prestige that goes with the job of cheerleader. You are an elected official of this college and a person that the other students look up to. Your job is something to be proud of.

Where have all the girls gone . . . where has all the pride gone? — JC.

Dropout Percentage Falls

Are drop-outs a problem at Hinds Junior College? Although there is a certain percentage of students who quit school after enrolling, the number that fails to continue their studies is small.

In a breakdown recently released by the registrar's office, percentages showed that there is a 5% increase in Freshman students staying in school and re-enrolling for the second semester over similar figures issued last year.

The figures show that students who comprise the 5% difference are not the ones who arbitarily quit school and go to work or become dis-enchanted with their studies.

The percentile change occurs in the students whose grades are not good enough to keep them in school and they in turn end up on the suspended list. Therein lies the key to the large dropout problem.

Although some students' dropout because of reasons concerning things other than poor grades there are few excuses for leaving school other than to transfer, family problems or the beckoning gesture of Uncle Sam.

Sophomore dropouts percentages did not vary from last year but 1%. Some students could interpret this to mean that students are getting smarter, staying in school to avoid the draft, or that the first year is really the hardest to get through.

Whatever reason you have been thinking about using, think it over carefully. The road is not as long as it seems.

Acton Collects Snakes For Hobby

By ED PAYNE

When spring comes to the land, a young man's thoughts often turn to—well, you know, we call it "snaking." But when Jackson sophomore Kenny Acton sets out to go snaking he isn't kidding, he's really going after some snakes.

Catching snakes has been Kenny's hobby since he was about the age of 10. As he put it, "I started with frogs and worked my way up."

King Snakes

Presently his collection includes three king snakes, who, for those that are curious, are named, "Snake, snake, and snake." Although he isn't positive, Acton stated that he believes that two are males and one is a female. But, like the old saying goes. who would really care besides another snake?

Kenny catches all his snakes in the same simple manner: he finds them, sneaks up on them, and pins their heads to the ground with a forked stick. He claims finding the snakes is the hardest part.

Summer Affair

Snake hunting is a warm weather affair. It comes with spring and, for Acton, hits its height during the summer months when he usually has some 25 snakes, plus other assorted reptiles in captivity.

Food for the inmates includes frogs, rats, toads and large insects. A snake of average interest is kept by Acton for a month to a month and a half, while an exceptional fellow might rate a full summer stay. In early fall Acton once again returns to the same general location in which he caught his individual snakes and lets them go.

"One of these days I would like to get up a collection of snakes in formaldehyde, but I can't bear to kill them," explained snake charmer Acton.

Snake Bitten

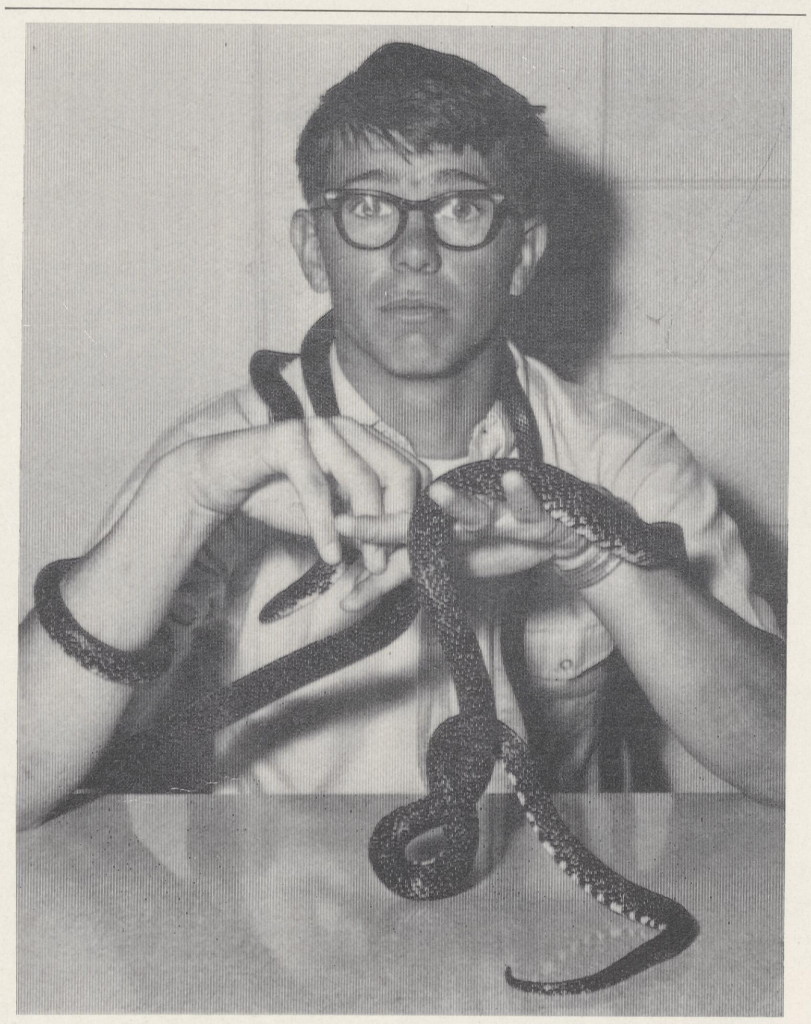
The feeling has not always been mutual, for Acton has suffered snake bites several times. All of them, however, were inflicted by non-poisonous snakes who "just nick your skin pretty good." This had not affected Kenny though. He still collects rattlesnakes and, his favorite, copperheads with no fear. "I am respectful, not scared," he explained.

His parents have a little more fear and a little less respect, Acton admits. There was, for instance, the day his mother entered the wash room and discovered, to her surprise, a jar full of chicken snakes above the washer. Later, when one of the snakes in the jar got away, Acton wore dirty clothes for several days until the fugitive was found.

Know Your Snakes

What are Acton's rules for those amateurs of you out there who might want to take up this hobby? Well, first it's nice to know your snakes, their habits and habitats Then, it pays to be careful around water and water snakes who are more aggressive than their land cousins. Also bear in mind that snakes are made nervous by sudden movements. Finally, it is sad but true that snakes can not be tamed, only gentled down about being handled—so don't expect any affection for your troubles.

If any of you still want to get out there and take up snake capturing. take it from Kenny Acton, "Its an interesting challenge. Just keep in mind that snakes shouldn't be destroyed . . . but should always be respected."



ACTON RELAXING — Jackson sophomore, Kenny Acton, spends most of his spare time snake hunting. Presently his collection includes three king snakes, who are named, "Snake, snake, and snake."

Constant Learning

In the introduction of speakers one often hears such statements as "He was educated at Hinds and the University of Mississippi, etc." This statement is only a half truth. No one ever finishes his education. It begins at birth and continue through life.

The person who thinks of graduation as the completion of his education will never be more than half educated. We are prone to refer to education in its narrowest sense as a formal or organized experience in an academic and planned environment.

At best then all of us, even the recognized scholars and the learned men of science and the humanities, are only partially educated. The breadth of knowledge the truly educated man seeks to attain is indeed awesome and one can hope during the span of a lifetime to only partially achieve this goal.

The organization of learning into the major disciplines such as one finds in a college or university is man's best attempt to orfanize teaching, study and learning. This process is not the only way man seeks knowledge, understanding and wisdom, but it is a way and it seems to be the best way man has yet devised to achieve at least part of his educational objective.

All of us have known a few rare individuals who have had little advantages afforded by formal education but through their efforts, self-discipline, native ability and the desire to organize themselves and their time have obtained a surprising amount of knowledge, understanding, and wisdom. I have observed that one thing these rare people have in common is an uncommon amount of intellectual curiosity and a burning desire for facts and knowledge.

If one wants to be educated there are some things he must learn. He must know something of the humanities — man's languages, literature, art, music, religion and philosophy — the fields in which man's ability to express himself as man is most evident.

If you are to be educated you must learn of the natural sciences — mathematics, chemistry, physics, geology,. astronomy and their applications to our environment. Only by doing this can one understand the world in which he lives, the physical laws that govern it and how man uses and adapts to it.

Finally, one must learn something of what man has learned very slowly and not very well — how men get along with each other. The social scieinces — economics, sociology, phychology, history, and political science — all offer a challenge to the person who would like to understand more of mankind.

You who are sophomores will within a few weeks be leaving these classrooms, laboratories, and shops. Whether you enter a liberal arts college, a large university, or the business and industrial world, your real education

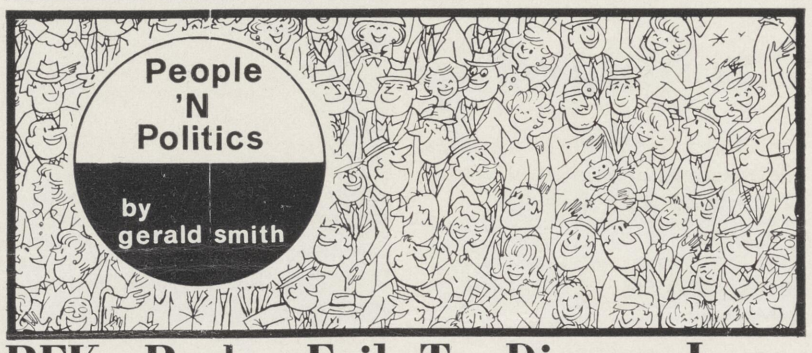
SUMMER MISSIONS — BSU members on the Hinds campus have earned money during the year by selling apples, sandwiches, and cookies in the dorms, and having concessions at track meets, to reach their goal of $668.68 to aid in sending 14 Mississippi students as summer missionaries.



RFK, Rocky Fail To Discuss Issues

'No Mo Gas Tax'; not for a while anyway. The Mississippi legislature failed to approve the tax increase proposal of Governor John Bell Williams' new, ambitious highway program.

The reason many of the legislators gave for voting against this proposal was that they would not risk going to the extreme of increasing gasoline tax before first being introduced to and familiarized with the unveiled proposals of the extensive program.

On the national scene, Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York has now maneuvered back into the contest for the Republican nomination for president. Political observers everywhere believe that Rockefeller's decision reflects optimism from the Johnson withdrawal. With Rockefeller back in now, there stands two active rivals for the nomination. Richard Nixon, who well leads all other potentials including Rockefeller. has been actively campaigning for several months now.

Rockefeller, who represents the extreme liberal faction of the Republican organization, offers a choice for Republicans. Richard Nixon seems to have the almost solid support of the old Goldwater bunch.

Most true conservatves inside the Republican structure, however, prefer the nomination of Constitutionalist Governor Ronald Reagan of California to the former vice-president.

Chairman Clark Reed of the Mississippi Republican Party recently suggested that the majority of Republicans throughout the nation were what he termed, 'responsible conservatives." Frankly, this is not so true ,as many Republican leaders, particularly those who hold commissions in Congress, have voted numerously with Johnson's "Great Society" errand boys and girls.

On what is literally called the Democratic side, Humphrey, who according to the top polls leads over both McCarthy and ennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination, has made an all-out

Party Isolation Hampers State Progress

This week's column is a little different since it has nothing to do with the student government of Hinds.

However, we felt it was time that a different opinion was expressed from that of the column "People 'N Politics." We must admit that we are not the political analyst that the columnist is. Frankly, we can't quite come up with the same political logic he does.

In his last column he talked of the downfall of American education through federal control. We doubt if our educational system prior to 1954 was near perfection as the writer stated.

It seems to us that today we have better paid teachers, more funds for building, and much better libraries to use. Certainly most of these advances in the state of Mississippi came about with the help of the Federal government. We often hear many Mississippi politicians attacking the federal government for the "evil" things but you must admit, no one is willing to cut off the hand that feeds us.

Another statement made was that "when education is taken away from the state and local provinces, education becomes a tool of tyranny." This is supposedly what is hapening now according to our columnist. Is it time to return to the good old days where this situation cannot occur?

You remember hearing about the good old days in American education; when the Governor of Mississippi could censor any book used in any school in the state. He also had the libraries "cleaned out" to protect our youth. Freedom existed in Louisiana in the good old days too.

Governor Huey Long had seven members of the LSU school paper expelled because he didn't like what they said. Yes, those were the good old days when the federal government didn't use education as a tool of tyranny.

We doubt if they are doing it like that today either. Those were the days when the only tyranny existed in the state. From far and near arose the cry for state's rights. If we are going to have tyranny let the states do it. That seems to be the logic of the super patriots that exist across this state of ours.

We feel as many Mississippians do that it is time for a complete re-evaluation of our politics. For too long now we have been out of the councils of both major parties. It is now time to once again join the mainstream of American politics.

We can accomplish nothing by standing alone against two stronger groups. Success lies in becoming a part of one of the two groups. If we hope to place a Mississippian on the road to national leadership we must ourselves become national Mississippians.

The road is long and rough but we can make it. Already we can see change in the political system of our state. Perhaps in a few more years flowery demagogery and nineteenth century emotionalism will have no place in our state. The death of the pseudo-American in Mississippi will have occurred.

We subscribe to the dream that Mississippi can and will some day become the greatest state in the union. We have the opportunity for change and we have the resources needed. We can achieve this dream when the bonds of stagnation are cast off by both our politicians and press.

When all Mississippians become true citizens and productive citizens of a great state then we can only go forward with greater strides than today. If you look at what our state is today with only 50% of the population producing just think what it could be if 100% of our citizens were productive.

If we accept this challenge we can move toward the American mainstream and have a dynamic voice in our country's leadership potential. In the future Mississippi can be the best state in this Union. Other states will look to Mississippi for the vision to solve their problems because we will have already solved ours.

In a few weeks many of our students will be leaving going on to senior college or on to work. The choice lies with these people as to whether or not we wish to realize our full potential in our state. We do hope that our students will go on to graduate from college and remain in Mississippi and accept your opportunity to help build the future Mississippi.

Certainly a future that we can all be proud of must be achieved. The resources for a successful job are already here if we only desire to use them. It is up to you to invest yourself in this future for Mississippi; it is the wisest investment you will ever make.

By DANNY McKENZIE

Old Man Weather just can't outsmart 21 years of coaching experience when it comes to track meets.

Coach Joe Renfroe, coordinator for the Mississippi Junior College Track Meet held here Saturday, barely defeated the rain as the final lap of the final event, the mile relay, brought down light showers, with the bottom dropping out as the runners crossed the finish line.

Perkinston Bulldogs out distanced the Holmes Bulldogs in the total points category but the Eagless from Hinds were not left completely off the scoreboard as Bubba Kynerd set a new state junior college record in the mile run with a time of 4:26.7.

Larkin Honored

Glenn Larkin of Perkinston was selected as the most valuable performer of the meet as he sped to wins in the 100 and the 220-yard dashes and held down legs on the 440 and 880-yard relay teams.

Farewell To Greats

Two of the finest men to ever play the game of baseball are no longer in the major leagues. The time has come for Ken Boyer and Stu Miller to end their long and colorful carers and return to the normay way of living.

They have been handed their outright release by their teams, the White Sox for Boyer and the Braves for Miller, and they are free to make their own deals. A cloud of doubt, however, is hovering over every major league ballclub as to whether or not they are to old to withstand the rigors of the 162-game schedule that is demanded of the chosen ones that participate in major league baseball.

The game of baseball has lost two fine gentlemen, but let's face it, a time comes when all of us no longer can deliver the services that are demanded of us and we must turn in our gear for good.

From the Sporting News comes the following: "Night baseball can be a nuisance, at least to the neighborhood, by a unanimous decision of the Illinois Appellate Court.

"The Appellate Court, by a 3-0 vote, upheld a lower court ruling that owner Phillip K. Wrigley and directors of the Chicago Cubs were maintaining public responsibility in declining to install lights at Wrigley Field.

"The ruling came on a stockholders's suit charging that directors of the Chicago National League club were acting against the stockholders interest by refusing to install light for night baseball at Wrigley Field."

Now all that is very interesting but here comes the clincher: "The court placed night baseball in the same category as water and air pollution."

Sizzlers Set Pace As Softball Opens

Intramural softball rounded out its first week of action with the Sizzlers setting the pace by claiming two wins against only one loss in the opening contests.

In the Sizzlers first game, Jimmy Powers and Nub Grogan each hit a home run to lead their team to a 16-4 win over Central. In their second win, it was again Grogan who led them to victory as he collected five hits, including a home run, three doubles and a single as the Sizzlers turned away the Hustlers 26-3.

Payne Amendment Faces Opposition At Senate Meeting

Senators discussed a proposed constitutional amendment at length and passed a "no conflict of interest" bill at the May 7 Associated Student body senate meeting.

The bill, authored by Paul Reihle, called for "no club, organization, or teacher "to sponsor an activity or club meeting between the hours of 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 on Tuesdays when the senate meets.

By Senate OK

The bill further called for "any club wishing to sponsor an activity, on or off the campus on the Tuesday of the Senate meeting between the hours of 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 to have to first "have the expressed permission of the Hinds Junior College Senate."

Next introduced was a constitutional amendment for the consideration of the senate. Authored by Ed Payne, the amendment would change the term of the ASB President and officers.

Prexy Change

They would be "elected before the end of the first semester of the academic school year and take full charge of (their) office the following semester. continuing (their) term until the close of the first semester of the next academic school year."

Senators debated the pros- and cons- of the amendment with ASB President Bill Cole pointing out that many other schools have adopted the measure and ASB President-elect Alvin Woods claiming the amendment would cause the senate to suffer one inexperienced semester.

Postpones Motion

Woods introduced a motion to postpone voting on the amendment indefinately although Payne and Cole argued the amendment had only been under consideration and thus the senate could take no action against it. The motion passed, however, and the amendment was postponed.

The next senate meeting, to be the final one of the year, will be held May 21.

Senator Robert Kennedy, the son of a wealthy former ambassador to England, and the brother of a late President of the United States, who fell into oblivion at the hand of a communist conspiracy, gives many the impression of a "spoiled brat," which frankly is a title he deserves until he proves himself otherwise.

Instead of proposing what he would do as President to better the U. S. he appears before large audiences of supposedly intelligent people with a silly grin on his face maneuvering all around the vital issues, just as Governor Rockefeller has done almost every time he is called upon to express his views on the Viet Nam situation.

Governor George Wallace is the ONLY man in the race for President who has discussed to the fullest, with plans, the problems and issues which affect the well being of a domestic and defensive America. Time will tell who will make the United States the best president. Many issues remain to be debated and discussed before a decisive point will be reached by many.

Early Registration Urged For '68 Summer Session

Registrar Mildred Herrin has issued several statements recently regarding the necessity for registering early for the summer session of school.

Current figures in relation to the number of students complying with the request show that a small number of students are planning to return or just that a small number of students want to register early.

Students who do not have definite plans for the summer months should seriously consider the possibility of spending their time pursuing academic courses at Hinds. The ten week summer term is the equivalent of two semesters with the student capable of earning up to 12 semester hours.

The summer term not only lets the student earn additional hours toward a degree but it also encourages students to take additional academic courses to strengthen deficiences in certain fields.

A student may pursue a number of courses from accounting through zoology. The courses carry the same amount of credit and are equal in quality with those of the regular session. This means of course that all courses taken where credit is earned that regular accreditation goes along with these.

In addition to the regular academic work of the summer term, there are also recreational activities available to the student. Tennis, volleyball, basketball, shuffleboard, archery, trampoline, and badminton along with the facilities of the golf course and Raymond Lake.

So if you have been putting off the idea of registering early or if you haven't really decided what to do this summer, give a thought to attempting the summer term at Hinds. You might learn something.—JC

Lake Recreations Open

May 18 will mark the opening of Hinds Junior College's Raymond Lake recreational facilities to the public. This annual event brings a wide variety of summer activities within easy reach of Hinds students and offers warm weather fun for people of any and all ages.

The center of attraction is the beautiful 36-acre lake which gives students the opportunity to try their luck at fishing, swimming, or simply enjoying the warm summer sun and try to forget the hectic pace of living they have to bear.

Included in the lakeside facilities are a boat dock to accommodate motorboats and skiers, a bath house for the convenience of swimmers, and a picnic area for those who simply want to dig in the eats.

Rounding out the list of facilities the lake recreational area has to offer for the convenience of Hinds students is the nine hole golf course for those aspiring to be future Arnold Palmeres or Jack Nicholases.

The cost for this large assortment of recreational facilities? For Hinds students admission to the golf course and lake area is free if they have their identification cards.

You can't ask for a better bargain than that. — EP

'Reserve Privilege'

Students Debate Exemption Standards

By JOANN NEAL

Graduating sophomores with a "B" average are exempt from their final exams. Recently, Hinds students were asked the following question concerning exemption: What are your feelings toward letting all students, regardless of classification, graduating or not, being exempt from their final exams if their average is a "B" or better. The answers were as follows.

GINGER McNAIR — I worked harder my last semester of my sophomore year so that I would not have to take the exams. I feel that if all students could be exempt, they would work harder to maintain a "B" average so that they would not have to take their finals.

BOBBY CLARK — No, I do not think that all students should be exempt because they have a "B" average. It is a privilege that must be earned by two years of work. Giving the privilege to all students would be a step toward regression. Perhaps, the privilege could be extended however, as a special privilege to members of the student government, as is done on other campuses.

BECKY DORSEY — Yes, I think it's a good idea because if anybody works hard enough to get a "B," they should be exempt.

SUSAN STEVENS — Yes, I think it would be a good idea to extend the privilege to freshmen, also, because it would make the student work hard both years.

LIZ GREENWOOD — I think that the requirement of a "B" average for graduating sophomores is fine. However, if the privilege is extended to other students, the requirement should be a higher average, perhaps an "A."

PHILLIP JONES — No. Although I would like to be exempt, I think the privilege should be reserved for graduating sophomores.

PAUL REIHLE — No. Because freshman should be disciplined by having to take the exams.

DICKY KILBY — Yes, I think everybody should be exempt if they have a "B" average.

JANICE BECKNELL — I feel that all students should be exempt from second semester finals if they have a "B" average. This seems to give each student the incentive to try harder. I know it made me work harder.

WOODY CRAPPS — I don't think the privilege should be extended to all students, because the purpose of exams is to find out how much you've learned. All students need some experience in taking exams.

ED CLAYPOOL — I think all students should have this privilege. If a student works hard enough to get a "B" average, he deserves some reward.

BILLY BYRD — I think graduating sophomores should be the only ones granted the privilege. That way, more people are encouraged to work toward graduation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Praise Of Wallace Criticized By Cole

Dear Editor:

Once again, I find need to disagree with the political opinion expressed in "People 'N Politics."

In the last column, it was stated that "Governor George C. Wallace is the only man in the race for President who has discussed to the fullest, with plans, the problems and issues which affect the well being of a domestic and defensive America."

I do believe that was an endorsement on the part of the columnist. However, I do not feel that the statement is justly true but I will not, because of space, go into that specific area.

I do feel that the columnist has failed to look objectively into the records of any of the presidential candidates. Instead, the column, along with many students here at Hinds and elsewhere, rely on piecemeal information that perhaps has a bad ring to it.

I would like to point out here that George Wallace once said, "I am for the elimination of poverty but you've got to let the free enterprise system help eliminate it." However, how many people know that perhaps one of the strongest advocates of just such a solution is Robert F. Kennedy. Many would know where each candidate stood if their records were examined.

I am not attempting to completely downgrade the Governor, but elevate the Senator from New York. Politically, I have nothing for either one. I am simply pointing out that upon an examination of issues and records quite a few interesting things occur that many people fail to realize.

I think the political outlook of this state would change considerably if some political objectivity returned to some members of the press and our onslaught of political greats. It is time to put aside past political prejudices and join the main stream of American politics.

Mississippi can go nowhere if it continues to remain an island to itself with a deeply imbedded political ignorance. I believe the time is right for us to make our move in this election year.

I believe it is time to cast our lot with the nation in a responsible manner. By that I mean it is time to back a winner for a change, a man with a proven record, a man with the vision of dynamic leadership, a man with true conviction. That man is Hubert H. Humphrey.

I hope that all students will objectively look at the record of all the candidates before they decide. And I feel that if everyone does this with an eye to the future, he will find that no other man fills the needs and convictions of many right thinking Mississippians for the Democratic nomination and the Presidency than Hubert Humphrey.

Sincerely,
Bill Cole

Colvin Claims Bias By Political Editor

Dear Editor:

First of all, I would like to congratulate you and the other members of the Hindsonian on the recent all-American rating. The Hindsonian is a vital part of campus life and it is doing an excellent job.

With the exception of one column, the paper is the greatest. "People 'N Politics" would undoubtedly have to be the most biased column, I have ever read in a paper of this type.

Last year, the award winning column "From the Stump," was a true view of the political scene. Unfortunately, we have not had the opportunity to receive an unbiased view this year. I would like to encourage the columnist to look at the facts and reconsider his stand on the national level.

I am sure that when and if he does, he will notice that there is more than one candidate in the Presidential race. He will also discover that George Wallace is not the only candidate who has discussed the issues.

I have hopes that there will be a noted improvement in this column next fall. If these improvements come about before the Hindsonian is to be rated next year, the judges won't be able to read the political column and tell what state the paper is from.

Respectfully,
Clark Colvin

Spend Long Hours

Yearbook Captures Student Activities

By GAYLE BECK

Nine volunteer students, one sponsor, and one staff advisor worked from the beginning of this school year to capture the students and activities in 208 pages of photos and print to form the Hinds annual, the EAGLE.

Sponsor Ralph Sowell and staff advisor Bob Hodges began the work in September of 1967 by selecting a competent and talented staff to compile their efforts for the new annual. Ginger McNair was chosen as Editor, and Beverly Nations as Assistant Editor to head section editors Judy Johnson, Danny McKenzie, Flora Jo Rives, Janice Becknell, and Joann Neal, photographer, Charles Harris and staff member Sherry Webb.

50 Years

After the theme. "Fifty years . . . Hinds in Motion," was chosen, hours of work by every member went into the next several stages of annual production.

Pictures of classes, faculty, staff, administration, and organizations were taken and retaken. People had to be identified, pictures had to be sorted, page after page had to be proofread to make sure the EAGLE was at its best.

Capture Action

The photographer spent many hours trying to be where the action was as he captured in pictures the sports and other activities of the student body. Carnivals, snow falls, a powder puff football game, the Mess Mississippi Pageant, open house, and many other activities were a part of the year and the EAGLE sought to make these events remembered.

Pages were drawn up in triplicate, pictures were cropped, stamped, and numbered, then proofread once more before submitted to the sponsor for his approval and signature.

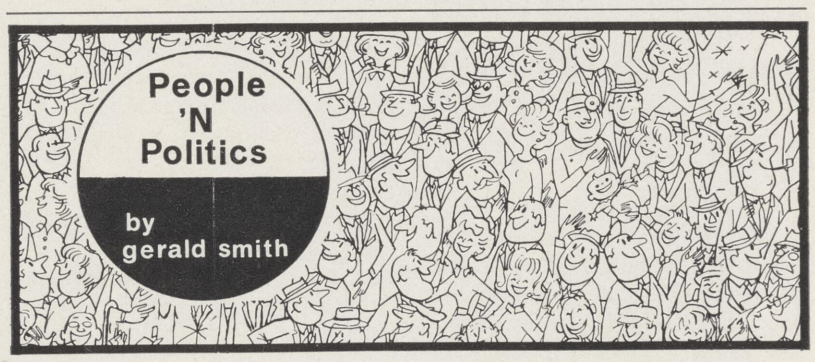
Meet Deadlines

To meet deadlines set up by publishers in Dallas, Texas, many staff members worked all night at some points along the way. Then the staff members grouped together to work on the Dubious Achievements section and the student directory.

As the last page was signed and mailed to Texas the entire staff, relieved that the hours and hours of work were over, settled down to await the arrival of the gold and black EAGLE.

Tension Mounts

When students heard that it had arrived tension mounted as they wondered who it was dedicated to and who was Most Beautiful. Now that it has been presented and all questions ansewered, eleven people relax and leaf through 208 pages of a job well done, and as the editor states, "a tribute to the year which has passed."



Federal Intervention Causes Discontent

Lurleen Wallace, the gallant and charming Governor of Alabama, passed away in the early hours of the morning of May 7 in the historic Alabama Governor's Mansion. This soft-spoken and well-mannered lady, selected as one of the most admired American women of 1967, so well carried on her life's purpose, thus by standing as a shining example of American Motherhood. Those who knew her best can and will vouch for the many virtues that she possessed.

The greatness of Lurleen Wallace is not in the fact that she was merely the wife of a great American statesman so respected and admired by many. The greatness of Lurleen Wallace comes out of the contributions and sacrifices she made, so unselfishly, in presenting the Wallace Story to the nation. Without the encouragement she had given her husband, his optimism and desire to pursue a cause would probably never have materialized to the extent that it has today.

In response to partial criticism by the ASB Forum, first of all it is quite obvious that the author of this column and the author of the ASB Forum have philosophies extremely different. Therefore, it would be impossible for each to present the same type political logic.

The criticsm is welcomed; however, a couple of ideals were taken for granted by the forum. First of all, this column advocates not to return to unpopular laws which might have existed at the state level. Tyranny at any level is anti-American. This criticism was based on a poor example.

The idea this column was trying to get across, was the fact that even though schools may be better equipped today, the people have little to say about their management.

Through federal intervention, the national government has not only become more centralized, but the standards of our schools have been lowered by mixing children of different races and backgrounds. Instead of lifting the inferior, it has brought about turmoil and discontent, thus demoralizing all of our children.

This is not true in all areas, however, this is the result of some places, common sense reveals that this is the social disorder that will eventually take place all over this nation.

This is bad, for only the people themselves know what social order is best for their children. The federal government, even though it may pretend in the desire to gain, knows little about what is best for our state's schools.

Up With People Advances Movement

"If we wake up people to what you are singing about we would have a nation that could stand as an example for all."

Those were the words of former President Dwight Eisenhower speaking of the singing group, Up With People. The group of Up With People, consisting of well over 150 appeared last week in Jackson, sponsored by the student governments of Mississippi College, Millsaps and Belhaven. To those of you who went to see the program you know what Mr. Eisenhower is talking about.

After seeing Up With People we have begun to question even more the recent movement by students both here and abroad. It seems like we hear every week of a new outbreak, a seige at Columbia or a student riot in Paris. Are these rebellions purely nilhistic? Are they aimlessly lashing out at every Establishment target? Or is it a genuine revolt against hypocritical society? We ask ourselves what does it mean, what are they after.

It is apparent that there is a great uprising among today's students. It is a great awakening to these students that a world exists and perhaps not as idealistically as they would like to see it. But the problem lies not in the awakening, but instead in the lack of direction that exists.

Today we have a new breed of students. Students who feel a responsibility and a duty to attempt to better the society and the world in which they must live. Actually there is nothing ridiculous about that desire since man has possessed it since the beginning of time. But today the challenge for action is coming from younger people who demand quick and just improvements.

Their motives are praiseworthy but the channeling of their energies to bring about these changes are misdirected. If only the youth of the world were offered the direction for their causes that is desperately needed then the success of their involvement would materialize in a progressive manner without the adverse publicity we find now.

We feel that direction was presented by the group Up With People. They offered a challenge to all young people to become personally involved in society. But not an involvement to attempt to band together and repudiate any injustices of society by demonstrations or riots. But instead to be personally aware of your fellow man and display the true Christian ideals toward everyone.

It has been found that change can occur if only people become concerned and commit themselves to that concern. We believe that Up With People does just that. There is no need for public display of forceful strength to intimidate change into occurring, for in most instances this will only strengthen the status quo.

If change is to occur it must come by a personal involvement to change. It can come one person at a time if necessary but it will come. The greatest publicity any cause can get is the personal communication of ideas from one person to another. Again we use the example of the Up With People program.

After the program was over we went down to meet a number of the students in the group. One in particular was a young Negro who is a pre-law student at New York University. He told us that he had actually been afraid to come down to Mississippi because of what he had previously heard about our state. But since being here and seeing Jackson and talking with students from both Hinds and Millsaps he had formed a new opinion of Mississippi.

In fact, Mississippi was nothing like the people in New York had told him. We had, by talking with

BIG EXCUSE

These are the times that try men's souls. Students are carrying a burden that makes their weak shoulders droop low to the ground: term papers are due.

In a recent survey it was shown that some American students really pitch right in there and start right to work on their term papers. Approximately .000021 per cent of American students do this. The survey further showed that another 5.05 per cent of the students really pitch right in there and start right to work on contracting other students to write their term papers for them.

The rest of us normal students practice a three fold program in tackling term papers. First the student practices the BIG WAIT up until the day before the paper is due in, at which time phase two, the BIG RUSH, goes into effect. After the papers are handed in, the final phase of this program goes into effect: the BIG EXCUSE.

By the time students have reached the Junior College level many are at the peak of their BIG EXCUSE capabilities. They have developed abilities that could put Everett Dirksen to shame with their oratory on their misfortunes. They can bring tears to the eyes the most cold hearted teacher. They are pros.

One such pro on the Hinds campus student Benard Fuluvbul. The following is a superb example of Benard practicing the BIG EXCUSE in a live concert at a recent class:

"Miss Wrinklebottom, you are no doubt rather disappointed with the term paper I have handed in. You assigned our class a 30 page paper on 'People 'N Politics and its Influence on the Russian Revolution.'

Famous Firsts

Now that you have finished reading Ed Payne's humor column you might as well settle back and read mine before you attempt to read that other thing that goes under the name of a political column. Of course I am speaking of the foot-in-mouth writing of none other than the rather dubious Gerald Smith.

I thought that you might be interested in hearing a few famous firsts connected with the world of baseball. For instance, did you know that the first shot fired by a Union soldier in the Civil War was fired by General Abner Doubleday, the father of baseball?

The first player to enter the military service in World War I was none other than Harry M. Gowdy of the Boston Braves in 1917. The first player to be drafted into World War II was the great Hugh N. Mulcahy of the Philadelphia Phillies in 1941.

It goes without saying that the oldest player to participate in a major league game was Leroy Satchel Paige for the Kansas City Athletics in 1965 when he pitched the first three innings. Satchel was 59 years, 2 months, and 18 days old when he fired the opening frames for Charles O. Finley, owner of the Athletics.

The first players to ever hit home runs in a major league ball game is held by two players who oddly enough managed to strike on the same day. Roscoe C. Barnes of the Boston Braves and Charles Jones (what a weird name) of the Cincinnati Reds blasted their way into the record books as they turned their feats on June 14, 1876. The American League had to wait five years before it could witness its first homer. Erwin T. Beck of the Cleveland Indians was the first man in the junior loop to hit a circuit clout.

The first catcher to wear glasses in the major leagues was Clinton D. Courtney, former Washington Senator great at the time he became the first four-eyed backstop, was playing for the New York Yankees in 1951. The first bespectacled pitcher was William H. White of the Boston Braves in 1877 while the first infielder to wear glasses was George Toporcer of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1921.

The first player to hit four homers in a game was Robert L. Lowe of the Boston Braves on May 30, 1894. It was 38 years before Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees could turn the feat in the American 1932.

The youngest player to hit 100 lifetime home runs was none other than Tony Conigliaro of the Boston Red Sox who was just informed by doctors that he is losing the sight in his left eye and that he will probably never play baseball again. Conigliaro was just 22 years old when he hit the century mark for the American League Champions in June of last season.

TOP DOUBLES TEAM — Sherri Angle, left, and Jerry Peyton advanced farther than any of the other Hinds entries in the Mississippi Junior College State Tennis Tourney held at the Battlefield Park tennis courts Saturday. After Three Weeks

Rain Storms Proving Biggest Winner In Intramural League Softball Play

Intramural softball rounded out its third week of action with the rain winning more games than any team in the league.

The Curves scored seven runs in the first inning of their contest against Shangri-La to pave the way for an 18-14 win. Shangri-La's pitcher, Pete Potter, walked the first four men that he faced to give the Curves all the help they needed to start the rally.

Joe Johnson led the Curves in hitting as he gathered four hits in their first contest of the season. Johnson collected three singles and a triple to pace the winners with Larry Swales leading the losing Shangri-La team with three hits, two singles and a double and also scoring three runs for the losers.

Wells Leads Podnos

The Podnos edged by the powerhouses from Central by the extremely close score of 21-6. Mike Hibbitt and Dickie Brock each hit one home run apiece with Dave "Killer" Wells smashing two circuit clouts to pace the Podnos. Sandy Campbell added to the Podnos' power by smashing a triple and a double.

For the losing Central team Dan Davis banged a homer in the first inning to provide the only bright spot in the Central line up for the day.

Necks Rout Stadium

The Red Necks jumped off to a quick 4-0 lead with four round trippers in the first inning. Gerald Barron, Phil Majure, Johnny House, and Frank Keen each hit solo homers to lead the Necks to their 12-4 win over Stadium.

Cecil Marble and Bedford O'Brien paced the losing Stadium team as they collected two hits apiece. Marble lined out a single and a double wtih O'Brien collecting two singles.

Shangri-La Rolls

Shangri-La pushed across 12 runs in the fourth inning as they swept to a 17-11 victory over Stadium. Mike Archer and Jerry Lusk led the winners in the hitting category with three hits each. Lusk drove in two runs with a single and a triple and Swales drove in five runs with two doubles and a home run.

For the losing Stadium team O'Brien and Marble again led the way with two hits. Marble smashed a third inning homer and a fifth inning single to drive in three runs. O'Brien banged out three hits, including two doubles and a triple to drive in two runs.

"I must confess that I am guilty of not putting my full attention on the paper and therefore deserve the consequences. Perhaps I let the death of my parents of Beri-beri affect me too much. Certainly I could have spent less time begging bread for my nine brothers and sisters. Then, of course, there was that nasty affair of those Gypsies kidnapping my grandfather . . . but no, these are weak excuses for me to hide my own shortcomings.

"I am sure there are plenty of others of your students who work 12 hours a day wrestling alligators who do not complain.

"So, before I have to hurry off to chop cotton on the back forty in order to hand weave socks for my 15 brothers and sisters, I just want you to know that . . . sniff . . . if you do see it in your heart to pass me, or perhaps give me a "C" in your course, I promise I will always work to the best of my ability.

"I promise I will put every dollar I ever earn back into the economy of this great nation, helping old glory stand a little firmer and thus aiding our boys in Viet Nam.

"And I know, that since you are not a communist radical who would keep me from fulfilling my destiny in the true American way, you will find it in your heart to give me that "A" I so well deserve. Excuse me, I have friends waiting in the grill."

Westminister Picks Ardahl To Serve As '68-'69 President

Vicksburg freshman, Ben Ardahl was elected president of the Westminister Fellowship for the coming year, with the remainder of the officers to be elected next year.

Ardahl, who is a graduate of W. H. Cooper High School in Vicksburg is on the campus social affairs committee and is serving as member of the Vesper Council. He is also a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athelets and Circle K, secretary.

Judy Hand, this year's president, is now serving as stated clerk of the Westminister Fellowship of the Synod of Mississippi. Miss Hand is also a member of the Synod's committee on Junior colleges.

In discussing his plans for next year, Ardahl stated, "The main purpose of Westminster Fellowship will continue to be as it has been: to challenge students to give their allegiance wholly to the Lord Jesus Christ, and to provide the spiritual fellowship necessary for a full, rich, Christian life. I want to express my thanks to Judy Hand, this year's president and to all members who have given of their time to help spread the claims of Christ before the students of Hinds Jr. College."

FCA Wins 'Most Active Club' Honor

By JUDY JOHNSON

Hinds Fellowship of Christian Athletes was honored as the 'Most Active Club' affiliated with the national program as announced in "The Signal," a monthly bulletin released by the national FCA office in Kansas City.

Louis Aldridge, president-elect of the club explained that this honor was earned by the club mainly for their week of Religious Emphasis, 'Mess Mississippi' Pageant, Bake Sale Program at Englewood's Nursing Home, and annual FCA vs Faculty Basketball game.

Kynerd Heads

The officers leading this 40 member strong group include: president, Bubba Kynerd; vice president, Louis Aldridge; secretary-treasurer, Huey Purvis; senator, Bryan Rowan; and board of directors, Jerry Calloway and Jim McBrayer.

Hinds was the first junior college in the nation to become affiliated with the national office. Since their membership three other junior colleges have joined the group.

'Unusual Honor'

Aldridge stated that, "Since this is the first year that our FCA has been organized here at Hinds, we feel that this is a most unusual honor. "We couldn't have done it him, given him a better insight into Mississippi. Because as he put it the students he had met treated him like anyone else. Perhaps it is good that he didn't visit some other parts of our state or talk to some other people.

However, he went on to say, that he was going back to New York and tell his friends that they had the wrong opinion of Mississippi. By this encounter we were able to change the opinion of one person who will perhaps change the opinion of others. And maybe, in the long run help to change the attitudes of states toward Mississippi.

Certainly this is a start and one in the right direction of personal involvement in a small way to remedy some forms of injustice that exists in our society. We sincerely hope that the opinion we gave him was the opinion of the majority of Mississippians.

Up With People had something to say and they said it rather well. They helped present a redirection to many. A direction that can only be successful by the channelling of energies into productive realization of ideas for the changing of the injustices and imperfections of our society. Perhaps we can never have a perfect society but the dream still remains.

We can fulfill that dream through personal commitment of one's self toward a responsible and justifiable outlook on life toward everyone. As Tennyson, wrote, "Come my friends, 'Tis not too late to seek a newer world."

Reading Instructor Travels To Boston For International Reading Association

By DAVID HILKERT

Hinds Reading Instructor Mrs. Marion Mounger was among the members and delegates at the April 24-27 meeting of the International Reading Association in Boston, Massachusetts.

More than 12,000 participants attended the convention from places as far as Australia, Spain, Denmark, and Israel, and as close as downtown Boston.

Reading Research

Mrs. Mounger attended the convention to update herself on the latest research and techniques in reading. "The Association strives to stimulate reading research at a higher level," noted Mrs. Mounger.

During the three day convention Mrs. Mounger's companion was Dr. Jeanne Chall a professor at Harvard University and author of a best selling book about reading research.

Visits Departments

Following the convention Mrs. Mounger visited the reading departments at Northeastern University in Boston, and Purdue University at Lafayette, Indiana.

Mrs. Mounger noted that Purdue graduates more than 3,000 reading specialists each year, and this is the first year Ole Miss will graduate any. Ole Miss is the only school in the state to offer such a degree.

'New Concept'

"Reading can bring a person in contact with the minds that stimulates a whole new concept of life," said Mrs. Mounger and added that "there is more research conducted in reading than in any other field."

McCarthy Wins Presidential Balloting

National results from the Choice 68 mock presidential election have been released showing Eugene McCarthy winning in the balloting of college students while Robert Kennedy placed second and Richard Nixon placed third.

Of 1,072,830 votes cast on some 1200 campuses throughout the nation, McCarthy placed first with 285,988, followed by Senator Robert Kennedy with 213,832 votes and Richard Nixon with 197,167 votes.

Nixon Leads

Other results in the tabulating of ballots revealed that in the Deep South Nixon won with Kennedy placing second. Results were: Nixon 23,106; Kennedy, 17,384; McCarthy, 13,018; and Wallace, 9,915.

Senator Kennedy placed second in seven out of ten voting sections while Nixon topped his opponents in the Southeast, Southwest, and Southern sections. Nelson Rockefeller received 11,937 votes while President Johnson received 57,362 in the balloting.

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey whose name did not appear on the ballot and who has since placed his name in nomination for the Democratic ticket, garnered 18,535 write-in votes, over 60 per cent of the total number of write-ins.

Results on poll questions showed that, nationwide, college students were in favor of a phased reduction of U. S. military activity in Vietnam, temporary suspension of the bombing, and that education should receive the highest priority in government spending to meet the "urban crisis."

Favor Reduction

Forty-five percent of all the students polled favored reduction of the U. S. military efforts in Vietnam and 17 per cent favored immediate withdrawal. Another 21 per cent urged an all-out military effort.

In the South however, some 34 percent voted for the all-out U. S. military effort in Vietnam with 41 per cent feeling that intensification of the bombing was necessary.

The balloting on the Hinds campus took place on April 24, but the results of the campus voting have not as yet been reported.

Graduates Reach Goal; Awardees Deserve Honor

Two groups of sophomore students rate an especially big vote of congratulations this week for their outstanding work in academic fields during their stay at Hinds.

The first group are those students who received awards on the annual presentation of honors to outstanding students of the various departments. These students have proven through diligent academic work that the price of studying consistenely pays off.

By maintaining a high record of academic progress, these sophomore standouts, each the best in the various departments, have been honored for their efforts.

The second group of sophomores are those that deserve the utmost praise and sincere congratulations from their colleagues. Usually small for a college of this size the graduating students number 250.

These students have applied their efforts to the goal of taking home an Associate Arts degree from Hinds. They have worked and worked hard to achieve this goal, by maintaining good marks and by complying with the required courses needed for the degree.

Both of these groups of students have a common goal in mind. Both have achieved this goal. In beginning their educational experience, these students knew that their chief aim at Hinds would be to uphold a certain quality in their academic work. They have done so and have proven by application of yourself, the results are quick to come.

Again, congratulations to the award winners for their effort in maintaining a quality goal in mind when attending Hinds, thus bringing honor to themselves and to their school. And next, congratulations to the graduates. They have achieved aother goal on the road to success.

Both of these groups have proven themselves to be award winning, and both deserve the praise and congratulations of the entire student body.

Publication Year Ends

When this issue of the Hindsonian leaves your hands for the inevitable garbage can, this publication year will have ended.

The nameplate will be put away, and the masthead will be killed for this year, until the new staff fills it with names of editors and staff members who will again begin the operation for next year.

The dust will settle on the keys of the editors' typewriters, the business managers will lay down their phones, the columnists will turn off their wit, and the reporters will put away their notebooks.

The sleepless photographer will pour out the chemicals in the sink of the darkroom, and the news staff will stop checking their beats.

Yes, another year has ended, and another chronicle of events and recorded history for the annals of Hinds has come to an end.

We have tried and succeeded, attempted and satisfied, labored and learned. With the best interests of the students in mind, we sought after the facts as they were, not as they were thought to be or as they were construed to be.

For what we have done, we are proud. For what we haven't done, there are more years to come. This year is through, the history is there, and "the dye is cast." — JC

Students Advise New ASB President

By JOANN NEAL

One of the major duties of the ASB President is to examine the complaints and criticisms of the students. Already, students are making suggestions for the coming year by answering this week's poll question: What would you suggest that the ASB President do in order to improve Hinds Jr. College?

BEN ARDAHL — I think he should take steps to bring the girls' rules up to date. For one thing, they should be allowed to stay out later at night.

DORIS FANNING — I think that one idea presented in one of the candidate's platforms is important — he should organize a committee composed of representatives of the various organizations on campus to organize a calendar of activities to avoid conflicts.

HAND

ARDAHL

CARL BARRY — First of all, he should represent the interests of all campus organizations, instead of a select few. He should also promote a better understanding between the students and the faculty.

THOMPSON

BLACKBURN

BETH ELMERICK — The ASB President should make himself available to students at all times. He should have specific hours and be in his office during those hours.

BILL COLE — He should work toward responsible goals with an eye on what the students have the ability to achieve and not simply ideas that the students have not demonstrated ability or willingness to accept.

JUDY HAND — I think the ASB President should give equal attention to all activities. The activities of all campus organizations should have his support.

KATHRYN SELLERS — I think he should work with the administration to equalize the girls' and boys' rules. Girls should be given more privileges.

CYNTHIA THOMPSON — I think he should work to extend the power of the Senate in order to bring the jurisdiction of the girls' rules into the hands of the Senate.

KAREN KAINZ — He should help establish more school spirit by being active himself and circulating all news concerning school functions.

CANDLER BLACKBURN — I think he should encourage the students to be more respectful of and more cooperative with the faculty. The student must remember that the teacher is here to help him.

GAY ROSE — In the first place, I think the ASB President should be granted more authority. It should be extended to equal that of other schools.

GEORGIA SMITHHART — I think he should get the ASB to sponsor more activities and include some "big-name" performances.

SMITHHART

FANNING

CLARK COLVIN — I think he should be open-minded and take all demands of students under consideration to see what can be done about each one. He should also try for better relations with the administration.

Personal Convictions Guide Opinions

First of all, I would like to express to you, Mr. Editor, personaly and publicly, my gratitude having worked with you on the Hindsonian staff my freshman year. The experience I have gained from writing this column, alone, is beyond measure, and I must say that it was an entirely new experience. I only hope that it will be possible for me to continue writing on political developments the forthcoming fall and spring semesters.

As a columist, on what I believe most would agree, one of the major controversial subjects, politics, I have tried to always reflect a definite and direct opinion, directed by the convictions that I so proudly possess. In short, I have never tried to conceal any convictions that I hold. By doing this, I would be cheating both myself and my God.

Without hesitation, I subscribe to the conviction that the three distinct branches of government should never exceed their power limits. I am an individualist, with the conviction that man controls his own destiny and that man, and man alone, is solely responsible for all acts that he commits. I am a strong believer in racial integrity, with concern over the survival of all races and nationalities of people, in accordance with the survival and existence of our own American civilization.

I deplore the use of minority groups by political office seekers to accellerate their personal careers. I deplore also the communist and socialist attempt to gain control of our nation by continuously seeking to divide our nation by diverting our attention to domestic matters and away from world affairs while they infiltrate less powerful countries with their indoctrination of human enslavement. I could go on and on, but the lack of space permits me not to do so.

Thanks, Staff

In this last issue of the Hindsonian for the 1967-68 academic year I wish to express my appreciation to the editor and his staff for the opportunity to bring some random thoughts to the attention of the students through the medium of this column.

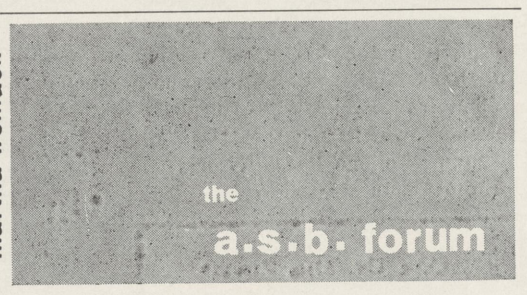
And too, I am most appreciative of the excellent job the Hindsonian staff and sponsors have done in publishing a college paper that has been recognized by the professionists have taken toward college newspapers. This is a highly deserved honor and one in which all of us take pride.

The sane, sensible and mature approach the editor and columnists have taken toward college problems has made the role of the administration easier and has made it possible for us to approach the solution to our problems in a mature way devoid of super charged emotions and extraneous pressures.

Pressing problems have and will continue to be a part of college life. It is also a part of community living wherever we find it. When a college in the midst of a booming economy ceases to have problems of increased enrollment, demands for additional services, and a broadened curriculum, that college is headed for even greater problems of survival or even the necessity for survival. Growth and change, while desirable, generate the problems with which the Board, faculty, staff and students have to cope.

We hope that with each succeeding year these situations brought on by growth and change can be resolved with intelligence, foresight, and reason that will make Hinds serve each succeeding group of college students more effectively and more meaningfully.

I wish to express my appreciation to the student body for the general sincerity of purpose and spirit of cooperativeness that has been evidenced during this academic year and wish for them the success their best efforts deserve, whether pursuing a career in the business and industrial community or completing their baccalaureate program in a senior college or university.



Finale Sees Regrets, Accomplishments

This column brings to a close another year of the existance of the student government.

After looking back on the year we experience a feeling that is difficult to define. Perhaps a feeling of regreat and a feeling of accomplishment.

We regret that our stay at Hinds Jr. College is finally coming to a close. It is hard for all of us to part and go our separate way after two years of close associations.

However, even though we must part for now, we are sure that we will all meet again at different times and at different places.

The future holds a great deal for all of us and it will be up to each and every one to make use of the future. In many issues of this column, we have talked of change in the making and the future of Mississippi.

We hope and pray that the day of realization of the Mississippi dream is not far away. It is not if the same type of student we have produced at Hinds remains here to fulfill that dream.

This year, a predominant motive has been to endeavor to gain time to our student government to settle down and mature its yet recent institutions and to progress without interruption to the degree of strength and consistency that is necessary to give it the command of its own future. We do feel that we have moved close in that direction.

We can now continue to move forward with a united student government in the years ahead. We feel sure that the new leadership will continue to build on a strong foundation that has attempted to be laid by the past five student governments.

It is a slow process and must take time. This the students must realize. In some areas the students of the college have not demonstrated that they are deserving of some activities and benefits. Take for example the assembly programs and student activities which have poor attendance.

We would not be surprised that if in the future the number of such activities were even further reduced to accomodate the apathy.

In the course of our service here, associated at different times with a great variety of people, there

PROGRESS IN MOTION — Blueprints become reality as the new $773,000 Fine Arts Building rises high behind the Student Union Building. On November 22, 1968, the new facility is scheduled for completion. Photo by Harris.

Fine Arts

New Building Displays Progress On Campus

By GAYLE BECK

Progress and motion have become two ever-present words on the HJC campus. With the entire year being based on the theme, "Hinds in Motion," plans have been made for a bigger and better Hinds.

As part of this great move the construction of a new $773,000 Fine Arts Building has begun. Today it rises high behind the Student Union Building, nearing the completion stage. Workers are now aiming for a completion date of November 22, 1968.

New Asset

As a new asset to the students, the 39,000 square feet of floor space will house the departments of music, art, foreign language, and speech. In addition to classrooms, it will contain art and music studios.

For the music students there will be 20 practice rooms, a music library, a small recital room and two large lecture rooms. Lecture rooms will also be available for the social studies and psyhcology departments.

Parking Lot

As the building becomes a reality, long range plans call for the removal of the old music building to make room for a parking lot. Also the downstairs portion of the library will become an educational media center where students can dial lectures and gather information needed in study.

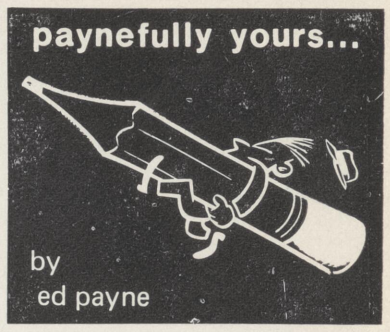
Architect George Brock of Jackson designed the new facility. He also designed the McLendon Library, the Student Union Building and Greaves Hall.

General Contractors

All the work that is being done in providing this building has been under the contract awarded to Campbell Construction Company of Jackson. D. W. Young Plumbing Company of Jackson received the mechanics contract and Lee Electric Company, the electric contract.

Financing of the construction comes from state bond money and a Federal grant of 40% of the cost. State funds total $450,000 and Federal Funds, $300,000.

Seeing into the future this new building will not be the last Hinds Junior College will see, but only one of the first.



Sinking In Sunset

Since, as you all know, this is the last issue of the Hindsonian for this year and is, by the way, the last of this series of columns (hallelujah, hallelujah), I have decided to play it straight.

It has been a great deal of fun having a license to kid, for the most part, what I wished during the year. Of course there was always our faithful editor, lonesome Jack Coppenbarger, who was ever present to lend a hand and a few words of inspiration like, "Nope, that won't do," and "Payne, you must be crazy, we can't print that."

Charles Harris, our roving photographer, inspired many ideas by telling me some of the real things that hapen in Central dorm. Then there were those four or five lost souls who, gathered in the cafeteria on Saturday nights to eat supper, always supplied an idea or two.

Our beloved sponsor Ralph Sowell was on hand to lend criticism on the column. His statement, "Gee, Payne, you must have been drunk when you wrote this," was a sure sign that I would not have a re-write on my hands.

But, of course, the main inspiration comes from the students whose frantic antics make fiction pale by comparison. At first the idea of doing a column was rather dubious in my mind. My first column dealt with an interview with a character by the name of Art B. Fuddled.

This, naturally, was a weak attempt at a pun. After it was published, I was approached by a student who commented, "Yeah, say who is that cat Art Fudled. Gee, he's crazy. Is he a real student out here? I haven't met him."

That was the closest this column came to calling it quits.

Now the year is at a close. Danny (Sports Editor) McKenzie, his face sprouting tiny little hairs, is heading over the hill with Uncle Wilford. Gerald Smith, Bill Cole, and Danny will cease their column wars and thank goodness, too, it was about to get violent.

Yes, the year is at an end. Will we all cast aside our burden with a heavy heart? Can we bear to part with all those hours without sleep? Will not our fingers long for the touch of thse typewriter keys? Can we stand the pain of not seeing our words of wisdom appear, weekly, on the immortal pages of the Hindsonian? Will we survive the loss of these and many other experiences we have come to know during this year? Hell, yes we will.

But do not despair, those of you who will be again darkening the doors of Hinds Junior College. All is not lost. People 'n Politics will continue to appear in the Hindsonian.

Do not despair too much dear friend. Those of you who plan to darken the door of Hinds Junior College for another year may take heart in the fact that the Hindsonian will, we think, be waiting to spread to you once again the good news.

You lucky dogs.

Hindsonian Wins First Place Award

Hinds' campus newspaper, the Hindsonian, has been awarded a first place rating in nationwide competition by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

The paper, entered in the CSPA's forty-fourth annual contest, received a total of 923 points out of a possible 1000 in judging of such areas as content, writing, editing, make-up, and general considerations.

In a summary of the rating, a judge commented, "Yours is a generally attractive, informative, and interesting publication." Judging took place in New York City on March 15.

"All of us who take part in the production of the Hindsonian feel this is a great honor," commented the paper's staff sponsor Ralph Sowell. He added, "We are very happy to have won top recognition from two national press rating services this year and feel it is the result of much hard work the staff has put into the publication."

Earlier in the year the Hindsonian received an "All - American" rating from the Associated Collegiate Press and, on the state junior college level, won the "General Excellence award from the Mississippi Junior College Press Association for the fourth straight year.

Politics . . .

As one who holds strong convictions, I also believe in the right to express difference in opinion. However, I would inform Mr. Cole that I have examined the records of the candidates, and that I find Governor Wallace the one who best subscribes to the principles in which I believe. The example Mr. Cole gave revealing the fact that Robert Kennedy and Governor Wallace had made a similar statement was based on "Peace-meal" information. Everyone knows that the two men are different as night and day.

Mr. Cole has also stated that Mississippi must lay aside differences with the national parties and join with them in an attempt to get back in the mainstream of American life. Mainstream of what? By word and deed both national parties have shown their disdain for the principles of which our people subscribe. By ignoring the convictions that we hold in their platform construction, they have caused a new political party to spring up. This is the reason political parties were formed; to compete with factions that differ. We cannot support something in which we do not believe.

Mr. Colvin, your letter shows your lack of understanding on the purpose of political conviction. Weren't you biased, as you speak of in your letter? I would also suggest that I am proud that a judge from another section of the country can pick up the "Hindsonian" and tell what section of the country it is from. It shows that this columnist shrinks not from the expression of his convictions.

If I did not take stands, then what would be my purpose in writing this column? I'm surprised that Mr. Colvin, who has served as president of the International Relations Club, an organization which seeks to understand how people of foreign lands think cannot understand the basic purpose of conviction.

Both Mr. Cole and Colvin expressed their honest difference with my column, but I regard the statements made by Mr. McKenzie in his sports column as unethical and as a direct assault on my personality. If he had wanted to express difference with my column, then he should have written a letter to the editor.

Art Exhibit Held On Year's Work

Aproximately 75-100 art students exhibited pieces of their year's work at the annual Spring Exhibition held May 22 around the Student Union Building.

Mrs. A. L. Denton, art instructor, stated, "Each year this has been a great deal of interest in the exhibitions and the students all seem to enjoy meeting others and watching the art students' progress."

During the entire day drawings, pen and inks, water colors, pencils, oils, and pottery were shown. Most pieces were available for purchase.

The recipient of the art award, presented on Awards Day, will have an exhibition in the gallery of her work until Friday.

Ferocious Frank

Can you imagine anyone hitting 17 home runs in only 35 games? That is the rate that Frank Howard of the Washington Senators is belting them out. At this rate, by the end of the 162-game season he will have hit 78 home runs.

Of course, you must take into consideration that this young man stands 6'7" and weighs 275 pounds. He probably could drag bunt a baseball over 400 feet if the wind was right. His 17th circuit clout traveled over 500 feet and that was the last time that they saw the ball. It might still be going.

It looks like Uncle Wilford's prognosis concerning the pennant races is holding up in the American League but in the National League he had better get his team on the stick. You remember that he picked Detroit to win it and after 35 games they had a two-game lead over the rest of the league. Over in the Senior Loop, however, the Pirates of Uncle Wilford's, are currently tied for sixth spot four and a half games back. I still have faith in my good Unc's predictions.

Murray State University had its Athletic Hall of Fame banquet Tuesday night and they honored a man that has deserved this honor for some time. If you haven't ever heard of Murray State, ask Lynn Bouler, he'll tell you. Anyway, that fellow that they honored was an All-Ohio Valley Conference center and linebacker for three consecutive years from 1933-1935. His name is Norman B. McKenzie, Sr. the father of this writer and my hat is off to him.

Atlanta Braves, catching coach, Charley Lau and one of his pupils, Bob Uecker, were discussing the various ways to catch a knuckle ball. According to Lau, "There are two schools of thought on catching the knuckler. Unfortunately, neither of them works." Uecker however, has discovered an easy means by which to catch the troublesome pitch. "Just wait till the ball stops rolling. Then pick it up."

Since this is the final sports column that I will be writing for the Hindsonian I would like to leave you with the RECIPE FOR FAILURE:

1. Try to do more than you can can possibly finish.
2. Think negative — stress the bad side of good fortune.
3. Be a worry wart—let a cloud be your umbrella. Remind the optimist that the crime rate is rising and so are taxes.
4. Be a slob—and remind your neighbors that pride goeth before a fall.
5. Make people yawn. When you open your mouth people should wonder: "What have I done to deserve this?"
6. Procrastinate — never do today what you can put off till tomorrow.
7. Repeat your mistakes. If you learn from mistakes you might as well learn a lot.
8. Develop a flair for rudeness while demanding that people treat you with respect.
9. Above all — watch out for number one. Soon you will have no competition for your job.

Podnos, Bombers Sit On Top Of Intramural Softball League

Intramural softball goes into its final week of action with the Podnos and the Bombers sitting on top of the league standings with both having undefeated records.

Paced by the slugging of Freddie Beauman and Mike Ezell, the Bombers swept to a 16-6 victory over Central. Beauman slammed out three hits, two doubles and a triple, with Ezell belting a fourth inning two-run homer to lead the Bombers to the top of the standings.

Central was paced by the three hit attack of George Field who accounted for a single and two triples. Joe Donald picked up a single and a double.

Podnos Squeak By

The Podnos managed to slip by Stadium in another closely fought contest that the Podnos are famous for. Led by the five hits of Randy Parker the Podnos took the squeaker over Stadium 28-12.

Parker slammed out three singles, a double and a round-tripper as he led the Podnos to their undefeated record. Dave Wells, Lynn Bouler, and Dickie Brock all slammed out home runs and Anthony Shelton, and Wells had four hits apiece in the attack.

Bedford O'Brien and Cecil Marble paced the losing Stadium attack as O'Brien hit a circuit clout and a double with Marble belting out a double and a tripple. Joe Johnson also rapped out two hits including a triple and a single.

Sizzlers Down Necks

The Sizzlers held on to second place as they claimed a 9-7 win over the Red Necks. Jimmy Powers, Wiley Aldridge and Gerald Giles paced the Sizzlers with two hits apiece. Powers slammed a double and a single, Aldridge belted a triple and a single, and Giles blasted two doubles.

For the losing Red Necks, Gerald Barron and Ken Acton claimed two hits each with Acton getting two doubles and Barron driving in three runs on a triple and a single. Frank Martin also led the Necks attack as he belted out a triple and a single.

Choir Romps

Behind the hitting of Johnny Reeves, the Choir claimed a 9-7 victory over the Hustlers. Reeves belted out a single, double and a triple and drove in four runs. Larry Calloway chiped in with two hits including a double and a single.

For the losing Hustlers, James Welch drove across three runs with a single and two doubles. Larry Rimes tripled and singled as he drove across two runs for the losing Hustlers.

Renfroe Hopeful

Eagles Need Transfers For Successful Season

By DANNY McKENZIE
Sports Editor

"Our only hope for a successful season next year is that we get some transfers from the senior colleges." These were the words of Coach Joe Renfroe, famed head football coach of the Hinds Eagles.

"We will have only six returning lettermen from last year's squad and once again the senior college recruiting has completely ruined our chances for an outstanding group of freshmen even though we do have a pretty good group of newcomers who have said that they would be here," said Renfroe, the winningest coach in the junior college circuit.

Six Returnees

The six returnees for next year are Jim McBrayer, end; Brian Rowan, end; Johnny Campbell, fullback; Berlon Wedgeworth, fullback; Bill Hall, tackle; and Frankie Jones, end.

Renfroe, who will begin his twenty-second year as mentor of the Eagles, said that he has lined up for next year three prospects, from Callaway, Wingfield, St. Joseph, and Warren Central, two from Brandon, Puckett, Pelahatchie, Port Gibson, Florence, and Pearl, one from Terry.
ry.

Senior College Steal

According to Renfroe the senior colleges from Mississippi and the surrounding states have signed 51 prospects that would be eligible for junior college football at Hinds next year. Twelve prospects from Murrah alone were signed to senior colleges with 10 from Vicksburg Cooper inking pacts with larger schools.

Renfroe added, "We have had I don't know how many boys give us their promise that they will be here next year and as soon as they do some college comes and signs them. You can't blame these boys however because its like offering a boy $1,000 or $10,000. Which one do you think that he would jump at. We just can't compete with these senior colleges."

Nursing Chairman Represents Hinds At Dallas Meeting

Hinds Nursing Department Head Eunice Pace attended the annual American Nurses' Association meeting held in Dallas, Texas, May 13-17.

Registration figures revealed a total of 7,140 nurses attending the convention with activities centered at the Dallas Memorial Auditorium.

Student Meeting

Representatives from Hinds also attended a meeting of the National Student Nurses' Association held the previous week in Dallas.

Attending this convention from Hinds were Mrs. Mildred Rives, Faculty-Student Advisor, and Mrs. Jane Calahan, President of the Hinds Student Nurses Association.

McKeowan Keynotes

Keynote speaker for the ANA Convention, was Dr. Thomas McKeowan, internationally known physician, Professor of Social Science, at the Medical School at University of Birmingham in England.

Highlights of the meeting included numerous exhibits staged by local and professional groups depicting programs and topics associated with the nursing profession.

Delegates Meet

Speakers, workshops, and debates along with daily members of the House of delegates, where voting was held on issues brought before the members, was also held for the nurses.

Meeting the previous week, the student nurses elected new officers, and held workshops on their duties. Special programs, business meetings, and entertainment was featured during the three day meeting.

One of the highlights of the ANA convention, according to Miss Pace, was an oceanianic television hookup with European nurses moderated by noted figures in the nursing profession for members on both continents.

has been points of collision. But whatever offense there has been to us, we leave here, and carry no hostile remembrances.

Whatever offense we have given which has not been reduced, we do in this time of our parting offer you our apology for any conflict or injury which in the heat of discussion we have inflicted. We go hence unemcumbered of the remembrance of any injury received and having discharged the duty of making the only reparation in our power to do so.

Though in reviewing the incidents of our administration we are unconscious of internal error. We are nevertheless too sensible of our defects not to think it probable that we may have committed errors. Whatever they may be, we fervently, beseech all of you to avert or mitigate the evil to which they may tend if any.

To all of you who are leaving, you go on to better things, we hope. The future you wish to make for yourself and the state of Mississippi awaits you. We trust it will be a successful one.

Fellow students, having made this announcement which the occasion seemed to us to require it only remains for us to bid you a final adieu until we meet again.

VOTING CHANGE

New Elections Policy Started For Women Dorm Senators

By JOANN NEAL

Senatorial elections were held last week by the women dorm students, bringing about a change in electorial policy.

In a runoff election Vicky Williams was elected to represent Westside and Karen Boswell to serve as senator for Northside. Lynn Small received the position at Main on the first ballot.

Previously, elections for senators were held at the beginning of the school year. However, this year returning women students voted to hold the elections at the end of this term. The change was presented to the students by the Women's Executive Council.

The new policy also calls for next year's representatives to be freshmen and serve on the WEC. The newly-elected senators will attend the remaining WEC meetings to be held this year.

This change will allow the new senators to organize early and begin planning for next year. Stated new WASB President Stella Wedgeworth, "We will immediately begin to plan for next year's activities. Our first project will be the welcoming of new students during registration in the fall."

Service President To Attend Meeting

Vicky Williams, President of Samothrace, will attend the Mississippi Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention, to be held June 6-9 in Biloxi.

Miss Williams will be one of several guest speakers at the banquet. This will mark the fourth annual convention of the federation and will carry the theme "Set Sails for Progress."

Of the coming event, Miss Williams said, "It will be my pleasure to represent the Samothrace Club and relate to the BPW the achievements of our organization since its establishment."

No Re-Filing

Registrar Mildred Herrin announced that students who will return to Hinds next year do not need to file a re-admission form.

According to Miss Herrin, cards will automatically be punched for students currently enrolled, so there will be no filing needed. "This does not apply to housing accommodations," added the registrar.

Payne Amendment Killed In Final Senate Meeting

Discussion flared into heated debate in the final session of the Associated Student Body senate Tuesday, May 21, over a proposed amendment to change the term of office of ASB officials.

The amendment required a two-thirds vote for passage. After half an hour of arguments and legal moves the legislation was brought to a vote and failed to pass by one vote.

A small number of senators were on hand for the final session which prompted a call for a quorum. It was taken, revealing that only the nominal number of senators were present.

Payne Authors

Originally the amendment, authored by Ed Payne, was discussed at the May 7 senate meeting. It called for first semester elections with elected ASB officers to take their post second semester.

Senate Parlimentarian Alvin Woods, next year's ASB President, called for indefinite postponement of the amendment. Although ASB President Bill Cole and Payne claimed this move was unconstitutional, the motion passed.

Colvin Introduces

Judicial Council Commissioner Clark Colvin re-introduced the amendment at Tuesday night's session re-written to provide for April ASB elections with officials to take office immediately. Woods objected referring to his motion, when an official ruling of the Judicial Council was read.

It stated that Wood's "motion to postpone indefinitely the amendment was out of order simply because it violated . . . the ASB constitution."

Author Absence

Colvin re-read the amendment to the senate and Cole explained its purpose in the absence of its author.

After heated debate between Woods, Cole, Colvin, and Clark the amendment was brough to a vote. Balloting showed 13 for and seven against, thus falling one vote of passage.

Farewell Address

Before adjournment Senate President Bruce McArthur thanked the senators for their participation throughout the year. "I have enjoyed being in the senate very much," he stated.

Senator Paul Reihle then thanked McArthur for the job he had done. Cole and Woods both offered final statements with Woods commending Cole for the job he has done throughout the year.

After adjournment a formal reception was held with Hinds President Dr. Robert M. Mayo, Dean of Students A. L. Denton, and faculty advisor Louis Walsh presented gifts for their service to the senate.
